THE AUTHOR

NO HISTORY of Troup County would be complete without the biography of the author of this book, the man whose brain and pen have preserved for future generations the traditions and achievements of the people of this county.

Clifford Lewis Smith, the fifth child of Rufus Wright and Oreon Mann Smith, was born in Greene County, Georgia, March 25, 1867. He came of a family of artists and educators. April 2, 1893, he was married to Miss Pearl Long of Greenwood, Florida, whose genius and culture have been an inspiration to him. After attending Emory College and Chicago University, he selected teaching as a profession and taught several years in LaGrange Female College. When LaGrange established a public school system, he was elected superintendent of the schools and held the position for fourteen years. He assisted in completing the plans for Harwell Avenue Grammar School and the High School buildings. For a number of years he held a most responsible position with the New England Southern Mills and the Callaway Mills, rendering valuable service in the research and engineering departments of those mills.

It is said by those who know that Professor Smith is the most versatile man in this section of the state. He has no particular hobby, but takes a delight in solving problems in higher mathematics. Some years ago, he presented a monograph of seventy-five solutions to the Pythagorean Problem to the University of Chicago and received a letter of congratulations from the pedagogical department on the work. He has mastered chemistry and physics. He is an authority on subjects pertaining to botany and astronomy. He is a master in mechanics. He is a musician and knows the technique of music. He speaks French, reads Latin and Greek, and understands some German, Italian and Spanish.

A distinct honor came to Mr. Smith in 1908. He was one of a number of American teachers invited by the teachers of Great Britain to visit the school systems of England, Scotland and Ireland. He made an extended trip to those countries and on his return wrote a report to the American Civic Federation under whose auspices the visit was made. This report relating to these schools and the educational systems was given the title of "Views and Values." He has written a number of treatises on different subjects, the most recent of which is a booklet on the Trees and Birds of Troup County.

The people of Troup County are fortunate in having the history of the county written by Professor Smith. As an evidence of this, a resolution was introduced by Senator J. R. Terrell, Jr., and passed by the last Georgia Senate in the session of 1932 commending Professor Smith for his work in the preparation of the History of Troup County.

Professor Smith is a most pleasing conversationalist. He possesses a rare grace and charm of manner. He is courteous, unpretentious, genial and efficient. He is loved and respected by all who know him. He is a loyal friend, a good neighbor, an upright citizen, a Christian gentleman. Such is the author of the History of Troup County.

J. H. MELSON, Superintendent
Troup County Schools.

INTRODUCTION

IN PRESENTING this compilation of the history of Troup County, the author wishes to acknowledge the generous assistance of many citizens and of numerous contributors to the local papers, and of the county and municipal officials in searching among the old records.

The information of the early days seems now to be sadly lacking in many details, and some characters stand out in exaggerated prominence, while the feats of many modest heroes of the long ago are lost in oblivion. The apathy of their descendants and the absence of definite recorded facts have precluded them from the permanent record. The very names of many brilliant actors in the drama and tragedy of the pioneer days excite no throb of remembrance or interest in the minds and hearts of many of our modern citizens.

The author wishes especially to acknowledge the assistance of the following citizens and officials:

Barker, Novatus L., Jr., city clerk of West Point.

Barnes, Mrs. Pearl W., of Abbottsford, for church records.

Boddie, Miss Belle, of Mountville, for numerous contributions.

Bradfield, Mrs. Jennie E., of LaGrange, for Confederate records.

Dickinson, Marvin M., of LaGrange, for assistance in paper files.

Dozier, Rev. W. E., of Loyd Chapel, for church history and records.

Faver, Mrs. Mattie T., of LaGrange, for papers of Judge W. W. Turner.

Griggs, Miss Carrie Lou, of West Point, for clippings and data.

Henderson, Miss Lillian, of Atlanta, for Confederate rosters.

Heyman, Miss Bertha, of West Point, for data and contributions.

Hightower, Charles T., of Hogansville, city clerk.

Hudson, Asa C., of LaGrange, for Ferrell Battery data.

Johnson, Mrs. Ola M., of West Point, for papers, records and data.

LaGrange Graphic, for use of files.

LaGrange Reporter, for use of files.

Lanier, Mrs. Ada F., of West Point, for church records.

Loyd, Walter R., of East Vernon, for assistance in investigations.

McLendon, Mrs. M. F., of LaGrange, for numerous old paper files.
Melson, J. H., of Hogansville, for county school records.
Moon, Mrs. E. T., of LaGrange, for diary and papers of West Point.
Moss, J. H., of LaGrange, city clerk.
O'Neal, V. R., of LaGrange, for numerous papers and investigations.
Oslin, Mrs. Mary P., of West Point, for scrapbook and data.
Park, Mrs. Annie Lizzie, of LaGrange, for papers of Judge J. B. Strong.
Pharr, R. O., of LaGrange, for church records.
Polhill, Mrs. Mary P., of LaGrange, for records of U. D. C. and D. A. R.
Rakestraw, Mrs. Elizabeth D., of LaGrange, for old diary and papers.
Render, L. J., of LaGrange, much interesting data.
Slack, Dr. and Mrs. H. R., of LaGrange, for numerous contributions.
Smedley, D. B., of West Point District, for church records.
Smith, Mrs. Pearl L., of LaGrange, for assistance in editing.
Traylor, G. T., of LaGrange, for assistance in county records.
Traylor, J. E., of LaGrange, for locating the "Burnt Village."
Traylor, Miss Lizzie, of Atlanta, for scrapbook and documents.
Trimble, W. S., of Chickamauga, for Hogansville data.
Wells, Mrs. Bettie B., of Mountville, for diary and documents.
Whatley, S. H., of Thomaston, for church records.
Young, Mrs. R. M., of LaGrange, for scrapbook and papers.

The contributions referred to above were in the form of manuscript, verbal information, or clippings of articles published in various newspapers and magazines.

The author presents this volume with the accompanying wish that the reader dwell not on its imperfections, nor berate the omissions, but that he may note the errors and omissions, and carefully preserve such notes for the use of the compiler of our next county history.

CHAPTER I. GEORGE MICHAEL TROUP

GEORGE M. TROUP, for whom Troup County was named, was the son of John Troup and Catherine McIntosh, and was born on the Tombigbee River, then in the territory of Georgia, on September 8, 1780. His maternal uncle, William McIntosh, married the daughter of an Indian chief, and their eldest son was William McIntosh, the president of the Creek Nation.

George M. Troup was graduated from Princeton in 1797. He was a Georgia congressman from 1807 to 1815, and in 1816 was elected as United States senator, but resigned in 1818. He was governor of Georgia from 1823 to 1827, and in 1829 was again elected as United States senator.

It was during his administration as governor that the treaty with the Creek Nation was negotiated by the United States for the cession of the territory, of which Troup County forms a part, as it was dated February 12, 1825.

His old home was in Laurens County and was named by the Troup family "Valdosta," but it is not the site of the city of that name. He died while visiting one of his plantations near Soperton in what was Montgomery, but now Wheeler County, on April 26, 1856, and was buried on the Rosemont plantation, about seven miles from Soperton. His grave is marked by a substantial monument, erected originally to the memory of his brother, who had died in 1848. One face of the monument bears this inscription:

"Erected by G. M. Troup, the brother, and G. M. Troup, Jr., the nephew, as a tribute to the memory of
R. L. TROUP
who died September 23, 1848
Aged 64 years."

On the opposite face of the monument is the following inscription:

"GEORGE MICHAEL TROUP
Born September 8, 1780
Died April 26, 1856
No epitaph can tell his worth
The History of Georgia must perpetuate
His virtues and commemorate
His Patriotism
There he teaches us
the argument being exhausted
To Stand by our Arms."

Governor Troup was a fearless and upright man, uncompromising in his allegiance to principles, and one of the most earnest advocates of States Rights in the commonwealth.

It is fitting here to record the address of welcome given by Governor Troup to LaFayette on the occasion of his visit to Georgia in 1825, which was delivered on the banks of the Savannah River. It is probable that this address inspired Col. Julius C. Alford to offer the home of LaFayette as a name to LaGrange at the public meeting held for the purpose of selecting a name for the county town.

"Welcome, LaFayette! 'Tis little more than ninety years since the founder of this state first set foot upon the bank on which you stand. Today 400,000 people open their arms and their hearts to receive you. Thanks to the kind Providence which presides over human affairs, you were called to the standard of independence in the helplessness of the American Revolution and you have been graciously spared that in your last days the glory of an empire might be reflected upon your countenance amid the acclamations of millions.

"For you the scenes which are to come will be comparatively tranquil; the waters no longer turbulent but placid. No more dread of dungeons; no more fear of tyrants for you. Oh, sir, what consolation it must be to one who has passed through seas of trouble to know that between you and them are the countless bayonets which guard the blessings of freedom! Welcome, General! Friend of Liberty, welcome! Thrice welcome to Georgia!"

GEORGE MICHAEL TROUP.

CHAPTER II. ACQUISITION

THE STATE of Georgia was formerly inhabited by two distinct Indian groups, one of which was the Cherokee Nation, mountaineers or uplanders as their name signifies in their own language; the other group was a federation of several tribes, who retained their own tribal names. Among the latter were found the Coosa, Kasita (Cusseta), Kawita (Coweta), Alibamu, Yamasí (Yemassee), Shawano (Shawnee), Seminoles and some other small tribes. This confederation was called by the northern Indians in the Algonquin tongue: "Muscogi," the English translation of which name came into common use and was adopted by the confederation as their official name of "Creeks."

The attitude of the Creeks towards the colonists was friendly and cordial. In the first treaty of October, 1733, the settlers were invited "to make use and possess all those lands, which the Nation hath not occasion to use." Six years later in 1739, there was held at Coweta town, an Indian town near Columbus, a council of Creeks, Cherokees and Chehaws, which confirmed the treaty of 1733 and fixed the bounds of the cession as between the Savannah and Ogeechee rivers as far north as Little River, which is north of Augusta. At the same council the boundary of the Creek Nation was set forth as "from the St. Johns River westward to Apalachee bay and northwards to the mountains," and the council recognized these as bounds of the Creek territory, and the mountains were recognized as Cherokee territory. The next convention was held at Augusta in 1763. It was attended by the chief executives of four colonies: Governor Dobbs of North Carolina, Governor Boone of South Carolina, Governor Wright of Georgia, Lt. Governor Fauquier of Virginia, and seven hundred tribesmen representing all southern tribes. This convention merely confirmed the original cession of territory.

In 1773, forty years after the first treaty, the Cherokees ceded twenty miles further north, which cession is the present Wilkes County, and the Creeks ceded the coast between the Ogeechee and Altamaha rivers. Both of these cessions were financial transactions. During the War of Independence, in 1778, inasmuch as the Creeks fought with the Tories and English, the coastal plain was widened by seizure, which marked the beginning of the end of cordial relations.

The following purchases were made in addition to those mentioned above: in 1790, the territory between the Ogeechee and Oconee rivers; in 1802 and 1804, from the Oconee to the Ocmulgee River; in 1814, the southern part of the state as far west as the Chattahoochee River and as far north as Fort Gaines, Georgia.

In the eighty years after the first cession in 1733, the Creeks had made wonderful progress in agriculture and government. Near the towns there were patches of corn, yams, beans, melons, gourds and tobacco, which were tended by the squaws and their negro slaves, who were acquired at an early date in the slave trade. For it must be remembered that the importation of slaves was prohibited by the Constitution of Georgia, which was adopted in 1798. The Creek houses, consisting of two or four rooms separated by an open hallway, were of their own design and later were imitated by the pioneers. The central hallway was used by the Indians as a council gathering place, but was called by the pioneers the "Dog-Trot." The early roads were little more than trails or bridal paths, and were usually located across the crests of hills in order that the distant landmarks might be easily seen.

The capital city of the Creek Nation was Indian Springs (near Flovilla, Georgia) and the government consisted of representatives from every town to constitute its assembly or legislature. As early as 1763, there were fifty towns and the Indian population was as much as forty to fifty thousand, for the warriors or soldiers numbered 5,860 exclusive of old men, squaws and children.

The head chief and president of the assembly had built a capitol and a presidential residence at Indian Springs and the Creek Assembly had conferred on the president the rank of General of the Creek Armies. The commissioning of colonels, captains and other military officers followed soon thereafter. The passing visitor was introduced to Gen. William McIntosh, President of the Creek Nation, whose home was at McIntosh Reserve in Carroll County, and whose residence as president was at Indian Springs, capital of the Creek Nation.

The question of taxation or raising funds for the central government was a difficult problem for the Creek legislature: the agricultural products were cultivated on a scale commensurate with the family needs; and the trade in baskets, pottery, moccasins, fur caps and coats was generally in the form of barter; hence, there seemed to be no feasible or practical form of taxation. The Assembly finally concluded that the cession and sale of territory was the simplest method of securing means for the purchase of arms and tools for their military and agricultural equipment. These repeated cessions of territory for such equipment were complicated by the increasing number of tribesmen from year to year and the constantly decreasing area of hunting grounds. The consequence was an increasing dissatisfaction among the tribesmen with the course of events. The clashes between the conflicting interests of the pioneers and the Indian trappers and hunters emphasized the growing dissatisfaction.

Most of the legislation of the Creek Assembly was of a military character and the most important issue was a method of equipping the army for which a large sum was necessary for arms and uniforms. In 1821 an Assembly was called to consider this momentous question, and there followed the largest sale and cession of territory in the national Creek history. This sale included the central part of Georgia southeast of the Thronateeska River, which is now called the Flint. While the desire for money and arms finally overcame the hesitation to surrender this territory, yet the Assembly also passed an enactment that no further cessions of territory should be made except by unanimous consent, pledging their lives as forfeit for the violation of the edict.

The next cession of territory, which gave the state of Georgia that part in which Troup County is situated, was made by a council or assembly summoned to Indian Springs on February 12, 1825. This transaction was of little credit to either of contracting parties, for it is easy to read between the lines the persuasion, bribery and promises of protection on one side and the treachery and violation of the law on the other. The price paid to the Creeks for the cession was $400,000.00 in cash, an equivalent area beyond the Mississippi River, and the expense of moving. The text of treaty follows:

CREEK TREATY OF 1825. Articles of a Convention entered into and concluded at Indian Springs, between Duncan G. Campbell and James Meriwether, Commissioners on the part of the United States of America, duly authorized, and the Chiefs of the Creek Nation in Council assembled.

Whereas the said Commissioners, on the part of the United States of America, have represented to the said Creek Nation that it is the policy and earnest wish of the general government, that the several Indian tribes within the limits of any of the several states of the Union should remove to territory to be designated on the west side of the Mississippi River, as well for the better protection and security of said tribes, and their improvement in civilization, as for the purpose of enabling the United States, in this instance, to comply with the compact entered into with the State of Georgia, on the twenty-fourth day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and two; And the said Commissioners having laid the late Message of the President of the United States, upon this subject, before a General Council of the said Creek Nation, to the end that their removal might be effected upon the terms advantageous to both parties; And whereas, the Chiefs of the Creek towns have assented to the reasonableness of said proposition and expresses a willingness to emigrate beyond the Mississippi, those of Tokaubatchee excepted:

These presents therefore witness, that the contracting parties have this day entered into the following Convention: The Creek Nation cedes to the United States all the lands lying within the boundaries of the State of Georgia as defined by the compact hereinbefore cited, now occupied by said Nation, or to which said Nation have title or claim; and also all other lands which they now occupy, or to which they have title or claim, lying north and west of a line to be run from the first principal falls upon the Chatauhoochie River above Cowetau town, to Ocfuskee Old Town upon the Tallapoosa, thence to falls of Coosaw River, at or near a place called Hickory Ground. The next eight paragraphs merely give the details of the manner of payment and the plans for the final removal to the selected place beyond the Mississippi River.

In testimony whereof, the Commissioners aforesaid, and the Chiefs and Headmen of the Creek Nation have hereunto set their hands and seals, this the twelfth day of February, in the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty-five.

INDIAN SPRINGS RESERVATION. On February 14, 1825, two days after the signing of the above cession, the reservation of Indian Springs was bought and the text of the transfer is given below:

Whereas the foregoing articles of convention have been concluded between the parties thereto; and Whereas, the Indian Chief, General William McIntosh, claims title to the Indian Springs Reservation, upon which there are very extensive buildings and improvements, by virtue of a relinquishment to said General William McIntosh, signed in full Council of the Nation; and Whereas the said General William McIntosh hath claim to another reservation of land on the Ocmulgee River, and by his lessee and tenant is in possession thereof: Now these presents further witness that the said General William McIntosh, and also the chiefs of the Creek Nation, in Council assembled, do quitclaim, convey, and cede to the United States, the reservation aforesaid, for and in consideration of the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, to be paid at the time and in the manner as stipulated for the first installment provided for in the preceding treaty. Upon the ratification of these articles, the possession of said reservations shall be considered as passing to the United States, and the accruing rents of the present year shall pass also.

In testimony whereof, the said Commissioners on the part of the United States, and the said William McIntosh and the Chiefs of the Creek Nation, have hereunto set their hands and seals, at Indian Springs, this the fourteenth day of February, in the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty-five.

THE FINAL TRAGEDY. Gen. William McIntosh, President of the Creek Nation, after the Council had finished its work at Indian Springs, remained there some time gathering together the Council records, closing up his personal affairs and removing his personal property from Indian Springs and his Ocmulgee farm, and some time near the first of August, 1825, he made his way back to McIntosh Reserve in the present Carroll County. There a number of chiefs waited upon him, and giving him one day to arrange his affairs, they executed him in accordance with the Creek laws for the violation of their agreement not to sell any further territory without unanimous consent of the Council.

The above incident is noted in order to show some of the causes of the subsequent raids and annoyances experienced by the pioneers at the hands of the Indians in retaliation for the treacherous sale of their hunting grounds. The chief of Tokaubatchie was recorded in the treaty as being present and not assenting to the sale, and his followers did not consider an illegal treaty as binding upon them.

Thus was the territory between the Flint and the Chattahoochee rivers acquired by the United States for the State of Georgia. The State of Georgia at once took steps to survey and subdivide this newly acquired territory into land districts and land lots preparatory to the creation of counties.

CHAPTER III. SUBDIVISION AND DISTRIBUTION

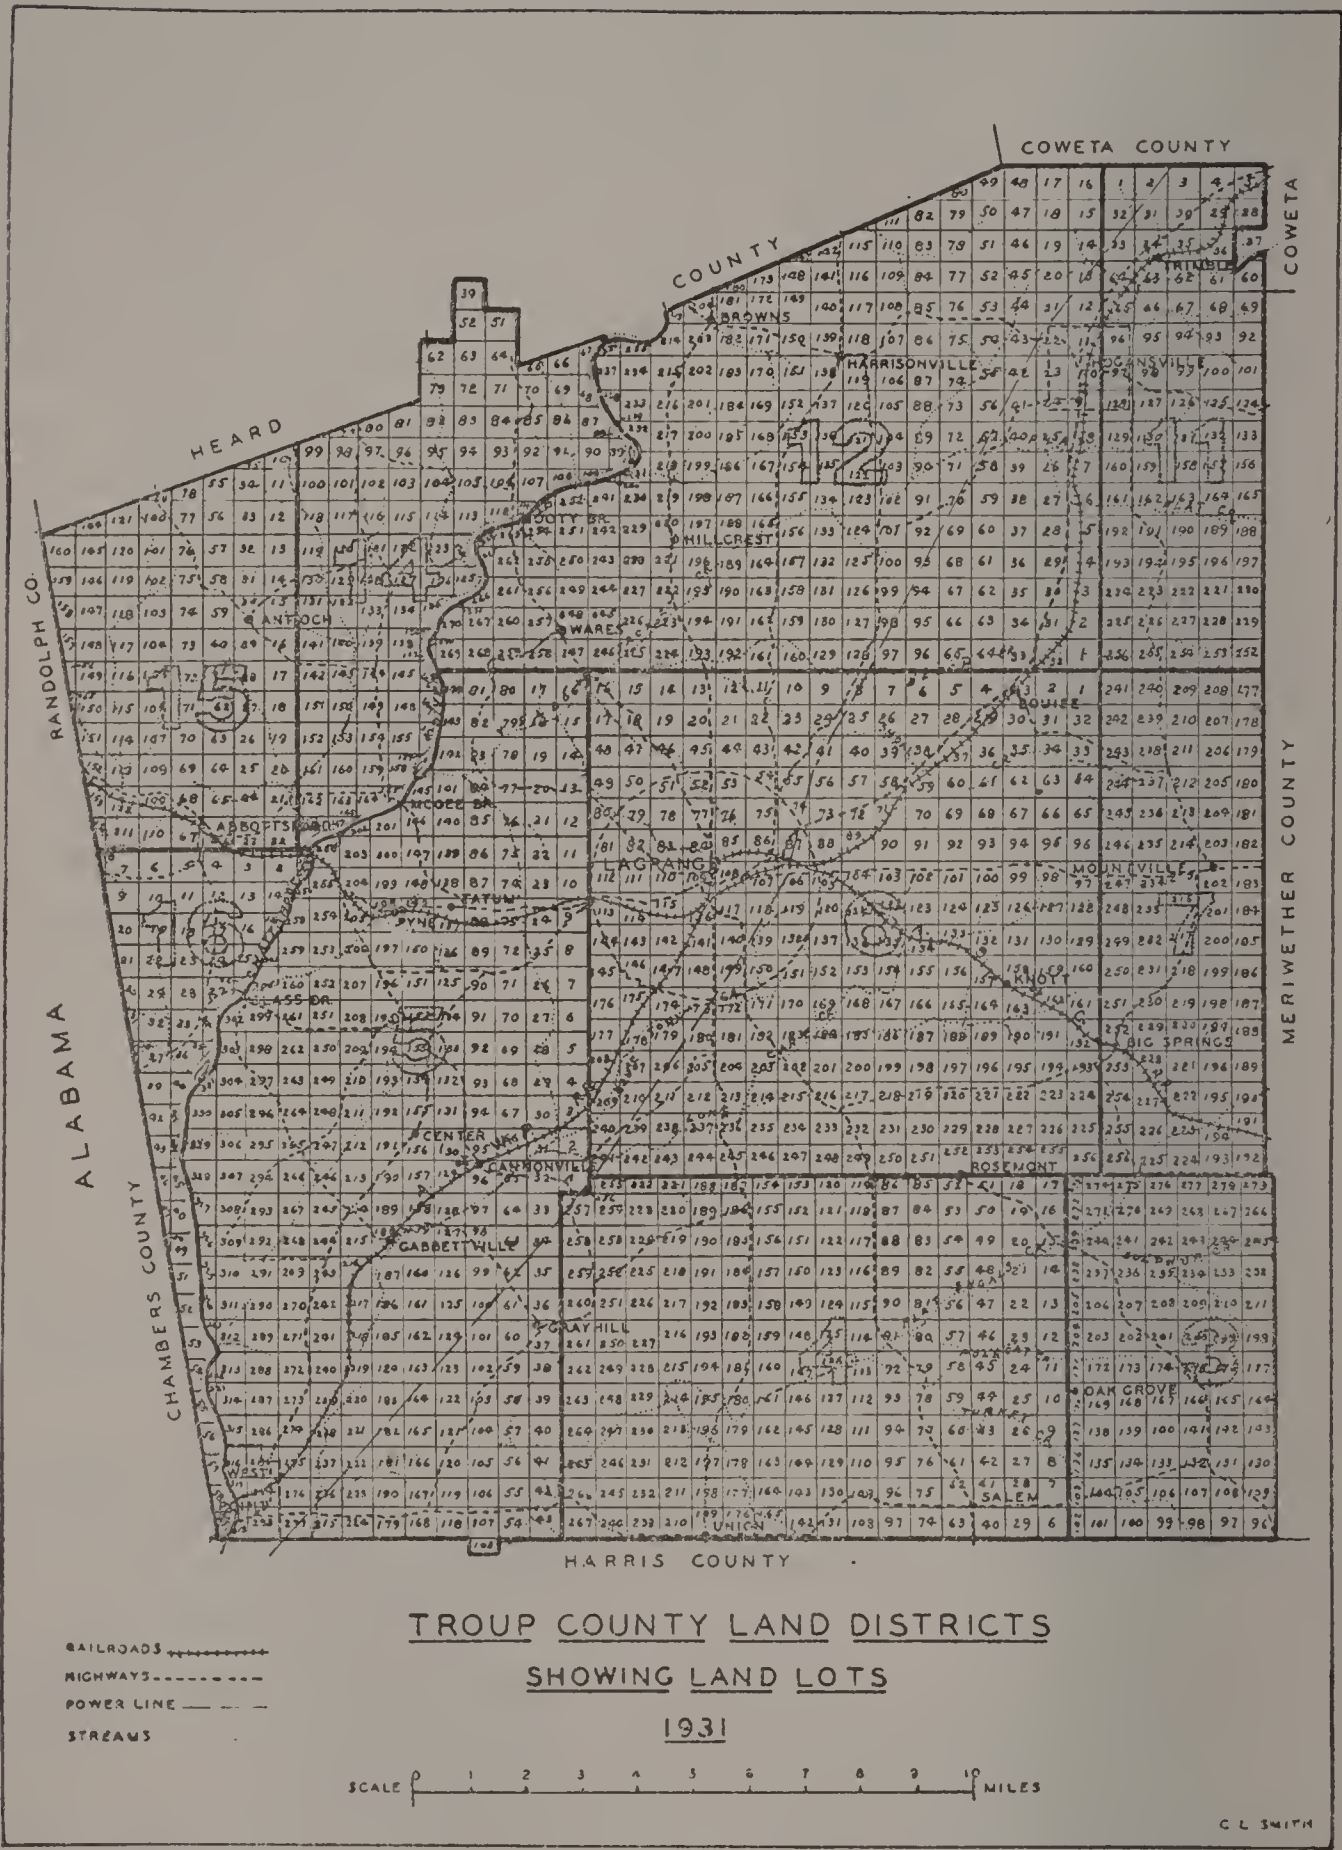

SURVEYING. The first step preceding the organization of the territory acquired from the Creek Nation was a complete survey and subdivision of the whole area. There were employed a corps of one hundred civil engineers to subdivide the area into land districts and land lots.

The land districts were laid off with a fair degree of accuracy and the bounding lines of districts closely approximate due east and west, and north and south. The size of a land district is a square of nine miles on each side, 720 chains of sixty-six feet, or a total of 47,520 feet. Those districts adjacent to the Flint and Chattahoochee rivers were modified by the windings of the streams; the Fifth and the Ninth districts of original Troup County were narrow from east to west and were eighteen miles from the north to the south lines; the First district in the southeast corner of the original county was small and contained an Indian Reservation on the Flint River of one square mile, which is now in the present Talbot County.

The land lots were subdivisions of the land districts and were laid off as one-sixteenth of a normal land district side, measuring forty-five chains, or 2970 feet on each side. This subdivision makes two hundred and fifty-six land lots in a normal land district. Careless measurements and the frequent mistaking of line markings have produced many irregularities in the county districts. It must be remembered that the subdivisions were made before the counties were created, and in consequence, a land district may lie in several different counties as at present constituted. The original boundaries of Troup County included all the land lots in the twelve land districts of the Third Section of the survey, lying between the Flint and Chattahoochee rivers, as may be seen from the accompanying map of the original county; but later changes left the Sixth District as the only entire one in the county as at present. This is the district in which LaGrange is situated.

DISTRIBUTION. Before the counties were created by the General Assembly of Georgia, the land lots of the whole area of five sections as subdivided into sections, land districts and land lots, were distributed by lottery to the citizens of the organized counties of Georgia. The only qualifications for eligibility were three years residence in the state; but revolutionary soldiers and those who served in the Indian wars, as well as widows of such soldiers, were entitled to an extra free draw in the land lottery of 1825.

ORIGINAL GRANTEES. The land lots were distributed by lottery to the citizens of other older counties, and nearly all of the whole lots were so distributed. The whole lots contained $202\frac{1}{2}$ acres. The undistributed lots and the fractional lots were sold by the state afterwards, some as late as 1850. Some of these original grants were afterwards declared fraudulent by the courts, and the original grant canceled and the lots resold.

The lot numbers followed by an asterisk () are fractional lots of less acreage than those unmarked; those followed by a dagger (†) are not wholly in Troup County; the county from which registrations were made is the third column; names followed by an asterisk () are revolutionary soldiers or their widows; those followed by a dagger (†) are soldiers of Indian wars or their widows.

CHAPTER IV. BOUNDARIES

THE ACT of the General Assembly of Georgia to organize the territory lately acquired from the Creek Nation was signed by the governor on the 11th day of December, 1826. The territory was that between the Flint (Thronateeska) River and the Chattahoochee River, and extended from the old north line of Early County to the north line of Coweta County. The engineers divided the whole area into sections, which were three land districts or twenty-seven miles from north to south; the sections were numbered from south to north:

Section 1. The southernmost, designated as Lee County.

Section 2. North of Lee County, designated Muscogee County.

Section 3. North of Muscogee County, designated Troup County.

Section 4. The northernmost, designated Coweta County.

Section 5. West of Chattahoochee River, designated Carroll County.

ORIGINAL COUNTY. From the above division it will be seen that the original Troup County was composed of twelve land districts, which were numbered from the southeast corner of the county on the Flint River:

First District.....	156 land lots	Manchester on the western edge.
Second	272	Warm Springs near the center.
Third	289	Durand and Chipley.
Fourth	272	Salem and Pleasant Grove.
Fifth	331	West Point to Pyne.
Sixth	256	LaGrange.
Seventh	256	Mountville and Stovall.
Eighth	256	Greenville.
Ninth	256	Woodbury and Oakland.
Tenth	256	Luthersville.
Eleventh	256	Hogansville and Lone Oak.
Twelfth	290	Harrisonville and Ware Crossroad.

Original County.....3146 land lots and fractions.

Fourteenth	168	Liberty Hill and Houston.
Fifteenth	192	Antioch and Glenn.
Sixteenth	59	West Point and Abbottsford.

3565 land lots.

The last three districts were transferred from Carroll County in 1827.

BOUNDARY CHANGES. The first change in the bounds of Troup County was made on December 24, 1827, at which time parts of the county were transferred to Harris, Talbot and Meriwether counties; and the three districts of Carroll County west of the Chattahoochee River on southern end of the county were transferred to Troup: 14th, 15th and 16th.

The county of Heard was created on December 22, 1830, and a portion of Troup County in the general shape of a triangle was transferred to Heard County, leaving only four and one-half miles of the original county boundary on the north side, and adjacent to Coweta County.

The following minor changes of addition and subtraction were made as indicated below:

February 17, 1854, the north half of land lot 108 of the 5th district transferred to Troup.

March 1, 1856, land lot 73 of 14th district, partly in Heard, transferred as a whole to Troup.

March 4, 1856, land lots 62, 63, 64, 51, 52, and 39 of 14th district transferred to Troup.

February 20, 1877, land lots 37 and 60 of 11th district, the parts north of Yellow Jacket Creek, transferred to Coweta.

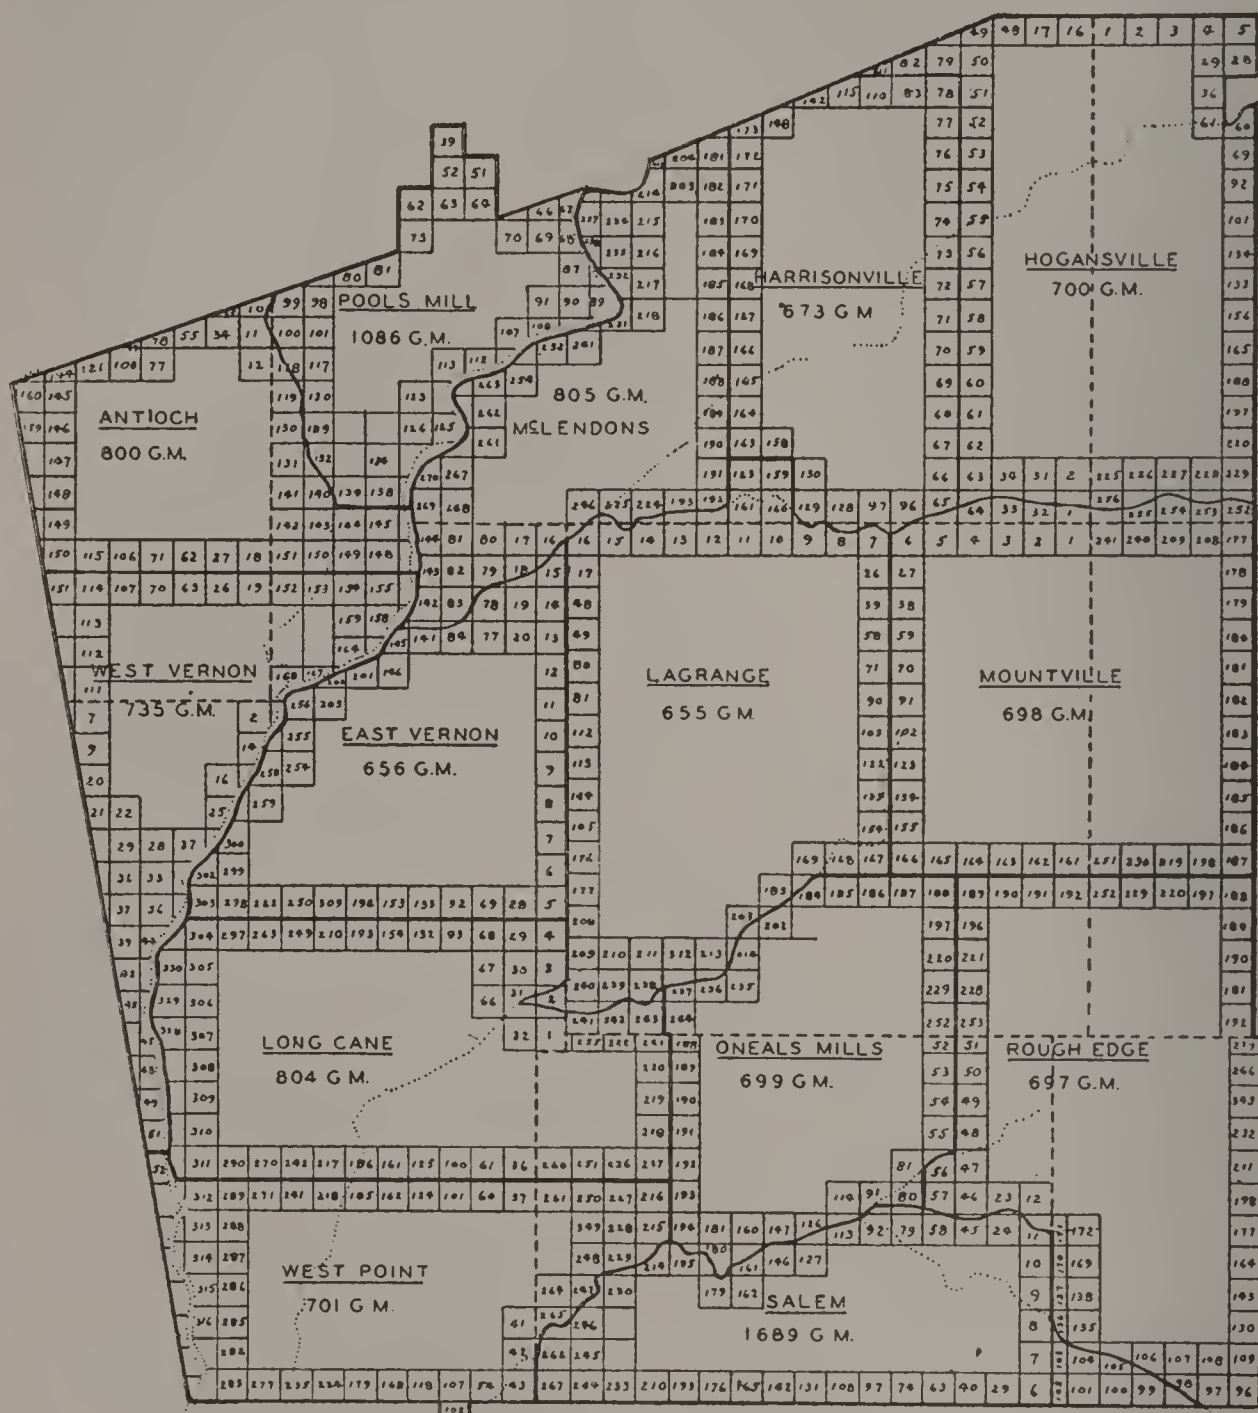

PRESENT BOUNDARY. Noting the indentations of the land lot transfers in the preceding paragraph, the boundary lines of Troup County are as follows: Commencing on the Alabama line at the northwest corner of land lot 160 of 15th district, the boundary is a straight line to the southeast corner of land lot 48 of 14th district on the bank of the Chattahoochee River; thence up the river to the mouth of Potato Creek on the east side of the river in land lot 213 of 12th district; thence in a straight line to the northeast corner of land lot 49 of 12th district (southeast corner of land lot 120 of 3rd district of Coweta County); thence east to northeast corner of land lot 5 of 11th district; thence south on the land lot lines to southeast corner of land lot 96 of 3rd district (there is an eastward offset on the line between the 7th and the 3rd districts of about 600 feet); thence westward on land lot lines to the Chattahoochee River at West Point; thence northerly on the Alabama line to the point of beginning in the 15th district.

PRESENT DISTRICTS. The above-mentioned changes in the boundaries of Troup County left in the present county the following land districts and land lots; the fractions in the 3rd and the 4th districts were due to errors of the engineers and are rectangular in shape; the other fractions are due to the curvature of the Chattahoochee River and the oblique direction of the Alabama line:

DISTRICTS	WHOLE LOTS	FRACTIONS	TOTAL
Third	66	18	84
Fourth	176	16	192
Fifth	254	35	289
Sixth	256	0	256
Seventh	80	0	80
Eleventh	78	2	80
Twelfth	218	34	252
Fourteenth	80	35	115
Fifteenth	72	19	91
Sixteenth	20	39	59
Total	1300	198	1498

MILITIA DISTRICTS. In the original plan of military organization of Georgia in operation when Troup County was created, the counties were divided into militia districts, each of which was required to have two hundred or more men capable of bearing arms and to have a militia muster at least annually for military training. Many of them mustered quarterly for such drills. New districts were permitted only when the population of districts increased to such an extent that the formation of the new districts would not deplete the old districts below the minimum of two hundred. The formation of new districts was granted from the office of the secretary of state of Georgia, and they were numbered by that office in the order of creation throughout the state. Hence the smaller numbers are the oldest districts. The first three were formed in 1826 or 1827. The following are the present districts, the boundaries of which may be seen on the accompanying map of the districts, Georgia Militia Districts, (usually abbreviated G. M. D.) with the names and numbers.

- 655 LaGrange.
- 656 East Vernon.
- 673 Harrisonville.
- 697 Rough Edge, formerly Pleasant Hill.
- 698 Mountville.
- 699 O'Neal's Mill.
- 700 Hogansville.
- 701 West Point.
- 735 West Vernon.
- 800 Antioch.
- 804 Long Cane.
- 805 McLendon's.
- 1086 Pool's Mill, created May, 1853.
- 1689 Salem, created April, 1910.

The names of these districts are suggested by the muster locality in all the districts but that of Rough Edge. The original name of this district was Pleasant Hill. In this district the momentous question of building the little courtroom, a small building about sixteen by twenty feet in dimensions, and the cost of lumber wherewith to build, were serious political questions. After the decision to build was reached, it was decided to submit to the voters the difference in cost of building the house with "Square Edge" or "Rough Edge" lumber. The election was ordered and "Rough Edge" carried a majority of the votes, and gave the new name of Rough Edge to the old Pleasant Hill district.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS. The school districts of Troup County as adopted by the Troup County Board of Education on December 19, 1930, are shown on the accompanying school district map. There are eleven school districts in the county in addition to the city systems of Hogansville, LaGrange and West Point, which are independent of the county system.

The names and general location of these districts and the independent systems are listed below:

Abbottsford, west of Chattahoochee River.

Antioch, most of the fourteenth and fifteenth districts.

Center, school located on highway number fourteen.

Gray Hill, school on road from West Point to Hardin Crossroad.

Hillcrest, school on highway number one towards Franklin.

Hogansville, territory adjacent but not in Hogansville.

Mountville, adjacent territory including the town.

Rosemont, Pleasant Grove and Big Springs.

Salem, the southern part of county.

Tatum, territory due west of LaGrange.

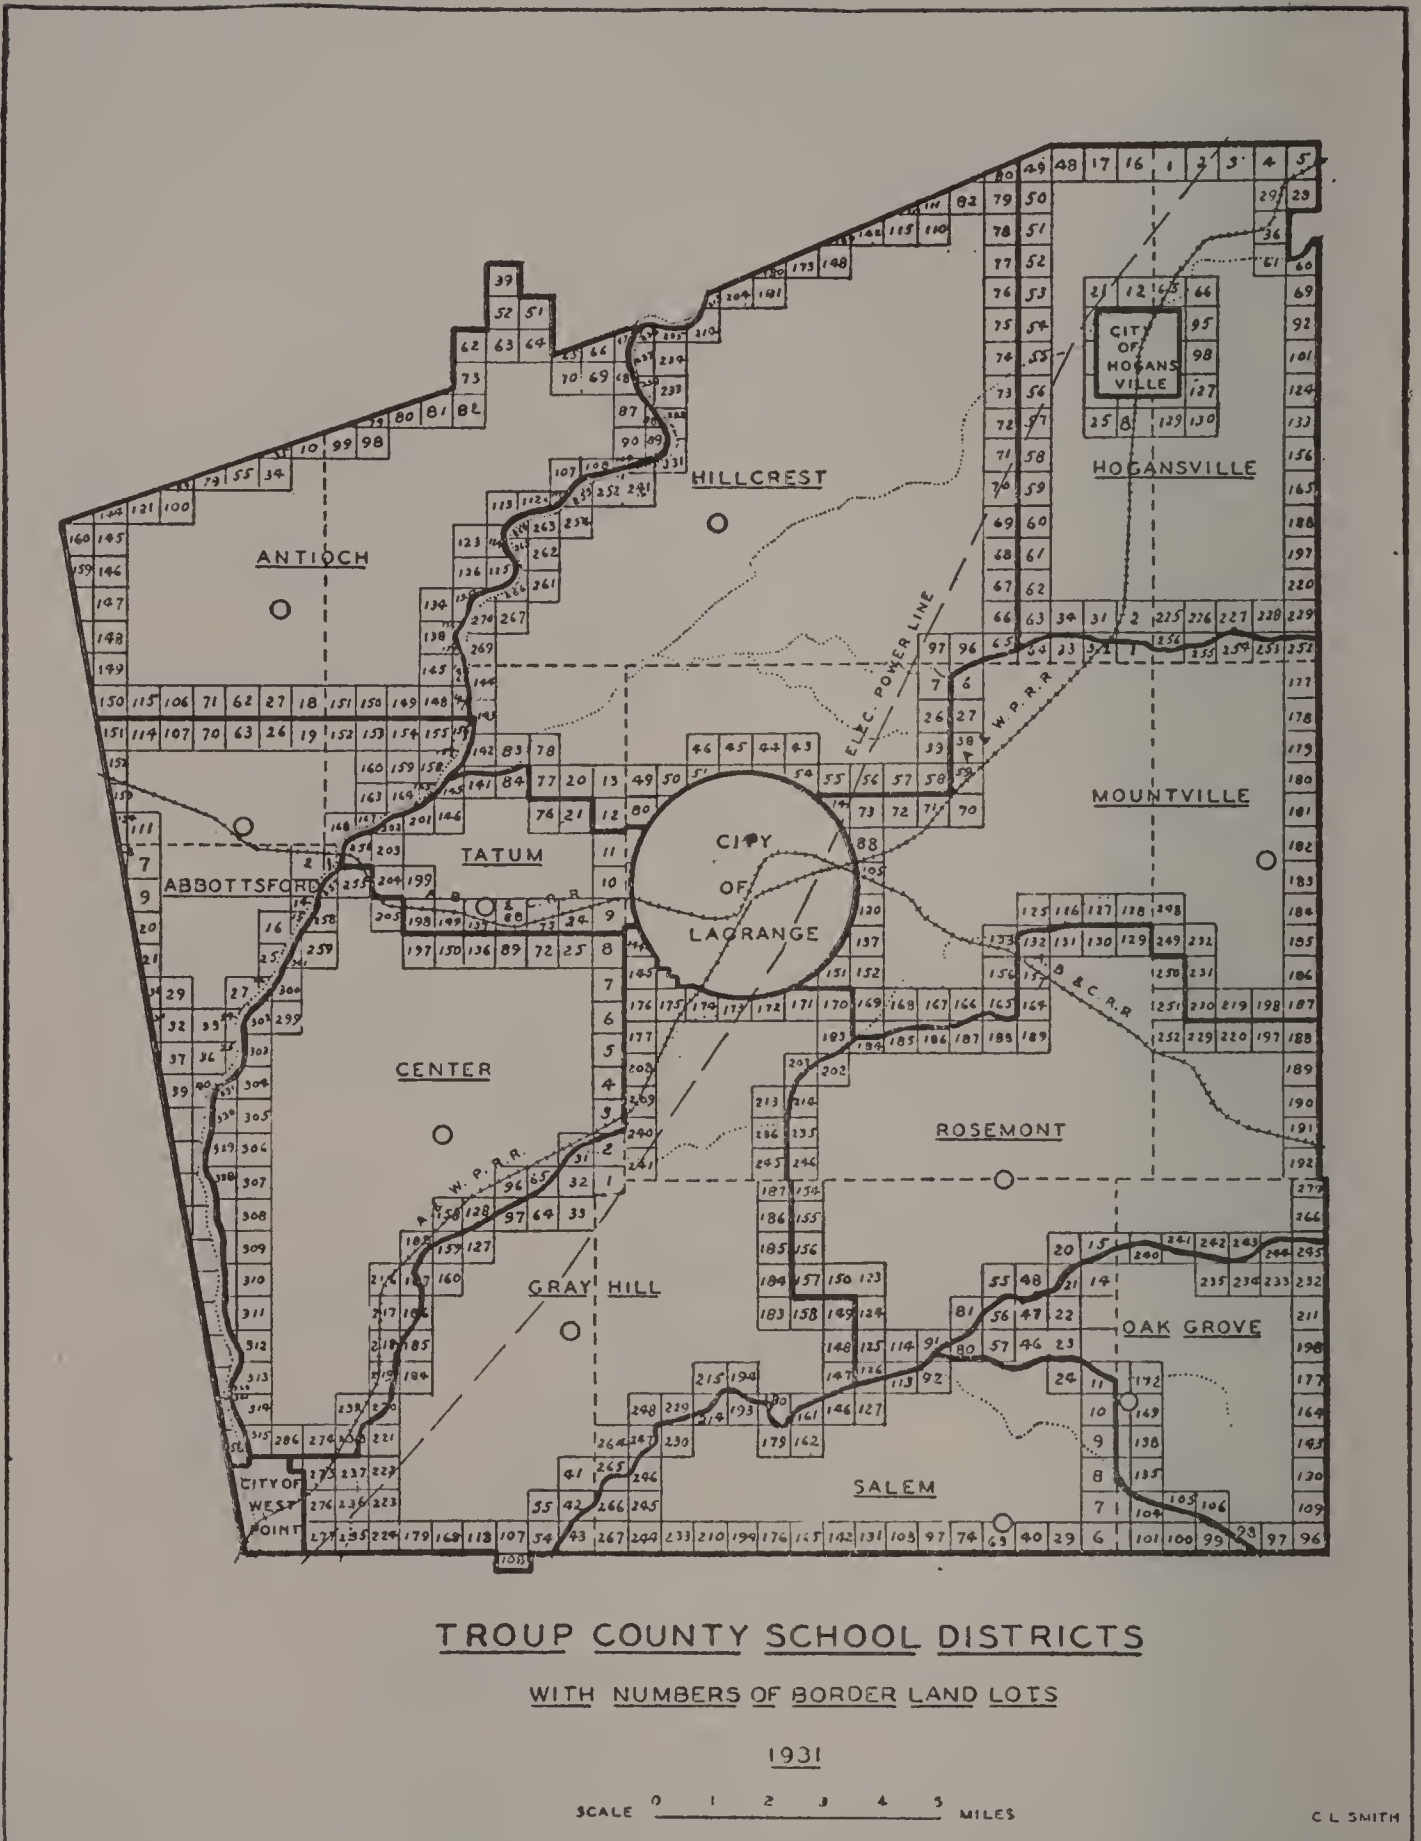

City of Hogansville.

City of LaGrange.

City of West Point.

School District Boundaries

ABBOTTSFORD. Commencing at the northwest corner of land lot 151 in the 15th district on the Alabama state line, thence east on land lot lines to the east bank of the Chattahoochee River; thence southerly on the east bank of the river to the south line of land lot 56 in the 16th district; thence west to the Alabama line; thence northward on the Alabama line to the point of beginning.

ANTIOCH. Commencing at the northwest corner of land lot 160 in the 15th district on the Alabama state line, thence easterly on the Heard County line to the west bank of the Chattahoochee River; thence southerly on the west bank of the river to the southeast corner of land lot 147 in the 14th district; thence west on land lot lines to the southwest corner of land lot 150 in the 15th district on the Alabama line; thence northerly on the Alabama state line to the point of beginning.

CENTER. All portions of this district are in the 5th district: commencing at the northwest corner of land lot 255 on the east bank of the Chattahoochee River; thence east and south to the southeast corner of the said land lot 255; thence east to northeast corner of land lot 8 on the 5th district line; thence south on the district line to Blue John creek in land lot 3; thence down Blue John creek to Long Cane creek and down Long Cane creek to south line of land lot 238; thence west on land lot lines to the east bank of the Chattahoochee River; thence northerly up the east bank of the river to the point of beginning.

GRAY HILL. Commencing at the northwest corner of land lot 144 in the 6th district, thence east to the city limits of LaGrange; thence easterly on the city limits to the north line of land lot 171 in the 6th district; thence east to the northeast corner of land lot 170 in the 6th district; thence south on land lot lines to Long Cane creek; thence southerly down said creek to the east line of land lot 236 in the 6th district; thence south on the land lot lines to the southeast corner of land lot 184 in the 4th district; thence east to the northeast corner of land lot 149 in the 4th district; thence south on land lot lines to Flat Shoals creek; thence southerly down Flat Shoals creek to Harris County line; thence west on the county line to city limits of West Point; thence northerly on the city limits to south line of Center School district; thence east and northerly on Center School district lines to the point of beginning.

HILLCREST. Commencing at the northwest corner of land lot 236 in the 12th district on the east bank of the Chattahoochee River, thence up the river to the Heard County line; then easterly on the Heard County line to the east line of land lot 80 in the 12th district; thence south on the land lot lines to Beech creek; thence westerly down said creek to the east line of land lot 7 in the sixth district; thence south to the southeast corner of land lot 58 in the 6th district; thence west to the city limits of LaGrange; thence westerly on the city limits to the south line of land lot 80 in the 6th district; thence west on the south lines of land lots 80 in the 6th district and 12 in the 5th district to the southwest corner of land lot 12; thence to northwest corner of land lot 12; thence west to the southwest corner of land lot 77 in the 5th district; thence to northwest corner of land lot 77; thence west to Yellow Jacket creek and westerly down the creek to the Chattahoochee River; thence northerly up the Chattahoochee River to the point of beginning.

HOGANSVILLE. Commencing on the west line of land lot 49 in the 12th district, thence easterly on the county line to northeast corner of the county; thence southerly on the Coweta and Meriwether county lines to Beech creek; thence westerly down said creek to east line of Hillcrest School district; thence north on land lot lines to the point of beginning.

MOUNTVILLE. Commencing on the west line of land lot 6 in the 6th district on Beech creek, thence easterly up said creek to the Meriwether County line; thence south on the county line to the southeast corner of land lot 187 of 7th district; thence west to southwest corner of land lot 230 of 7th district; thence north to southeast corner of land lot 249; thence west and north to the northwest corner of land lot 249; thence west on land lot lines to Long Cane creek and westerly down said creek to the east line of land lot 133 in the 6th district; thence south on land lot lines to a branch on the east line of land lot 188 in the 6th district; thence westerly down said branch and Long Cane creek to the west line of land lot 184 in the 6th district; thence north to southeast corner of land lot 151 in the 6th district; thence west to the city limits of LaGrange; thence northerly on the city limits to the north line of land lot 74 in the 6th district; thence east to the northeast corner of land lot 71 in the 6th district; thence north on land lot lines to the point of beginning.

OAK GROVE. Commencing at junction of Flat Shoals and Polecat creeks, in land lot 91 in the 4th district, thence easterly up Flat Shoals creek to Sulphur creek and up Sulphur creek to the Meriwether County line; thence south to southeast corner of Troup County; thence west to Turkey creek; thence westerly down Turkey creek to west line of land lot 136 in the 3rd district; thence north to Polecat creek; thence westerly down the said Polecat creek to the point of beginning.

ROSEMONT. Commencing on Long Cane creek on the west line of land lot 184 in the 6th district, thence easterly up the creek and the south side of the Mountville school district to the Meriwether County line; thence south on the county line to Sulphur creek; thence westerly down Sulphur and Flat Shoals creeks to west line of land lot 126 in the 4th district; thence northerly on Gray Hill lines to the point of beginning.

SALEM. Commencing on Harris County line on the south line of land lot 54 in the 5th district on Flat Shoals creek; thence northerly, easterly, following the bounds of Gray Hill, Rosemont, and Oak Grove back to the Harris County line; thence west on county line to point of beginning.

TATUM. Commencing at the confluence of Yellow Jacket creek and the Chattahoochee River, thence eastward on the Hillcrest district lines to the city limits of LaGrange; thence southward on the city limits to the Gray Hill district lines; thence westward on the Gray Hill and the Center district lines to the Chattahoochee River; thence northward up the river to the point of beginning.

CITY OF HOGANSVILLE. Measuring from the central point of the railroad right of way and the middle point of Main Street, a distance of three-fourths of a mile in an east, a south and a west direction, and seven-tenths of a mile in a north direction, the limits are in the form of a rectangle of 1.50 miles from east to west, and 1.45 miles from north to south. The city is located partly in the 11th and partly in the 12th land districts.

CITY OF LAGRANGE. The city limits of LaGrange are circular in form with some small projections beyond the circle in land lot 146. It is entirely within the 6th land district. The radius of the circle is two miles in length, and the center is the central point of Court Square, which is 665 feet from the south side and 865 from the east side of land lot 109 in the 6th district.

CITY OF WEST POINT. The bounds of the city of West Point are land lot lines except in the northeast corner of the city. The following land lots and fractions are east of the Chattahoochee River: 283, 284, all of 285 except the northeast quarter, 316, 317 and 318, all of which are in the 5th district. On the west side of the river, the fractional land lots 57, 58, and 59 in the 16th district of former Carroll County.

CHAPTER V. ORGANIZATION

THE FIRST step in the organization of the territory acquired from the Creek Nation was the creation of counties from the area lying between the Flint and the Chattahoochee rivers, and west of the Chattahoochee, and the following is quoted from the Act of the General Assembly of Georgia:

"That all that part of said territory lying between said rivers, and known as the Third Section, shall form one county to be called 'Troup'

"That on the first Monday in May next (1827), the persons who may be in said counties may meet together and under the superintendence of three freeholders (realty owners), elect the following officers: five Justices of the Inferior Court, Clerk of Superior and Inferior Court, Sheriff, Tax Collector, Tax Receiver, Coroner, and County Surveyor

"That the place of election in the county of Troup shall be at the house of Joseph Weaver." (Excerpts from the Act of December 11, 1826.)

The results of this election as far as could be learned from the records are as follows:

Justices of Inferior Court: Arthur Herring, Levi H. Hussey, Charles L. Kennon, Whitfield H. Sledge and James Taylor.

Clerk of Superior Court: Charles S. H. Goss.

Clerk of Inferior Court: John S. Adams.

Sheriff: Willis Whatley.

County Surveyor: Samuel Reid.

The officers were for the whole original county eastward to the Flint River before any changes in the bounds were made. No record could be found of the election of Tax Collector, Tax Receiver, nor Coroner.

The five new counties, including Troup, were so large that the General Assembly on December 24, 1827, divided them and made new counties, adding the three land districts of Carroll County west of the Chattahoochee (14th, 15th, and 16th) to Troup, forming Meriwether of the east, and contributing a small part of the southern districts of Troup to Harris and Talbot. This necessitated a reorganization of Troup County, because some of the elected officers were no longer citizens of the smaller Troup County.

REORGANIZATION. The reorganization of the county with its new bounds was effected by the General Assembly on December 24, 1827. It was enacted that an election for the county officers be held on the first Monday of February, 1828, at the house of Nicholas Johnson. The plans of organization were enacted in more detail than in the Act of December 11, 1826.

The Justices of the Inferior Court, who functioned as court of the ordinary, and as county commissioners, as well as in their judicial duties, were authorized to purchase a land lot for a county town and to reserve two plats of one acre each for academies and four lots of one acre each for religious purposes, and it was enacted that the Inferior Court execute titles to each of the religious denominations for one of the lots thus reserved. They were also instructed to proceed to select Grand and Petit juries agreeable to the law in force.

MILITIA DISTRICTS. The Justices were instructed that as soon as practicable to lay off the county into captains districts, or militia districts, and to advertise, giving fifteen days notice, and one or more of them attend, the election of two Justices of the Peace in each district. The Justices of the Peace so elected shall advertise the election of the militia subaltern officers, and the captains so elected shall as soon as practicable make a roster of persons liable to militia duty, and return the same to the Inferior Court.

COUNTY TOWN. The selection of a location for the county town, or county seat, was the most difficult task allotted to the Inferior Court, due to the keen rivalry between two communities of the new county, one faction espousing the cause of the unborn city of Vernon on the banks of the Chattahoochee, which had been laid off as a city in anticipation of the favorable action of the court, and in which many lots were sold; the other faction a more eastern situation further removed from Indian molestation, about half way between the present LaGrange and Mountville. The final selection was a compromise and the county town was located about half way between the two factional sites, and thus expired the city of Vernon, whose name is kept alive by the two militia districts of East and West Vernon; so the county town was located in land lot 109 of the Sixth district and was named LaGrange, and had as original bounds the following: north line, Bacon Street, north of Hillview cemetery; east line, 200 feet east of Morgan Street; south line, the south side of Broome Street; west line, the eastern bounds of McLendon property, about one hundred yards west of Gordon Street. The further transactions of the Inferior Court in reference to LaGrange will be treated under the chapter of towns and cities.

INFERIOR COURT. The functions of the Inferior Court as ordinary were replaced in 1852 by the election of an Ordinary. The judicial functions were delegated to the various justices of the peace in 1872. Their remaining function as county commissioners was abolished in 1876, on the 28th of February, when the Board of County Commissioners was created, and their election by the grand jury enacted. The roster of the Judges of the Inferior Court will be found in the chapter on Courts.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE. The original design of these officers was to provide a tribunal, which had the powers of a grand jury in determining the culpability of an alleged criminal, and of ordering the arrest, or discharge any person arrested on warrants sworn out by citizens after hearing the evidence; thus, they had the power of preventing the unjust incarceration of innocent persons to await a regular session of court.

Their powers and functions have been changed from time to time, but they have always had jurisdiction over disputes about petty accounts of small sums, garnishments, and peace warrants. The decisions of the justice of the peace court, whether made by the justice or by the jury of five, were subject to appeal to a higher court, the loser to pay all costs of such appeal.

The income of the office is dependent on fees, and the patronage is largely governed by the confidence of the public in the integrity of the officer. During the reconstruction period of our history after the Civil War, the income became practically nothing, in consequence of the powers conferred on notaries public, who were ex-officio justices of the peace. Further discussion of these justices will be made in the chapter on the Courts of Troup County.

It has been found that it is impossible to give a complete roster of these officers, because the lack of records forbids.

NOTARIES PUBLIC. A notary public is an officer commissioned now by our Superior Courts, who attests the authenticity of documents and signatures. During the reconstruction period following the Civil War, the General Assembly of Georgia conferred on grand juries the power of election of certain notaries public as ex-officio justices of the peace, since the justices were elected by the people, and since so many citizens were disenfranchised by the Federal government, it was feared that incapable and unscrupulous officers would be elected by the newly enfranchised negro voters; so this provision was made for a judiciary to settle minor disputes without recourse to the harsher rulings of military court.

CITY AND COUNTY COURTS. There were numerous experiments in the courts of the county with changes in jurisdiction and procedure from county court to city court. The abolishment of all courts except that of the justices of the peace. Then again the establishment of the present City Court of Troup County. These will be treated in the chapter on Courts of Troup County.

CHAPTER VI. TROUP COUNTY COURTS

SUPREME COURT. The Supreme Court of Georgia was created by the General Assembly of Georgia in the session of 1845, under which act the state was divided into five judicial circuits. The district in which our courts and their decisions were reviewed was the Third District, and continued in that district, until the ambulatory character of the court was abolished in 1868.

SUPERIOR COURT. The Superior Court of Troup County, the tribunal which had the highest jurisdiction in the county, including the trial of every form of civil and criminal wrongdoing, the review of appeals from the inferior courts, and the control of all county activities, was shifted from circuit to circuit in the arrangement of the gradually increasing business. The original number of circuits was eleven, and the present number is thirty-three.

JUDGES OF SUPERIOR COURT. The following is the roster of the judges of the Superior Court in the circuits named above, and includes many names well known in Georgia legal lore:

1826-32 Walter T. Colquitt
1833-40 Hiram Warner
1841-44 William Ezzard
1845-53 Edward Young Hill
1854-55 Obediah Warner
1855-61 Orville A. Bull
1864-65 Benjamin H. Bigham
1866-67 Hiram Warner
1868-69 John Collier
1869-71 John S. Bigby

1871-72 William F. Wright
1872-80 Hugh Buchanan
1881-82 Francis M. Longley
1882-03 Sampson W. Harris
1903-04 Thomas A. Atkinson
1904-16 Robert W. Freeman
1917-20 J. Render Terrell
1921-30 Charles E. Roop
1931— Lee B. Wyatt

In the above roster the names of Edward Young Hill, Orville A. Bull, Benjamin H. Bigham, Francis M. Longley, Thomas A. Atkinson, and Lee B. Wyatt, indicated by italic type, are or were citizens of Troup.

SOLICITORS GENERAL. The roster of Solicitors General of the Superior Court of Troup County contains many names of brilliant legal lights. Those who lived in Troup County are indicated by italic type:

1826-29 Samuel A. Bailey
1829-32 John W. Hooper
1832-33 James P. H. Campbell
1833-36 Young Y. Long
1836-39 George D. Anderson

1839-42 Noel B. Knight
1842-44 Kinchen L. Haralson
1845-46 Augustus C. Ferrell
1847-48 Dennis F. Hammond
1849-52 Mial M. Tidwell

1853-55	Logan E. Bleckley	1874-76	Thomas W. Latham
1856-60	Herbert Fielder	1877-82	Sampson W. Harris
1861-63	M. Kendrick	1882-90	Harry M. Reid
1864-65	Joseph A. Glanche	1891-03	Thomas A. Atkinson
1865-66	C. T. Forsyth	1903-16	J. Render Terrell
1867-68	John S. Bigby	1917-20	Charles E. Roop
1869-71	William A. Adams	1921—	William Y. Atkinson
1872-73	Albert H. Cox

CLERKS OF SUPERIOR COURT. The clerk is strictly speaking a county officer, being the recording officer of the courts, and also of the county records of deeds, mortgages, and charters. The roster follows:

1827-35	N. Johnson	1866-75	R. S. McFarlin
1835-42	Robert F. McGehee	1875-81	John W. Sledge
1842-48	Moses Lee	1881-87	John Edward Toole
1848-50	H. B. Williams	1887-96	E. T. Winn
1850-62	William M. Latimer	1896-14	William L. Cleaveland
1862-66	John F. Awtrey	1914—	G. Thomas Traylor

SHERIFFS OF TROUP COUNTY. The sheriff, or his deputy, is required to be present at sessions of Superior and County courts to receive the mandates of the court in reference to any prisoner arraigned, and to serve subpoenas and the like. The following is the roster:

1827	Willis Whatley	1862-66	William H. Cooper
1828-29	Daniel S. Robertson	1866-69	Jarrell O. Towns
1830-31	Willis Whatley	1869-75	Thomas C. Miller
1832-33	Daniel S. Robertson	1876-84	William G. S. Martin
1834-35	John Arnold	1885-91	E. B. Edmondson
1836-37	Daniel S. Robertson	1891-98	Edward M. Henderson
1838-39	Samuel J. Thompson	1898-04	H. N. Brady
1840-46	Henry Faver	1904-06	W. T. Birdsong
1847-49	Jonathan Taylor	1906-14	Oscar H. Florence
1850-51	Alphonse Hemphill	1914-17	W. B. Shirey
1852-53	Thomas Davis	1917-20	Samuel A. Smith
1854-55	R. F. Maddox	1920-24	John F. Carley
1856-57	Waters B. Jones	1924—	H. N. Brady
1858-61	Thomas C. Miller

37TH DISTRICT COURT. Among the short-lived experiments in court procedures was the establishment of the 37th District Court by the General Assembly in 1870. It was abolished by the same body in the year 1871; therefore, the personnel of officers is limited to one: J. H. Caldwell, judge; Thomas H. Whitaker, solicitor-general; R. S. McFarlin, clerk.

COUNTY COURT. From the organization of the county until 1866, the Inferior Court filled the needs of a county court, and in that year a county court was established and continued until October 26, 1870; the district court above mentioned replaced the functions of the county court by its quarterly sessions until 1872. The justices of the peace of the county were clothed with the powers of a county court on August 23, 1872, but after four years of trial of this plan, and in response to the criticisms of the bar, the county court was again created on February 23, 1876, and continued until the establishment of the present City Court of Troup County, created on December 19, 1899. Thus it will be seen that our county had several experiments in court procedure with a very variable jurisdiction in both civil and criminal suits. First, Inferior Court, 1827-66; County Court, 1866-70; 37th District Court, 1870-71; Justice Courts, 1872-76; County Court, 1876-99; City Court, 1900 to date.

INFERIOR COURT. In the early history of Troup County the judges of the Inferior Court were important factors in the organization and the development of the county. For a long time their duties were three-fold in character: First, as county commissioners to plan the county town, to authorize the passage of roads, to oversee the construction of bridges, to fix rates of taxation and license for the county, and to purchase the necessary supplies for the use of the county; second, as a court of ordinary, to probate wills, to appoint guardians and administrators, to approve the care of orphans and the mentally incompetent; third, as a court of justice, to hear all cases involving controversy of debt, to try criminal cases not involving capital punishment.

This court was composed of five justices, and the presence of three constituted a quorum for the transaction of business, yet the records frequently show the attendance of the full court of five. The records of each function of the court were kept in separate books and the minutes always were preceded by the phrases: "The Inferior Court convened for county purposes" or "for ordinary purposes." The functions as ordinary ceased in July, 1852, when the Ordinary was made an official of the county. Their functions as a court of justice ceased with the establishment of the County Court in 1866. The Inferior Court was shorn of all its duties by the creation of County Commissioners on February 28, 1876. The court was formally abolished on February 27, 1877. The following roster of the judges of this court is given below:

JUSTICE COURT. The courts of the Justice of Peace in our county history were unique in their operation; the rules of procedure unless set forth in "the Code" were in accordance with the pleasure of the incumbent judge.

*Those so marked were judges in the county before it was subdivided, in December, 1827.

At the request of the litigants in any case, a jury of five could be summoned to decide the facts in the case, increasing the costs in the case by $1.25, for the jurors always received "two bits" for each case decided; in case no jury was demanded, the justice decided the facts in the case. The rugged justice meted out by the old time justices could always be recognized as just, whether legal or not, and technicalities seldom were allowed to interfere with the decisions of the court, and flimsy excuses for continuance were never recognized. The greatest abomination of the old country justices was for city lawyers and Supreme Court decisions, and in the arguments before the justices by the lawyers the paragraph of the code of Georgia carried more weight than the most profound interpretation of any legal authority.

On one occasion two lawyers met to represent opposing sides of some controversy in a justice court, the facts were admitted and there was no recourse to a jury. The justice listened carefully to the recital of the facts, and followed the citation of code paragraphs by turning to each as fast as they were mentioned. One of the lawyers rose to argue the case and talked for a few minutes, the justice in the meanwhile squirmed on his seat, and then interrupted the lawyer and said, "Well, gentlemen, it looks like it is going to rain, and I want to go home and plant some turnips, and when you two have finished your arguments, you will find my decision written here in the book." Needless to say the arguments closed at once.

The question of costs of the case, the only income of the justice, were some times confusing and difficult of placing in an unsettled case, or in case of appeal to a higher court. Many of the old timers will remember the decision of the justice in one such case of controversy over the ownership of a cow to which both claimants had some rights. His decision was that "the costs follow the cow."

But when all is said and done, a tribute is due to these honest old pioneers of the law for their unfailing honesty and integrity in maintaining the power and majesty of the law under the most trying circumstances.

COURT OF ORDINARY. The Court of Ordinary has jurisdiction over the probation of wills, the returns of executors, administrators and guardians, and is the tribunal for the determination of lunacy, and also the authority for the issuance of marriage licenses. The pensions for Confederate soldiers with their attendant records form a division of the office. Since 1884 the county officers take their oath of office before the ordinary, who records the oath in the minutes. The functions of this office were formerly lodged in the judges of the Inferior Court, but in 1852, a special county officer was designated to care for this part of the Inferior Court. The roster of the ordinaries in consequence commence with 1852:

1852-56	Wiley H. Sims	1873-77	Littleton Pitts
1856-58	Thomas C. Evans	1877-88	William C. Yancey
1858-64	Samuel Curtright	1888-93	Robert M. Young
1864	James Turner	1893-01	John B. Strong
1864-68	Littleton Pitts	1901-25	Henry T. Woodyard
1868-72	Henry H. Cary	1925—	J. Forest Johnson

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS. The functions of the County Commissioners were formerly vested in the Inferior Court. The change was made by the creation of a Board of Commissioners on February 28, 1876, elective by the Grand Jury, and afterward in 1895 made elective by the voters. The functions of the Commissioners are the control of the county convicts, the supervision of the roads and bridges, the management of the county finances, and the fixing of the tax rate for county purposes. The following constitutes the roster:

1876-78	John F. Awtrey	1905-06	Benjamin F. Carter
1876-78	J. W. Birdsong	1905-06	Virgil E. Dallis
1876-78	Dr. B. C. Cook	1905-06	C. D. Philpot

CHAPTER VII. MUNICIPALITIES

LAGRANGE. *"Toward the western border line,
Near Chattahoochee's silver stream,
Where groves of maple, oak and pine
Drive off the sun's too garish beam,
A village sits, amid classic shades."*

—E. Y. HILL from his poem "Georgia."

MANY dramatic incidents are to be found in the interesting story of the settlement and organization of the cities and villages of western Georgia. At times the action of this story is swift and breath-taking, epic in form, depicting the hardships and fierce struggles, also the high courage and valor of the early settlers. With the passage of the years the movement of the story changes to a slower tempo, characteristic of a pastoral life. A lyric and romantic theme predominates for a while, but again the epic intrudes, and stark tragedy and black distress are woven into the plot.

The scene shifts, passing over the years of reconstruction with their sorrow and bitterness, hardship and struggle, and the same valorous courage, but with a loss of adventure which thrilled their forefathers, and ushers in a theme of machinery and expansion. While the whirring of machines may not prove so intriguing as the music and romance of the old South, nor as gripping as the clash of swords, yet this action has a thrilling interest, which keeps its readers on the alert for the climax.

As a prologue to this story, may be heard the cries of downtrodden human beings, who have suffered injustice and degradation through the centuries, pleading for justice and equality and a right to worship God, each in his own way. As happens in most crises, the desperate need gives birth to a hero who seizes the opportunity for the salvation of human privileges and rights. In this story the hero is General James Edward Oglethorpe, whose work in behalf of insolvent debtors and oppressed Protestants, leads him to bring a colony to Georgia in 1733. During these years before our own Troup County motif is heard, the ring of the axe through the forest and the tramp of frontiersmen coming ever nearer furnish the theme.

In 1825 the Indian Springs treaty was made whereby Georgia secured from the Creek Indians the vast tract of land lying between the Flint and the Chattahoochee rivers. Troup County, one of the five made from this territory was opened for settlement in 1827. Many stories had gone into Greene, Wilkes, and other older counties, of the fertile soil, the virgin forests, the wild game, and the friendly Indians, so many settlers traveled by wagon, or on foot, into this new country, and came into possession of land by a lottery grant, or by purchase from some fortunate grantee.

These early pioneers began building sturdy log houses, cutting the logs from the forest and hewing them with a broad axe. Some of these early houses were built with lofts reached by ladders in order that the women and children could escape from wolves while the men were working in the fields and forests. These early settlers were soon joined by other pioneers, many from Virginia and the Carolinas, for after the Revolution many pioneers were seeking land grants, wherever they could be obtained.

From September of 1824 to December of 1825, LaFayette was a guest of the American nation, and during this time for two weeks he was the guest of our Governor Troup of Georgia. So great was the appreciation of his services to the nation and the admiration of his ideals, that when this small settlement decided to incorporate the community, in a town meeting called for the purpose of naming the town on motion of Julius C. Alford, it was named by a unanimous vote LaGrange, in honor of the estate of LaFayette in France.

The selection of the site for the county town, or county seat, devolved upon the five judges of the Inferior Court: James Culberson, Samuel Reid, James Maddux, John E. Gage, and Whitfield H. Sledge. Samuel Reid, who lived near Whitfield Crossing, favored a site near Mountville; John E. Gage, who was interested in the promotion of the town of Vernon on the banks of the Chattahoochee River, favored Vernon as the county town. The Inferior Court being unable to agree on either site finally agreed to place the county town about half way between the two contesting communities, and the final selection was land lot 109 in the 6th land district. This lot was drawn in the state lottery at Milledgeville by Bailey Reed, a citizen of Oglethorpe County, on May 21, 1827, who sold the lot to Buckner Beasley for $300.00 on February 15, 1828, and Beasley in turn sold it to John Pinckard for $500.00 on February 28, 1828, and Pinckard sold it to the Inferior Court of Troup County for $1,350.00 on March 5, 1828.

LaGrange was incorporated on December 16, 1828, and in the same Act of the legislature was created the county seat of Troup County. R. A. Lane, James Simmons, John Herring, Dow Perry, and Howell Jenkins were appointed as commissioners of the town. In 1852 the addition of an Intendant, or mayor, was made, and the number of commissioners reduced to four besides the Intendant. The duties of this body were to enact laws for the town government, and they were empowered to restrict, prohibit, or regulate the sale and distribution of all distilled spiritous and intoxicating liquors within the corporate limits of LaGrange; they were also to prescribe the penalties for the disobedience of any laws of the town.

LaGrange, being the county town, was the scene of the first Superior Court, which was held in a log house on the site of what is now known as the Graves Swanson place. Judge Walter T. Colquitt presided over the court, Noah Johnson was the clerk, and Daniel S. Robertson was the sheriff.

In 1829-30 the court house was built in the center of the present Court Square, and the business part of the town was built on the four sides of the square. Among the early citizens, who carried on their business in small wooden stores and offices, are found the following names: John E. Morgan, James and William Redd, Sampson Duggar, Rufus Broome, Fears and Saffold, James M. Beall, Amos J. Persons, Joseph Poythress, Bennett M. Ware, Samuel A. Bailey, Evans and Thompson, Wood and Harvey, Bogart and Forbes, Walker and Smith, Collin Rogers, Lewis Hines, John B. Strong, W. C. Thomas, and many others whose names have vanished. The first blacksmith shop was owned and operated by John (Jack) B. Strong, a great uncle of Mrs. R. H. Park, and his family lived in one of the first frame houses of the town, situated where the present Colonial Hotel now stands. Another of the early frame houses was that of James Turner, the grandfather of Mrs. John D. Faver, and the same old house is now used as the home of the nurses of Dunson Hospital.

From the Indians who lived across the Chattahoochee, these earliest settlers bought corn, peas, chickens and eggs. The Indians usually were friendly and would often come into the homes of the settlers and ask for food, offering baskets and moccasins for sale. However, sometimes they were rude and had to be driven from the homes. While the cession of the territory by the Creeks included the provision for transportation of the Indians to some place beyond the Mississippi, many of the dissatisfied and rebellious braves gathered beyond the Chattahoochee, and lived by pillaging from the nearest settlers. This pillaging and the stealing of cattle by the Indians became so intolerable, that the settlers after one particularly vicious raid, pursued them across the river and burned their village. In the chapter on Troup County Military will be found the story of the "Burnt Village," taken from White's Historical Recollections.

According to John T. Rutledge, who spent his boyhood days in this community, one of the interesting diversions of the time was that of deer hunting. The hunters started the dogs in the Tanyard branch swamp (junction of Hill and Greenville streets to the south), and the dogs pursued the deer across the present Court Square towards the McLendon branch north of town and then on towards Yellow Jacket Creek, the hunters shooting them from the various stands. One of these stands was situated at the southwest corner of Court Square, where the A. & P. store is located. Mr. Rutledge related that he had often seen as many as sixteen deer passing this point.

Many of the pioneers from the earlier settlements were people of education and property, and they brought with them into this wilderness, tools, cattle, slaves and household furnishings. Almost immediately they began to plan for schools and churches.

The title to real estate in land lot 109, or the original LaGrange, was vested in the Inferior Court of Troup County on March 5, 1828, and before any property was conveyed by them, a sub-division was made by the county surveyor, Samuel Reid, the grandfather of Mrs. J. B. Strong. While the property may have been bought some time prior to the date of the deeds, the first recorded deed given by the Inferior Court was to Rufus Broome on November 16, 1830, for a portion of the block on the south side of Court Square; the second to James Herring on May 15, 1831, for a portion of the Baptist church block; the first residence deed was issued to William A. Redd, for a part of the middle block north of Haralson Street and on the same day a deed was given to the Baptist and Presbyterian churches for a lot on the west side of Bull Street.

On the west side of the present city in land lot 110, the first sale of the private sub-division made by James S. Park was made to Julius C. Alford on March 13, 1830, for the property of LaGrange College hill, and the second to Gen. Hugh A. Haralson for the present McLendon place on April 1, 1830. In land lot 116, which is south of Broome Street, the property was sub-divided by John E. Gage, and his first recorded sale was to Joseph Poythress on February 5, 1830, for the present post-office lot, and the second to James and William Daniel for another portion of the same block on February 25, 1830. Most of the lots in the residence section of the town were deeded in 1831 and in 1832, and later.

The lot where Hillview Cemetery is now situated, the eastern half of number 21 Commons, and the lot now occupied by John D. Faver at 406 Broad Street, which was the southwest corner of number 11 Commons, were both reserved for school purposes by the Inferior Court in the sub-division, the first named lot for Troup County Academy, and the second for LaGrange Female Academy. The central square was reserved for a court house, and the lot whereon the present city hall stands, number 24 Commons, was reserved for a jail lot by the same officials.

Mrs. M. J. Morgan, who attended the LaGrange Female Academy, then called the Stanley School, related many years ago an occurrence that took place while she was a student there: "There was an Indian alarm, and such a panic, I have never seen before or since. The school was dispersed in all directions; the town in an uproar, horror-stricken, expecting to be massacred by the Indians who were reported to be swooping down upon us. What a merciful providence that arrested the calamity."

Mrs. William H. Cooper, a woman of great culture and piety, taught a small school at her home which was located in a grove in the rear of the Lewis J. Render home. Afterwards she built a small schoolhouse near by. Mrs. Cooper was a Miss Fall and her father was an eminent physician and author of several medical books.

Mrs. Thomas A. Boddie, who was a student of LaGrange College when it was known as Montgomery School, gives us some interesting sidelights on these early times in Miss Belle Boddie's ably edited notes published in the LaGrange Graphic in 1928. The campus on Broad Street was large, and many magnificent forest trees flourished there. The school building was built of wood and was large and rambling. She spoke of the children who accompanied her to school, she and her sister, Anne Elizabeth Smith, and her step-sister, Sarah Stembridge, were joined a little further down the street by Joe and Mary Eliza Colquitt, Achsah Turner, Mary Cade Alford and her sister Margaret, or Pony, Anna Morgan, Ophelia and Elmira Wilkes, and Martha Beall. The Morgan and Wilkes girls had an understanding that when one party went ahead of the other, that party was to place a pebble on General Edward's gate-post. O mores, O tempora. Time passes and the beautiful gates disappear, but the same little human episodes appear throughout history.

The original limits of LaGrange were the bounds of the land lot on which it was located. In 1856 the limits were extended, and were the circle of one mile radius from the center of Court Square. The next change was made on January 1, 1920, and the limits were extended to a two-mile radius and to include all of Southwest LaGrange limits, wherever exceeding the two-mile radius. This added all of the Callaway Mills in the southwestern part of the city, and the Dunson Mills on the eastern side of the city to the corporate limits of LaGrange.

The earliest record of any fire protection was in 1857, when Waters B. Jones, Robert F. Maddox, Friend O. Rogers, Burrell B. Cook, John C. Curtright, Thomas Scott, Albert E. Cox, J. B. Morgan, Morris Berringer, Daniel McMillan, C. D. Burks, and Divany A. Kidd, were chartered by the General Assembly of Georgia, and organized under the name of "The Diligent Firemen" with the usual exemptions from street tax and the like. In 1890 a volunteer fire department was organized under the leadership of Robert J. Guinn, Sr., as chief, and this volunteer organization served the city for several years.

In 1908 a paid fire department was organized with C. W. Corless as the fire chief and a total personnel of three; but the present department consists of fourteen men with modern appliances for fire-fighting, including two 750-gallon pumping engines, one hose and ladder truck, and one chemical engine for oil and gas fires.

In 1887 a street railway was incorporated by F. M. Ridley, J. P. Thornton, F. M. Longley, and G. E. Dallis. The railway was laid from the railroad station to Main Street and to Court Square, thence down Broad Street to the junction of Ben Hill Street. The vehicle of locomotion was a mule-drawn car, which was a great pleasure and convenience to the college girls. On one occasion one of the students entered the car while the driver was absent, probably in a flirtation with some girl. The sagacious mule, deciding that it was time for the return trip, started towards town with the one passenger and no driver. The college hill had not been graded at that time, and as there was no one to apply the brakes, that student had a most thrilling ride, until she and the mule were rescued on Court Square. The street railway was originally intended to extend some distance on the Vernon Road, and make a circuit of the city, but the plan was never completed, and the railroad was later removed to make way for paved streets.

In 1845 the population of LaGrange was about 1500, of which about 500 were whites and about 1000 colored. In 1933 the population has increased to about 21,000. This increase is largely due to the wide expansion of the textile industry. The railroads, the banks, and the newspapers have contributed much to the commercial development of the community.

The steady growth of LaGrange is indicated by the large sums of money spent for building operations. The sum spent for private enterprises, residences, and business buildings, totaled $3,498,000.00 within the last decade. The city of LaGrange has spent more than a million dollars in the improvement of city properties, more than doubling in value the school buildings, and adding to the gas, electric lighting, waterworks system, and the erection of a city hall. LaGrange now has sixteen miles of paving on streets, and one hundred miles of paved sidewalks.

The earliest hostelry of LaGrange, of which there is any record, was the Howard Tavern, which once stood on the site of the First Baptist Church. It was the stage coach stop in LaGrange until 1855, when the church was built. It was operated by Greenberg G. Howard. The LaGrange Hotel was a wooden structure on the east side of Main Street, that was finally razed to make room for brick structures. The New LaGrange Hotel, at one time called Hotel Andrews, was destroyed by fire in 1931, and occupied a place in the same block. It was the principal hotel for many years.

The Park Hotel is the oldest of the present hotels. The interior has been remodeled several times to keep it up to date. The Terrace Hotel, built by R. O. Pharr, and the Colonial Hotel, built by the Misses Young, are all that can be desired in comfort and convenience.

The building trades were ably represented in the early days by Cullen Rogers, James Culberson, Edward Broughton, and Benjamin Cameron; at a later date by H. C. Butler, Pike Brothers, H. W. Caldwell, and the colored contractor, John King; and at the present by Daniel Lumber Company, and Newman Construction Company, and a host of private builders and contractors.

The wholesale grocery business is a more modern development of the LaGrange territory. The Dixie Grocery Company, afterwards Jones-Knight, and the Daniel Grocery Company made ventures in this line. The LaGrange Grocery Company, under the management of Max Hagedorn, and Culpepper and Clark, a firm composed of W. T. Culpepper and Hardy Clark, are the principal factors in this trade at the present.

The Swift Company, which succeeded the Troup Company, are manufacturers of fertilizers, and have a wide field of patronage.

The textile industry is a vital commercial factor of the commerce of LaGrange, and includes the total of 150,000 spindles within the city limits, representing an original investment of more than $15,000,000.00 in addition to their working capital. These plants are the LaGrange Calumet, Dixie, Unity, Elm City, Dunson, Unity Spinning, Hillside, and Oakleaf, and the Valway Rug Mills. With this industry are associated the names of Barnard, Murphy, Truitt, Edmondson, Dunson, and the financial genius Fuller E. Callaway, and many other citizens.

The financial interests of LaGrange were cared for by the First National Bank, afterwards the Bank of LaGrange, and the LaGrange Banking and Trust Company. The present institutions are the LaGrange National Bank, the Industrial Loan and Investment Company, the Home Building and Loan Company, the Franklin Savings and Loan Company, and the Family Finance Company.

The fraternal and social organizations of LaGrange are represented by the Masonic fraternity, the Odd Fellows, the Elks, the Red Men, the Junior Order, the Rotary Club, the Lions Club, the Woman's Club, the Highland Country Club, and a host of smaller organizations.

LaGrange has ever been noted for its sound business interests, its cultural institutions, its shaded streets, its beautiful homes, and its hospitable people. The legacy of its pioneers for probity in every day living, for valor and courage in times of distress, and for the enjoyment of the arts and sciences, is one that is carefully guarded by their descendants. The records prior to 1874 cannot be found, and there is no authentic roster that can be given for officers prior to that time, except the ones mentioned in the text above. The rosters follow:

WEST POINT. The city of West Point was originally an early and important trading post on the east bank of the Chattahoochee and was called Franklin by the early settlers. Some of the earliest settlers were John H. Broadnax, Thomas Coker, William Coker, Joseph and John Williams, John Phipps and A. Cox. In 1829 Phipps, Williams and Cox built the first store at the top of a hill, but moved in 1830 and built a log store on lower ground nearer the river. The principal business at that time was with the Indians, who were thickly settled on the western side of the river. During 1830 and 1831 Littleberry Gresham, John C. Webb, Robert and E. G. Richards, Benjamin Rhodes, H. F. and Thomas Erwin, opened business houses on the east side of the river. Peter Dudley built and kept the first tavern near the old toll bridge. William Coker built the second tavern, and after his time Mrs. Reid kept an excellent tavern on the Schaefer corner.

In 1831 the population of the settlement of Franklin numbered one hundred, and the amount of business was estimated to be from $40,000.00 to $50,000.00, showing a thriving trading center even in those early days. The surrounding country soon became settled with sturdy farmers, who felled forests, built substantial homes, and raised splendid crops from the virgin soil.

The city of West Point was incorporated originally as the town of Franklin on December 26, 1831. Dr. G. W. Hill went to Milledgeville, the capital of the state at that time, for the purpose of furthering the incorporation, and it is believed that he suggested the name of Franklin. The charter of Franklin Academy was granted at the same session of legislature. Under the act of incorporation the following persons were appointed commissioners of the town: Charles R. Pearson, William Atkins, Robert M. Richards, Thomas B. Erwin, and John C. Webb. On December 24, 1832, the name of the town was changed by legislative enactment to the town of West Point. The cause of this sudden change of name of the town was that the adjacent county of Heard had named their county seat "Franklin," and there was much confusion in the transmission of mails.

Captain J. W. F. Little, in an article which appeared in the LaGrange Reporter in 1878, said: "No positive facts can now be obtained as to why the name of 'West Point' was chosen. It is said that this is the most western point of the Chattahoochee River and possibly that was the reason. It was certainly not because it was the western terminus of the Atlanta and West Point Railroad, for the town was named sixteen years before the enterprise was projected."

The original limits of the town of West Point included land lot 283 and the fraction 318 in the 5th district. These limits were extended by legislative enactment on December 26, 1835, to the present size of the city: that is to include land lots 283, 284, and the southern half and the northwestern quarter of 285, and the fractions 316, 317, and 318 in the 5th district east of the river; the fractions, 57, 58, and 59, in the 16th district west of the river. In the same act of extension of limits, the following commissioners were appointed: Charles R. Pearson, Beaman Martin, Lawrence Gahagan, Green W. Hill, and Hutchinson Burnham. These commissioners were to hold office for one year and chose one of their number as Intendant. Also in the same enactment, Abner McGee, George Whitman, Edward Hancock, John Scott, Sr., Francis M. Gilmer, Nimrod C. Benson, John C. Webb, and Charles R. Pearson, were authorized to build a bridge across the Chattahoochee at any point within the limits of incorporation.

In 1836, the Montgomery and West Point Railroad was chartered, and many citizens subscribed to the stock. The trains of this road entered West Point in 1851. In 1838 the West Point Land Company was chartered, and Thomas Winston was chosen president. A period of inflation followed, subdivisions were laid off, lots were improved and sold at large profits, but unfortunately this dream of West Point as a future metropolis vanished and many investors lost money. During this period of development in 1838, the authorized toll bridge was built at the foot of Jackson Street. The bridge was built by Horace King, at that time a slave of Mr. Godwin of Columbus, the contractor of the project. The bridge was 652 feet in length and cost $22,000.00. The lumber for the project was sawed in Heard County by Nick Tompkins, and rafted down the river. This bridge was burned by Colonel LaGrange of the Federal Army on April 17, 1865, just after the battle of Fort Tyler, and was rebuilt in 1866.

The completion of the Atlanta and West Point Railroad into West Point in 1854 was the last necessary factor in the development of the city as a real cotton market. As early as 1851, 28,000 bales were brought from the surrounding country, hauled in wagons, some as much as seventy miles.

After the Montgomery and West Point Railroad entered the city in 1851, business began to increase on the west side of the river, and when 1856 had arrived, nearly all the business section was removed to that side. In the decade from 1850 to 1860, the West Point market was supplied with wheat, corn, and bacon, and it was not until 1861 that any corn was bought and shipped from other markets to the city.

On February 10, 1854, the town of West Point was chartered as the City of West Point, and one of the first enterprises of the new city was a plan for a good hotel, and during 1856-57 Tim and Terry Collins built the Chattahoochee Hotel, which still maintains its excellent standard of hostelry under the name of Charles Hotel.

At the outbreak of the War Between the States, West Point gallantly espoused the cause of the Confederacy, and the West Point Guards tendered their services on April 2, 1861. The close of the war found West Point sacked and burned, the people without money or credit, but with indomitable energy and industry and perseverance, which has always characterized her citizens, they began to rebuild what had been destroyed. The toll bridge built in 1838 and the railroad bridge finished in 1854 were uselessly destroyed by the Federal vandals. West Point was the first city in Georgia to be relieved from military control after the war.

West Point is situated in the midst of splendid manufacturing interests. Within a seven-mile radius are to be found Lanett, Langdale, Shawmut, Fairfax, Riverdale, and the Utilization Plant. While all these plants are in the state of Alabama, they are owned by the West Point Manufacturing Company with their central offices in the city of West Point. This chain of mills was organized and in a large measure financed by West Point citizens, among whom may be found the names of Huguley, Atkinson, Lanier, Trammell, Scott, Johnson, Lovelace, Walker, Miller, and many others.

The sewerage system, water supply, fire and police protection, and the public schools, are unsurpassed. There are churches of every denomination, Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club, Woman's Club, and near by a country club. The boy and girl scout councils are nationally known, and they have one of the best equipped camps in the country.

Among the handsome public buildings of the city may be mentioned the spacious auditorium, the city hall, the Magnolia Club, the Hawkes Library, the handsome new High School, several new churches of outstanding capacity and beauty, and a number of well-equipped business structures. The West Point Iron Works and the Batson-Cook Lumber Company are numbered among the successful contractors of the city. The annals of the city and the surrounding territory are well edited in the West Point News by Tipton Coffee and his sons.

The early records of the city of West Point have been lost or destroyed and as a consequence, the roster of the city officials is complete from 1879 to date with the exception of those mentioned in the subject matter above.

HOGANSVILLE. The city of Hogansville lies on the line between the Eleventh and Twelfth Land districts. The Calumet Mills and the mill village is in land lot No. 96, the churches and residence section in No. 97, and the southeastern part of the city in No. 128 of the Eleventh District; the central southern part in No. 9, the business section in No. 10, and the High School and Stark Mills in No. 11 of the Twelfth District; the western side of the city in Nos. 22, 23 and 24 of the Twelfth. The location is that of the intersection of the commercial highway towards Augusta before the coming of railroads and the old Indian trail which connected the McIntosh Reserve with the Creek towns on the lower reaches of the Chattahoochee and the Flint rivers. At an early date a large part of the site of the city was the property of William Hogan, for whom the town was named.

The early history of Hogansville is a record of a community gathered around the churches and school and the mill of Daniel Norwood on Yellow Jacket Creek near the present station of Trimble. Among the names secured from old deeds and records are found the following pioneers: Uriah Askew, Joseph N. Boyd, John Brooks, Zadoc J. Daniel, Silas N. Davis, Hartsfield Hendon, William Hogan, William Hopson, Martin Jenkins, Mordecai Johnson, John A. Jones, James M. McFarlin, William Mobley, Alfred P. Norwood, Daniel Norwood, William D. Phillips, Samuel S. Reid, John W. Scoggins, John Sims, John Trimble, Henry Wideman, and many others whose names were overlooked or not found in the records.

The incorporation of the town was deferred until long after the community was a recognized business center, and was dated October 12, 1870, when James M. Hurst, Joel J. Loftin, W. H. C. Pace, John T. Pullin, Warren Bacchus, and Benjamin W. Morton were appointed commissioners and a body corporate under the name and style of Town Council of the town of Hogansville. The corporate limits at that time were circular with a radius of three-fourths of a mile with the railroad depot as a center; however, the radius was reduced to a half mile on February 28, 1876; and on December 17, 1901, the present rectangular limits were established. The intersection of the center line of the street and the main line of railroad track is the point from which measurements are made. The distance toward the east, south and west is three-fourths of a mile, towards the north seven-tenths of a mile; the sides of the rectangle are due east and west, and north and south.

At the time this community was settled, the whole country was in forest, and Andrew Pickens Norwood used to relate that the only clearing was that of a corn patch located about a mile northeast on the west side of the present highway on land now owned by Warner Smith, which was the site of an Indian village.

In those early days the nearest cotton market was Augusta, and the transportation was by means of wagons. These market trips were great events, and there was usually a considerable train of wagons, camping on the roadside by night, for it required several days to make the trip. On the return trip they brought back such necessities and luxuries as would be used for the year until another caravan set forth.

Daniel Norwood, the father of Andrew Pickens Norwood, migrated from South Carolina to Georgia in 1828, and settled about three miles north of Hogansville, and built the old Norwood mill about two miles east of Hogansville on Yellow Jacket Creek near the present station of Trimble. The dam was constructed of granite quarried from a large outcrop near the mill. This mill was patronized by the settlers for miles in all directions.

The completion of the Atlanta and West Point Railroad in the early fifties centered the activities of the community near the railroad station, and the town began to attract the settlers from the surrounding country as a good place to engage in different kinds of business.

After the demoralization incident of the War Between the States and the subsequent carpet-bag rule, the community commenced its stride with the incorporation of Hogansville as a town on October 12, 1870, and one of the first enterprises of the new town was the establishment of a supply and general merchandise store by Morton and Trimble, a firm composed of Captain Benjamin Morton and W. S. Trimble, which firm brought the first carload of commercial fertilizer to Hogansville.

This period was also the beginning of tenant farming and crop mortgage system, which grew through the seventies, eighties and nineties, and reached the culmination in disaster in 1920, when post-war deflation, assisted by boll weevil depredations, finished the task of demolition of the farm supply business. During the heyday of prosperity Hogansville became known as one of the best cotton markets in western Georgia, and the merchants of the town sold supplies to a large part of the counties of Troup, Heard, Coweta and Meriwether. It was the nearest railroad point to Franklin, the county seat of Heard County, sixteen miles distant, and also the same distance to Greenville, the county seat of Meriwether County. All freight and passenger traffic as well as the mails for these two towns and the adjacent territory came through the Hogansville offices.

In 1881, R. M. Farrar, T. M. Sikes, Frank Word, John Word and W. S. Trimble incorporated and built the Hogansville Cotton Oil Mill, the first such plant in the county. Soon afterward Edward Atkinson of Boston on a visit to the Cotton Exposition in Atlanta conceived the idea of building a model ginnery, and of setting an example to the cotton farmers of improved ginnery methods, whereby the farmers would get a premium price for their staple. This large plant added to the gins already in operation, and the great facilities afforded by Frank Word's large warehouse, made Hogansville a popular cotton market, both for buyer and for seller.

The merchants and Farmers Bank was incorporated on December 8, 1888, by W. S. Hendon, J. H. Covin, E. Mobley, C. K. Bass and J. F. Mobley, and the Hogansville Banking Company at a later date.

The oldest business in Hogansville is the carriage and wood-working shop established in 1868 by William Prather, and successively by his son E. C. Prather maintained, and at present by the grandson, O. W. Prather. The drug store now owned and operated by the Daniel Drug Company was established about the same time, but was at first owned and operated by Dr. W. D. Boozer.

The schools of Hogansville have always been the mainstay and pride, and lists among the instructors such substantial and well-equipped men as George Looney, John H. Covin, who taught as many as three generations in some families, A. F. Trimble, W. S. McCarty, H. W. Wooding, and two superior women, Mrs. J. H. Covin, a friend to every one, and Mrs. John Daly, who in her private school, and in many cases without remuneration, equipped large numbers of boys and girls with knowledge to secure positions and to earn their own living.

In 1900 R. W. Trimble established the Trimble Brick Company two and one-half miles east of Hogansville on the railroad with a capacity of eight to ten million brick per year, and giving employment to about fifty men. The clay from which the brick were made was found in the low lands along Yellow Jacket Creek near the station of Trimble. The plant operated continuously for twenty-eight years until 1929, and furnished the brick for nearly all the cotton mills throughout this territory.

In 1902, R. W. Trimble developed the quarry near Trimble, which was operated by the Yellow Jacket Quarry Company. Approximately three hundred thousand tons of crushed stone was shipped from this quarry to the Atlanta and West Point Railroad to be used for ballast, and to contractors for concrete mixing. Forty thousand tons were used for the sea wall at Mobile, Alabama. The brick depot built at Trimble to care for the business of the brick-yard and the quarry, was erected on the site of the original Speer's spur track.

On August 12, 1919, the charter of Hogansville was amended by the General Assembly of Georgia, and the town of Hogansville was thereafter known as the City of Hogansville. This city now boasts of a paved street, an excellent system of public schools, water and sewer conveniences, electric lights, and is a real city.

MOUNTVILLE. Mountville was so named because it is the most elevated spot in the county—a little city set upon a hill. It is located on land lot 202 of the seventh land district, on a part of 183 on the eastern side, and a part of 215 on the west side. Land lot 202 was drawn by Neal McRea in the land lottery on March 12, 1827; it came into the possession of Joseph H. Green, of which transaction there is no public record, and was bought by Daniel Davis on December 4, 1832. The first store of the community was built by Daniel Davis in land lot 202 at the intersection of the old trail from Cowetah Town on the Chattahoochee across King's Gap to McIntosh Reserve in Carroll County and the trail from Indian Springs, the capital, to West Point (Franklin) and Alabama points. This store was also the post office, and Daniel Davis was the first postmaster.

All of the houses at this early period were two-room log cabins with stick and mud chimneys. Other stores were soon built at this advantageous point. All the stores sold whiskey and on Saturday afternoons there was many a "fist and skull" fight in consequence. Horse races were held at Mountville on possibly the first race track in the county.

Daniel Davis donated the site of the first school of the community, and Dr. Joseph Bradfield gave five acres of land on which Mount Pleasant Church was built.

At a later date Isaac Fincher built a two-story wood shop, at which were made wagons, buggies and furniture. Some of the furniture may be found in the homes of Mountville at this day. J. N. Carlton, who came from Vermont, was an assistant in the shop. He also taught school, Sunday School, made coffins and buried the dead. He was also a splendid nurse and ministered to the sick in the entire neighborhood.

At the time of Sherman's march to the sea, a company of his cavalry passed through Mountville just at sunset. Wheeler's cavalry came in advance of Sherman's and had already requisitioned food for themselves and their horses. When Sherman's cavalry demanded and took food for the men and feed for their horses, one citizen, Wilson, objected to supplying them, so they took what they wanted and then burned his house.

At one time Barnum and Bailey's Circus camped at Mountville over night, and watered the animals from the wells. One of the elephants broke loose during the night and created a great deal of excitement.

Mountville community is probably the oldest settlement of Troup County, although it was not incorporated as a town until November 29, 1897. The settlers are of Anglo-Saxon and Scotch-Irish descent, and have always been noted for their generosity and kindness, for the fear of God, and for the art of plain living and high ideals.

Among the early settlers are noted the following: William Beasley, Hiram Bird, Nathan V. Boddie, Thomas Evans, William Evans, Benjamin Fincher, Cornelius P. Marchman, Daniel Owens, Jacob Thrash, David Watson. To these were added at a later date: G. V. Boddie, Dr. Joseph Bradfield, John Carlton, Robert and Millard Fincher, Judge Hightower, Wilson Partridge, Boss Woodward, the families of Florence, Harmon and Nance and many others.

ANTIOCH. This former thriving community, wishing to have power to control the sale of whiskey in their vicinity, secured an act of the legislature for the incorporation of the little town on December 30, 1851. The town was located in land lot 30 of the 15th district, and the radius of its circular limits was one-half mile with the store of Pitts and Glass as the center of the circle.

The pioneers selected this particular locality on account of the large size of the trees, which indicated to them a great fertility of the soil. The names of the early citizens include many families, which took an important part in the development of the county. Associated with this community are the names of Robert Allen, Jack Bassett, J. T. Boykin, G. W. Birdsong, H. H. Cary, W. P. Edmondson, Jacob Freeman, Wash Formby, Thomas M. Floyd, Henry Goss, Willis Greene, Smith Horsley, Wade Hill, Jack Henderson, B. C. Johnson, James Mallory, Elihu Pitts, Wiley Rowland, E. A. Reid, J. B. Reid, William Strong, William Samples, James Taylor, Jerry Tucker, Charles Vickers, Archie Whatley, Willis Whatley, John Wilkes, Hamp Wisdom, J. T. Whitley, Thomas Winn, James Wilder, L. H. Young, and many others.

The first settler on the west side of the Chattahoochee River was Abram Ingram; Captain Jack Estes was the second, and Nimrod B. Yarbrough was the third. The first white child born on the west side of the river was Frank Johnson.

VERNON. The town of Vernon, which the promoters hoped would be the county seat of Troup County, was laid off in land lot 256 of the 5th district, and was on the river front of the east side of the Chattahoochee. The promoters were Wiley J. Sterling, John E. Gage, an Inferior Court judge, and Henry Faver. The number of citizens purchasing lots are not known, but the following secured deeds to lots in Vernon: John E. Gage, Wiley J. Sterling, James M. Rawson, Henry Faver, John Bostock, Josiah M. Bonner, Nancy Banks, John Lassiter, William A. Lyle, Robert Alexander, Robert Benton, James M. Ransom, Willis Benton, William D. Sherod, Willis Currey, Ira Allen, Abner C. Dozier, and perhaps others not recorded.

A church lot was deeded for the organization of a congregation; an academy was chartered as Vernon Academy; a ferry was put into operation, the approach to which can still be seen on the edge of the Meadors Camp.

Imagination alone can picture the transformation that the disagreement of five Inferior Court judges circumvented: the river transportation, the deviation of later railroads, and a host of other changes in the present Troup County, had Vernon been chosen as county seat.

Just north of the crossing of the A. B. & C. Railroad over the Chattahoochee River once was the site of the forgotten town of Vernon, and the only present reminder is the names of two militia districts, East Vernon and West Vernon, but the promoters and owners and the town are among the things gone and forgotten.

CHAPTER VIII. TROUP COUNTY LOCALITIES

FOR THE convenience of those who have little familiarity with the various places or localities in the county, the following list includes most of the places, some of which have almost lost their identity.

ABBOTTSFORD. In L.L. 66 of 15th district, a station on the A. B. & C. Railroad. Take the McGee Bridge Road, turn left just across the bridge; about ten miles. Or cross Glass Bridge and take first right. Further.

ANTIOCH. In L.L. 30 of 15th district. Cross McGee Bridge and go straight ahead, at ten miles turn left. About fifteen miles.

BRIDGES ON THE CHATTAHOOCHEE. See each of these in their alphabetic order: (1) McGee, or Sterling, Bridge; (2) Mooty Bridge; (3) Glass Bridge; (4) West Point Bridge.

BAUGH CROSSROAD. In L.L. 181 of 4th district. On the Whitesville, or old U. S., road, the second crossroad after crossing Long Cane Creek. About nine miles.

BROWN CROSSROAD. In L.L. 181 of 12th district. On No. 1 highway north at intersection of Philpot Ferry Road from Hogansville. About eleven miles.

CANNONVILLE. In L.L. 96 of 5th district. Take No. 14 highway west for seven miles at filling station, turn left then straight ahead across one crossroad. About twelve miles.

CENTER SCHOOL. In L.L. 191 of 5th district. Take No. 14 highway west for about eight and one-half miles. On highway.

GABBETTVILLE. In L.L. 187 of 5th district, a station on A. & W. P. Railroad. Take No. 14 highway west, and take left about a half mile beyond Long Cane churches. About eleven miles.

GLASS BRIDGE. In L.L. 302 of 5th district. Take No. 14 highway west for six miles (not Teaver Road at five miles), turn right and straight ahead. About nine miles.

GRAY HILL SCHOOL. In L.L. 37 of 5th district. Take Whitesville Road at six miles, turn right (Hardin Crossroad) and straight ahead. May also be reached from Gabbettville. About ten miles.

HARDIN CROSSROAD. In L.L. 155 of 4th district. Take Whitesville Road, the first crossroad after passing Long Cane Creek. About six miles.

HARRISONVILLE. In L.L. 119 of 12th district. Take Young Mill Road, straight ahead for eleven miles to crossroad. About eleven miles.

HILLCREST SCHOOL. In L.L. 219 of 12th district. Take No. 1 highway north, on the highway. About seven miles.

HOGANSVILLE. In L.L. 10 of 12th district, a station on A. & W. P. Railroad. Take No. 14 highway north. About thirteen miles.

KNOTT. In L.L. 158 of 6th district. Take road to southeast that passes Georgia Power station, keep left or due east. About seven miles.

LAGRANGE. In L.L. 109 of 6th district. Intersection of railroads and of No. 1 and No. 14 highways.

LIBERTY HILL. In L.L. 79 of 14th district. Take Mooty Bridge Road, and first left beyond the river, then straight ahead. About fourteen miles. Or McGee Bridge Road to Antioch, but do not turn left at ten miles.

LONG CANE. In L.L. 214 of 5th district. Take No. 14 highway, on highway two churches at crossroad. About ten miles.

LOUISE. In L.L. 3 of 6th district, station on A. & W. P. Railroad. Take No. 14 highway northeast. About seven miles.

LOYD CHAPEL. In L.L. 152 of 5th district. Take Glass bridge road, note church and cemetery. About seven miles.

MCGEE BRIDGE. Also called Sterling Bridge. In L.L. 146 of 5th district. Take No. 14 highway west to city limits; just across railroad take right and keep to right for all forks and turns. About six miles.

MIDWAY. In L.L. 121 of 14th district. McGee Bridge Road, then straight ahead with no turns. About thirteen miles.

MOOTY BRIDGE. In L.L. 263 of 12th district. Take No. 1 highway, take the left beyond cemetery in city limits, keep the main road straight ahead to river, passing Ware Crossroad. About nine miles.

MOUNTVILLE. In L.L. 202 of 7th district. Due east on Greenville Street the highway is No. 109. About ten miles.

OAK GROVE SCHOOL. In L.L. 170 of 3rd district. Take No. 1 highway, turn right at seven miles (Pleasant Grove); cross Flat Shoals and Polecat creeks and then take the first left. About fifteen miles.

PLEASANT GROVE. In L.L. 86 of 4th district. Take No. 1 highway south, on highway. About seven miles.

PLEASANT HILL SCHOOL. In L.L. 86 of 15th district. Take road to Abbottsford, on the north side of road in the town. About eleven miles.

PYNE. In L.L. 198 of 5th district, a stop on A. B. & C. Railroad. Take the McGee Bridge Road, and take the left at four and one-half miles at Tatum School. About six miles.

ROSEMONT SCHOOL. In L.L. 51 of 4th district. Take No. 1 highway south, on highway. About eight miles.

SALEM. In L.L. 40 of 4th district. Take No. 1 highway south, turn right at Pleasant Grove; keep right at forks, crossing Flat Shoals, Polecat, and Turkey creeks, passing Smith Mill; then keep left and straight ahead. About fourteen miles.

STERLING BRIDGE. Also called McGee Bridge, which see.

TATUM SCHOOL. In L.L. 137 of 5th district. Take McGee Bridge Road, in sight of road on left. About five miles.

TROUP FACTORY. In L.L. 15 of 4th district. Take No. 1 highway, located on highway at Flat Shoals Bridge. About ten miles.

TRIMBLE. In L.L. 34 of 11th district, a station on A. & W. P. Railroad. Take No. 14 highway north, turn right from pavement about two and one-half miles above Hogansville.

UNION, OR JONES CROSSROAD. In L.L. 199 of 4th district. On the Harris County line. Take Whitesville Road straight ahead. About thirteen miles.

VERNON. In L.L. 256 of 5th district. Take road to Pyne, and straight ahead to overhead bridge over railroad, take road through gate just this side of above bridge, and keep left to river. About eight miles.

WARE CROSSROAD. In L.L. 248 of 12th district. Take Mooty Bridge Road to the first crossroad. About six miles.

WEST POINT. In L.L. 58 of 16th district, terminus of three railroads. Take No. 14 highway west. About sixteen miles from LaGrange.

WHITFIELD CROSSING. In L.L. 29 of 6th district, on highway. Take No. 14 highway north, first crossroad. About six miles.

CHAPTER IX. TROUP COUNTY MILITARY

MILITIA. The original military plans of the State of Georgia included the idea of companies formed in communities. The membership of each company was limited to citizens of a given militia district. There are fourteen of such districts in the county at present, but the number of militia companies was probably twelve. Salem district was created in 1910 as No. 1689, and had no company. Pool's Mill District was created in 1853, and the existence of the thirteenth company in this district is doubtful. There was in the county a full complement of the battalion and regimental officers, such as Adjutants, Majors and Colonels.

The companies were required to assemble for drill at intervals, the minimum of which was once each quarter of the year, and the date was called "Muster Day." The roll was called and absentees summoned and punishments meted unless sufficient excuses were rendered. Drills were conducted in the school of the soldier and in the manual of arms and also included the use of the bayonet for such soldiers as possessed such a weapon. Many a huntsman appeared at muster with his own long rifle with the hexagon-shaped barrel, while others brought their short carbines, and during the manual of arms, a queer ragged line of long and short weapons was displayed. Nevertheless, the American soldier of early days was ever a huntsman, and each man was a crack shot with his own pet firearm. The drill-masters were chosen from the veterans of the Revolution, or of the War of 1812, or the Texas War of Independence of 1836. The Mexican War of 1848 added to the military experience of those who volunteered for that service, among whom may be mentioned James A. Norwood and James R. Gates. The manual of tactics used at the time of the Civil War was that of Captain Hardee, which was later replaced by that of Upton.

UNIFORMS. The uniform of the commissioned officers was distinctly different from that of the rank and file, which difference, together with the bearing of side arms, made officers an easy mark for sharpshooters, and accounts for the relatively heavy mortality among the officers in all major engagements. In addition to the fatigue uniform, which was used for active duty, many companies boasted a dress uniform for parades and state occasions, and Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like some of these: brilliant colors, waving plumes and numerous rows of shiny brass buttons. The Confederate uniforms were gray, and that of the Union soldiers a dark blue. The World War soldiers used a khaki uniform. Swords were discarded, and shoulder straps and chevrons made less conspicuous during the World War, especially during active duty.

MUSIC. In addition to the customary regimental band, in the militia there was the inevitable drummer and the accompanying fifers. These were afterwards replaced by the use of buglers in a system of calls ranging from reveille to tattoo and taps. Many an old soldier recalls the thrill that came with the "long roll" of the snare drummer as a call to arms. The regimental bands were always on duty for every formal occasion from that of guard mount to dress parade, and frequent concerts were given to while away the monotonous rounds of the daily camp, or garrison life.

FLAGS. Each regiment formerly carried the regimental colors with a suitable escort in all formal assemblies of the regiment, and at the time of the Civil War each company also carried its company flag in order that scattered squads might recognize the rallying point of their company.

These company flags, as well as the regimental colors, made a shining target for the opposing artillery, and in consequence the mortality among the color bearers was always high in every important engagement. The use of conspicuous uniforms and objects were carefully avoided in the gigantic struggle of the World War, because they were markers for the hovering planes, who telegraphed to the hidden gunners the result of each salvo of murderous shells upon such a marked enemy. Thus the use of flags in the battle lines was suppressed.

PENSIONS. The bloody struggle of the Civil War left many homes bereaved and deprived of their normal support, and the Federal government extended pensions to such needy families, and the benefits were afterwards offered to all who in any way assisted in the inglorious War Between the States. The states of secession were stripped of all their resources, and then burdened with the wild orgy of reconstruction and cost of the pensions added thereto, but nevertheless they soon increased their slender budget to include a modest pension to the patriotic soldiers of the "Lost Cause" and their dependents. The World War, with its millions of the conscripts, gave an additional tax burden in a still wilder orgy of pensions. There were 908 white and 688 colored citizens certified for the World War service in Troup County.

INDIAN WAR OF 1836. The antagonism between the early settlers and the Indians continued to grow and culminated in warfare and pitched battles. In 1836 quite a panic was produced by an uprising of the Indians. The people of LaGrange expected momentarily to be attacked and there was an exodus of citizens towards the eastern part of the county. Rufus Broome, grandfather of Mrs. J. E. Dunson, Jr., gathered all the remaining women and children in the court house, and strongly barricaded it, resolving to protect them or die.

Judge Blount C. Ferrell used to tell an amusing story of a stranger in the town, who becoming frightened and fearing to lose his scalp, bought a small Indian pony on which to flee. The man weighed about three hundred pounds, and the poor little pony had only gone five miles when he succumbed. Fortunately for him the hastily assembled militia had pursued the Indians across the Chattahoochee River, and soon afterward destroyed their village.

Col. Julius C. Alford was commander of the battalion of cavalry, and Captain Robert H. Sledge with Walker Dunson as First Lieutenant are known to have participated in these conflicts, and it is probable that all the militia companies were assembled for the conflict.

The first alarm brought into West Point, where the Indians were thickly settled on the west banks of the Chattahoochee, was a report by a Mr. Freeman, who came from Blackstone, now called Cusseta, Alabama. He reported all the inhabitants killed except himself. At this disquieting news, Major John C. Webb at once summoned every militia member in the 701st district to appear with arms and ammunition. Major Webb moved forward with his command to Blackstone, and to his amazement found the people all alive and the Indians quiet.

The last act on this condition of affairs was the burning of an Indian village on the banks of the Chattahoochee in land lot 44 of the 16th district in reprisal by the pioneers for the continual raids and annoyances by the dissatisfied tribesmen. The following story is quoted from White's Historical Recollections and is reprinted with some minor corrections.

THE BURNT VILLAGE. The burnt village lies six or eight miles west of LaGrange, in the county of Troup, on the west bank of the Chattahoochee River, where the great Wehadkee Creek pours its waters into that river.

Previous to the year 1793, it was the great central point of the Muscogee nation, the crossing place of all trading and marauding parties of that nation on the west, where the untamed savages met to arrange and mature their plans for making those nocturnal attacks upon the helpless and unprotected settlers on the outskirts of the white settlements, by which consternation and dismay were spread throughout the land; and the sparse population of the country at that time, for mutual safety, was forced to concentrate in forts, hastily thrown up on its borders; the place where the scalper with the crimsoned tresses of many a maid and matron, and the flaxen locks of the little blue-eyed boy, would pile the blood-stained trophies, and describe to the half-astonished and delighted women and children of the forest the dying shrieks and screams of the slaughtered victims.

It was after one of those predatory excursions of the Creek Indians into the settlements of the whites (and the ashes of many a building and murdered family told of their prowess) that other plans of murder and plunder had been arranged, and the warriors of the nation had assembled at the little town of which we are speaking, to the number of several hundred, to celebrate the Green Corn Dance, as was their custom, and to take the black drink, an ablution deemed necessary to reconcile the Great Spirit to the enterprise in which they were about to engage.

A few hundred men under the command of Colonel M. and Major Adams, who had volunteered and resolved to strike a blow at the heart of the nation, arrived within a few miles of the river, and waited for the setting of the sun to advance to its bank, to cross and take the enemy by surprise.

Night came, and they were halted in silence on the bank of the river opposite the Indian town. All was hushed and still as death—not a sound was heard save the savage yell and war-whoop of the Indian, with occasionally a monotonous war-song, bursting forth amid the revelry, in which all ages and sexes seemed to join. The moon had begun to shed a dim light through piles of clouds, and the water breaking over the rocks had the appearance of the ghosts of the murdered whites, calling on their brethren upon the bank to take signal vengeance, or admonishing them of great danger; and many were there who heard sounds in the air—strange moanings and screams of "Beware." But there was among them one who was unappalled. The night was far spent, and the noise from the other band had ceased—the voice of the wearied Indian was hushed and still—all had sunk to rest, or the little army had been discovered. Not a sound was heard save the rippling of the stream; 'twas a solemn pause; but time was precious, the blow must be struck, or all would be lost.

It was proposed to Colonel M. and Major Adams to cross the river and ascertain the situation of the Indians, so as to be able to lead their little band to certain victory. Colonel M. declined the hazardous enterprise. Major Adams resolved to go, and sought a companion; but he had nearly despaired of finding one who would volunteer to share his dangers, when a small and very feeble man, whose name was Hill, advanced from the ranks and proposed to accompany him. Major Adams and his companion set out together; but the force of the river current soon overpowered the brave Hill and swept him down the stream.

Major Adams sprang to his relief, and at the eminent hazard of his own life, rescued his friend from a watery grave; with his athletic arms he buffeted the rapid current, and bore the exhausted Hill to the bank which they had left. He then set out alone. The ford which he had to pass was narrow and difficult—making in a direct line across the river, nearly half way, opposite which was an island; it then turned down the stream a quarter of a mile or more, over rocks and shoals, sometimes scarcely knee deep, then up to the neck—and the trunks and limbs of trees, which had drifted upon the island, with the dim light of the moon, shining through the clouds, cast upon them, had the appearance of so many savages ready to pounce upon their victim; but with a firm step Major Adams proceeded, and soon reached the bank in safety.

The town was situated on the edge of the river swamp, about 300 yards from the water, and so numerous and intricate were the paths leading in every direction from the ford into the swamp, and the darkness produced by the thick undergrowth was so great, that when he reached the hill, or dry land, he discovered by the fire around which the Indians had kept their revels and dance, shooting up occasionally a meteoric blaze, that he was far below the point at which he aimed. Bending his course cautiously along the margin of the swamp, he soon reached the border of the town; an Indian dog seemed to be the only sentinel, and after a few half growls and barkings, as though he had but dreamed, sank away into perfect quiet. In a few moments he was in the center of the town. In addition to those in the cabins, innumerable warriors, with their rifles and tomahawks in their arms, lay stretched and snoring in every direction; the earth was literally covered with them.

Major Adams examined the fastenings of the cabin doors, by running his hand through the cracks and feeling the log of wood or the peg by which they were secured. He was convinced that no alarm had been given, and that the Indians did not suspect an enemy was so near. A huge savage, close to whom he was passing, raised himself upon his elbow, grasped his rifle, and looked around, as though he heard, or dreamed that he heard strange footsteps. Major Adams, perceiving him stir, threw himself down amidst a group of snoring Indians; the warrior, perceiving nothing unusual, concluded he had dreamed, and again sank into the arms of sleep. Our hero proceeded cautiously, examining with a military eye every point of attack and defense, arranged his plans, and was returning to the anxious army on the other bank of the river. His exertions in crossing the river had been great—he was tired, and perceiving an Indian pony tied to a sapling and believing that the little animal would pursue the ford to which it was accustomed, and probably show him one less difficult than that at which he had crossed, he resolved to ride it over the river. He did not see the bell which hung around its neck; frightened at his approach, it snapped the rope of bark with which it was fastened and scampered off through the town with a hundred dogs at its heels, whose yells and the tingling bell produced a frightful roar through the wilderness. The chattering of Indian voices was heard in every direction. Major Adams sprang towards the river, but missed his path and found himself surrounded by the briers and thick undergrowth of the river swamp. The Indians passed within a few paces of the place where he stood, half suspended in the air by the briers; and returning from their fruitless search, he thought he heard them speak of strange sights and sounds, such as were told in Rome of the fall of Great Caesar. They returned to the town and again slept.

Major Adams proceeded in a direct line to the river, glided into the stream and swam quietly and safely to the other bank. He told what he had seen and stated his plans of attack. The little army listened, amazed and delighted with their gallant leader; each individual felt that the danger to which he had exposed himself was that their danger might be lessened, and with one voice, when orders were given to march, declared that they would be led by no other commander than their own intrepid Adams. Colonel M. ----- was forced to yield. They were led across by Major Adams, and it was needless to say, to victory, without the loss of a man. Scarcely a warrior escaped. The town was burned; but as far as possible, the women and children, of even savages, were saved. Posts may yet be seen standing in the midst of saplings, grown up where the town was burned, which are the only remains that serve to point out to the traveler the place where stood the "Burnt Village."

REMARKS. The above account appears at the present time liberally expanded in accordance with poetic license, for there remains no record of any family that was wiped out by the blood-thirsty warriors in this county. There was more excitement than bloodshed in these repeated alarms.

The location of the "Burnt Village" was about one mile below the mouth of Wehadkee Creek, and the site at present is a cotton patch near the river.

Finally the Creeks gathered about them the remnants of their tribe, and under the escort of United States soldiers bade farewell to the haunts of their youth, and found a resting place in the territory that lies beyond the Mississippi.

The records of some of these old militia companies have been lost or destroyed, and the full rosters of only two of the twelve remain intact, those of the LaGrange and Harrisonville districts, and these two are reproduced after the roster of the Confederate soldiers. A partial list of a company which participated in the Indian conflict, made up by the old members from reminiscent recollections of old citizens, is given below:

LAGRANGE LIGHT GUARDS, Co. B, 4th Reg., G. V. I., C. S. A. This company was organized in 1842 under the name of LaGrange Volunteers, with T. C. Evans as captain, and J. S. Herring and Thomas Brown as lieutenants. The arms that they bore were the old flint-lock muskets. In the same year the state of Georgia obtained a supply of the then comparatively new Springfield rifles, and the LaGrange Volunteers were able to exchange their old flint-locks for the new rifles. After the death of Captain Evans, Charles Broome succeeded to the captaincy. In 1850 the name of the company was changed to LaGrange Riflemen with Milton Bacon as captain.

On March 5, 1856, the company was reorganized and incorporated as the LaGrange Light Guards. E. Y. Hill was elected captain, and Abe Rogers and Thomas Scott as lieutenants. This company was not attached to any regiment, and the membership numbered from forty to fifty members.

In 1861 the company was offered to Governor Joseph E. Brown for active service in behalf of the Confederacy. On April 26, 1861, they left LaGrange for mobilization with Robert S. Smith as captain, Miles H. Hill, Gustavus A. Bull, and J. Brown Morgan as lieutenants. They enlisted first for twelve months, and then reenlisted for the duration of the war.

During the war this company had three captains: Robert S. Smith, promoted; Miles H. Hill, resigned; and Allen C. Gibson. The lieutenants were: Gustavus A. Bull, killed; J. Brown Morgan, promoted; Eugenius Ware, killed; James A. Norwood, resigned; Robert C. Humber, retired; Allen C. Gibson, promoted; John T. Gay, killed; William S. Evans; and Robert B. Ridley. This company again tendered their services in the Spanish American War in 1898, but were not accepted as a unit.

WEST POINT LIGHT GUARDS, Co. D, 4th Reg. G. V. I., C. S. A. No data could be found of the original organization of this company. On April 26, 1861, this company left West Point for mobilization at Augusta, Georgia, with John J. Matthews as captain, and L. L. Croft, Wade Hill, William H. Lanier, and George F. Todd as lieutenants. The captains of this company were: John J. Matthews, promoted; George F. Todd, killed; Adam C. Frost, killed. The lieutenants were: Thomas J. Atkinson, died; William C. Cherry, captured; L. L. Croft, resigned; James L. Greer, captured; Wade Hill, resigned; William W. Hulbert, captured; William H. Lanier, killed; O. D. Winston, resigned.

THE EVANS GUARDS, Co. K, 13th Reg., G. V. I., C. S. A. This company was named in honor of Gen. Thomas C. Evans of the Georgia militia. It was recruited largely from the east side of the county. It was mustered into service on July 8, 1861. The captains of the company were: James A. Long, promoted; Divany A. Kidd, killed. The lieutenants were: B. F. Curtright; Y. R. Frazier, wounded and captured; C. M. Heard, Jr., resigned; J. D. Hill, promoted; D. L. Owens.

THE BEN HILL INFANTRY, Co. F, 21st Reg., G. V. I., C. S. A. This company was named in honor of Benjamin Harvey Hill, Confederate senator. The captains of this company were: John T. Boykin, resigned; Ujanirtus C. Allen, killed; Edward M. Henderson. The lieutenants were: James T. Bagby; D. Eugene Dawson, died; Oliver T. Fears, killed; Jesse B. Haralson; Leroy T. Waller, resigned.

TROUP LIGHT GUARDS, Co. E, 41st Reg., G. V. I., C. S. A. This company was sometimes called the Curtright Company. In the Army of Tennessee. The captains were: John C. Curtright, killed; Joseph U. Leonard. The lieutenants were: William W. Cato, resigned for promotion; Robert O. Douglas; Thomas C. Evans; William B. Johnson, promoted; William P. Leslie; John B. Reid; John A. Wright, killed.

FANNIN GUARDS, Co. B, 60th Reg., G. V. I., C. S. A. This company was organized by James H. Fannin, who was afterwards colonel of the 1st Regiment of reserves. The captains were: Waters B. Jones, promoted; John McGee, wounded; John Fuller; W. Dawson Burks, killed. The lieutenants were: Thomas J. Caudle; John McGee, promoted.

FERRELL BATTERY, Co. C, 14th Artillery, C. S. A. This company was organized by the captain, Coleman B. Ferrell, and named for him. The lieutenants were: Sidney Moses, William C. Henderson, James M. Truitt and Buck Osburn. The battery served in Montgomery's battalion under General Roddey.

SALLIE FANNIE REID GUARDS. This company was equipped by Miss Sallie Fannie Reid, a belle of the sixties, and was commanded by Capt. Ben Cameron.

NANCY HARTS. During the Civil War, LaGrange had the unique distinction of having a company of women soldiers, under the captaincy of Mrs. J. Brown Morgan, and who called themselves the Nancy Harts in honor of the revolutionary heroine of Georgia. This company was organized by Mrs. Morgan for the protection of the homes and the children in the absence of the men. In 1865 when a detachment of Wilson's raiders under the command of Colonel LaGrange rode through the town that bore his name, the Nancy Harts lined up for action, but surrendered on the promise of the diplomatic colonel to spare the city from looting and destruction.

GEORGIA CONSTITUTIONAL GUARDS. This organization was incorporated by the General Assembly of Georgia on February 6, 1850, and was designated as a cavalry troop. No records of its officers and the activities of the troop have been available.

TROUP HUZZARS. In 1890 this troop of cavalry was organized with John M. Barnard as captain, S. D. White, W. J. McClure and J. E. Dunson as lieutenants. Captain Barnard was promoted to major of the battalion, and Thomas J. Thornton was elected as captain.

ROSTER OF CONFEDERATE SOLDIERS. The roster of the Confederate soldiers, which includes the names of many Troup County citizens that served in widely scattered organizations, is arranged alphabetically in another later chapter of this history. It is not complete, but includes all that could be found and identified as Troup County soldiers.

FOURTH REGIMENT, G. V. I., C. S. A. The Fourth regiment was mustered into service on April 26, 1861, and mobilized at Augusta, Georgia. Companies B and D, the LaGrange Light Guards and the West Point Guards were members of this regiment. The principal dates of this regiment:

1861, April 26. Mustered into service.

May 3. Mobilized at Augusta, Ga.

May 30. Arrival at Camp Jackson, Va.

- 1862, May 8. Advance to the front after one year of training.
 May 31. Seven Pines Battle.
 June 25. King's Schoolhouse.
 July 1. Malvern Hill.
 Sept. 17. Sharpsburg.
 Dec. 13. Fredericksburg, Va.
- 1863, Feb. 9. Retirement to winter quarters at Grace Church.
 May 1. Chancellorsville, Va.
 July 2. Gettysburg, Pa.
 July 6. Williamsport, Md.
 Dec. 20. Retirement to winter quarters at Orange.
- 1864, May 4. Wilderness, Va.
 May 10. Spottsylvania, Va.
 July 9. Monocacy, Md.
 July 11. Advance on Washington, D. C.
 July 18. Snicker's Gap, Va.
 Sept. 19. Winchester, Va.
 Sept. 22. Fisher's Hill, Va.
 Oct. 19. Cedar Creek, Va.
- 1865, Mar. 25. Fort Steadman, Va.
 April 2. Petersburg, Va.
 April 9. Appomattox, Va., the surrender.

THIRTEENTH REGIMENT, G. V. I., C. S. A. This was the regiment of the Evans Guards, which was Company K of the regiment.

- 1861, July 8. Mustered into service. Sent to Army of West Virginia.
 Dec. Charleston, S. C.
- 1862, Whitmarsh Island, Ga.
 June 25. King's Schoolhouse.
- All other dates the same as the Fourth Regiment.

TWENTY-FIRST REGIMENT, G. V. I., C. S. A. This regiment was a part of the Army of Northern Virginia. The Ben Hill Infantry was Company F of the 21st regiment. The muster date was July 9, 1861.

- 1861, July 9. Mustered into service.
- 1862, March 22. Kernstown, Va.
 June 1. Seven Pines (Fair Oaks).
 June 8. Cross Keys, Va. Strasburg, Va.
 Aug. 8. Cedar Mountain, Va.
 Aug. 30. Second Manassas.
 Sept. 15. Harper's Ferry.
 Dec. 13. Fredericksburg, Va.
- 1863, May 1. Chancellorsville, Va.
 July 1. Gettysburg, Pa.

1864, May 5. Wilderness, Va.
 May 15. Drewry's Bluff, Va.
 June 3. Cold Harbor, Va.
 July 4. Monocacy, Md.
 July 22. Kernstown, Va.
 July 17. Snicker's Gap, Va.
 Sept. 8. Winchester, Va.
 Sept. 22. Cedar Creek, Va.

1865, March 25. Fort Steadman, Va.
 April 9. Appomattox, Va., and surrender.

FORTY-FIRST REGIMENT, G. V. I., C. S. A. This regiment was a part of General Maney's Brigade of Cheatham's Division of the Army of Tennessee, and the Troup Light Guards as Company E of the 41st regiment.

1862, March 4. Mustered into service.
 Oct. 6. Murfreesboro, Tenn.
 Oct. 8. Perryville, Ky.
 1863, May 16. Baker's Creek, Miss.
 July 4. Vicksburg, Miss. Captured.
 July 6. Paroled in exchange.
 Nov. 25. Missionary Ridge, Ga.

1864, Feb. 5. Rocky Face, Ga.
 June 18. Kennesaw Mountain, Ga.
 July 31. Jonesboro, Ga. (Atlanta).

1865, Feb. 18. Columbia, S. C.
 March 14. Kinston, N. C.
 April 26. Greensboro, N. C. Surrendered.

This regiment was combined with the 43rd and some other units to form the 40th Battalion, and as such surrendered at Greensboro.

SIXTIETH REGIMENT, G. V. I., C. S. A. This regiment was composed of the Fourth Battalion of Georgia and some scattered units, one of which was the Fannin Guards, Company B of the 60th regiment. The records of this regiment are very imperfect and exact dates cannot be given.

1862, April. Mustered in service to Lawton's Brigade.
 June 1. Seven Pines, Va. White Oak Swamp, Va.
 Aug. 30. Second Manassas.
 Dec. 13. Fredericksburg, Va.

1863, Mary's Heights.
 July 2. Gettysburg, Pa.

1864, May 4. Wilderness, Va.
 Sept. 19. Winchester, Va.

1865, April 2. Petersburg, Va.
 April 9. Appomattox, Va., and surrender.

FOURTEENTH ARTILLERY, C. S. A. This battalion of artillery was composed of seven companies, among which we find Ferrell Battery as Company C. It served the Army of Tennessee during the year 1862, after which the companies were scattered, and the battalion was not preserved as a unit. Ferrell Battery was attached to General Roddey in Mississippi, and afterward retreated by the way of Selma, Alabama. At Opelika, Alabama, one part of the company was sent to Columbus, Ga., and the other part was engaged in the battle of West Point on April 16, 1865, two of whom were killed in that engagement: Robert Hamlin and Henry Moore.

SOLDIERS OF FORT TYLER. The number of defenders of Fort Tyler has been variously stated in a wide range of difference, it was probably one hundred and twenty-one. The force consisted of young boys under the draft age, older men above the draft age of fifty-five years, convalescent soldiers on furloughs from wounds or sickness, fourteen men of Point Coupe Battery of Louisiana, a few of Waites South Carolina Battery, and a portion of Ferrell Battery under Lt. William C. Henderson. Many of them were without uniforms to designate them as soldiers. Some of the young boys, after the white flag of surrender was raised, discarded their arms, and in the confusion nonchalantly walked off, pretending to be merely curious on-lookers at the ceremony of surrender. Some were not in the fort, but were with the sharpshooters at some remote point in hiding and in that way escaped capture. The number taken as prisoners was stated to be sixty-four. The number killed was nineteen including General Tyler, and the number of severely wounded was twenty-eight.

BATTLE OF WEST POINT. The battle of West Point was fought by a small body of Confederates against an overwhelming Federal force on the 16th of April, 1865, seven days after the surrender of General Lee at Appomattox.

Dr. D. D. Saunders with a small force of hospital employes, tents, and supplies, fled from Auburn, Alabama, to West Point before a brigade of Wilson's cavalry under the command of Colonel LaGrange, who was raiding that section of the country. The Alabama and the Georgia railroads at West Point were of different gauge track, and necessitated the unloading and reloading of the hospital property.

General R. C. Tyler, then on crutches from the loss of a leg at Missionary Ridge, was asked to take command of such forces as could be assembled hurriedly.

Fort Tyler, a small earthwork erected for the protection of the bridge, was situated on the hill where the water reservoir now stands. General Tyler, his Adjutant, Lieut. L. B. McFarland of Memphis, Captain Trepanier of Louisiana, Captain Webb, Lieut. William C. Montgomery, Col. James H.

Fannin gathered together a few soldiers, hospital employes, and citizens, for a force to defend the fort. With a few old rusty muskets and three inferior cannon, they fought a picked brigade of dismounted cavalry, armed with repeating rifles and a battery of rifled cannon, all day long. As the day wore on the small cannon were disabled and the ammunition exhausted, and still Lieut. McFarland would not permit the white flag to be hoisted.

When the Federal forces reached the ditch surrounding the fort, fuses were cut to fit the remaining shells, and they were rolled over the parapet on the enemy below. Finally, as the enemy came over the parapet, the small Confederate force remaining clubbed their muskets and still fought desperately. Col. LaGrange, a gallant Federal officer, on finding the helpless condition of the defenders and no white flag, called upon them to surrender, and ordered his men to cease firing upon such brave men. He was utterly amazed to find that he had been fighting a little company of sixty-four men all day, and remarked, "With a corps of such men, I could whip Sherman's whole army."

General Tyler, Captain Gonzales and seventeen others were killed. Col. James H. Fannin of LaGrange was the last in command. There were many acts of heroism recounted that day, none more illustrious than that of John Gallegher, an old Irish ward master, badly maimed, who wept because he was twice ordered out of the defending line of battle. This little force and these brave commanders fought the last gallant fight of that unfortunate four years of struggle.

The following list contains all the names that could be secured of the one hundred and twenty-one men engaged on that day:

Atkins, James, West Point	Dansby, William F., LaGrange
Atkins, William, West Point	Davenport, Benjamin, Co. B, 37th

SPANISH AMERICAN WAR. The last straw in the friction between Spain and the United States was the sinking of the Maine in Havana harbor on February 15, 1898. After the court of inquiry had determined that the explosion was due to a mine in the harbor, the United States Congress demanded the withdrawal of the Spanish troops from Cuba, which was practically a declaration of war. This occurred on April 20, 1898, and was followed by a call for troops on April 22, 1898, from eighteen to forty-five years of age.

The Fifth Regiment of Georgia Volunteers under the command of Colonel John S. Candler, Lieutenant-Colonel Park Woodward, Majors W. J. Kendrick, Cleveland Wilcoxon and Clifford L. Smith, were called to Atlanta immediately and the regiment through its commanders and company officers volunteered for service in the above war. The LaGrange Light Guards under the command of William T. Herring was Company E of this regiment. The regiment was not accepted as a unit, but many of the officers were selected to form the Second Georgia Regiment. Enlistment was made voluntary in the new organization.

The Second Georgia was considered as a reserve and was encamped near Tampa, Florida; but the Fifth Regiment of regulars was then stationed at Fort McPherson and was sent to the front and saw active service in Cuba.

The following Troup County citizens participated in this war, those in the regular army being designated by U. S. A. after the name:

Anderson, ———, 5th U. S. A.	McFarlane, Charles H., 2nd Ga.
Bankston, Charles, 2nd Ga.	McGee, George A., 2nd Ga.
Boddie, Battle, Co. F, 5th U. S. A.	Maffett, Boykin, 2nd Ga.

McComack, Frank, 2nd Ga.

WORLD WAR SOLDIERS. The roster of the World War soldiers and sailors is given in another chapter. An effort was unsuccessfully made to secure the casualties of this roster, and the dates and places of service.

MILITIA ROSTERS. The following rosters constitute the only complete ones found. All others existing in the county for the period near 1836 are missing, and the two are reproduced to show the names of those subject to military duty at this early date.

CHAPTER X. TROUP COUNTY MINERALS AND ROCKS

THE author wishes to express his appreciation to Professor Leon P. Smith of Wesleyan College for his assistance in compiling this list of Troup County minerals and rocks. As a former resident of this county, he had made a detailed study of this section of our state, and it is my pleasure to give the readers the benefit of this study.

Actinolite. A bright or grayish green mineral containing calcium, magnesium and iron in combination with silica.

Albite. See Feldspar, Albite.

Almandite; Garnet. Deep red crystals of silicates of iron and aluminum, found imbedded in trap rock.

Amphibole; Hornblende. A silicate of calcium, magnesium and some other metal, such as iron, manganese, aluminum, etc. Generally black. A constituent of syenite, gneiss and diorite.

Anorthite. See Feldspar, Anorthite.

Aquamarine. A transparent form of beryl; a gem stone of transparent light green. Lighter in color than the emerald.

Asbestos. A fibrous variety of amphibole is called amianthus; and of serpentine is called chrysolite. Used for fire-proof clothing, theater curtains, roofing, and as a heat insulator.

Augite. See Pyroxene.

Basalt; Trap Rock. A rock of volcanic origin, composed largely of feldspar and pyroxene, but may have other components in addition.

Beryl. A silicate of beryllium and aluminum. Hexagonal crystals of green, or bluish green tint, generally opaque.

Chalcedony. A variety of quartz of pale blue, or gray color and a waxy luster. Favorite mineral among Indians for arrow heads.

Chromite. A compound of iron and chromium with oxygen. Iron-black with metallic luster. Mine of chromite southeast of Louise.

Clay. The plastic hydrous silicate of aluminum, which loses combined water under heat and is no longer plastic. Usually colored by some metallic impurity. When pure is white and is called kaolin.

Conglomerate. A consolidated mixture composed of gravel or shingle embedded in a matrix of finer material, generally sand.

Corundum. A crystalline oxide of aluminum in rhombohedral crystals, or in masses, or in grains. Hardest mineral next to diamond. When black with iron in combination is called emery. Transparent crystals of corundum have names according to color: sapphire, blue; ruby, red; and topaz, yellow.

Diorite. A mixture of feldspar and hornblende, which sometimes has a small amount of pyroxene, sometimes quartz in small quantities.

Feldspar, Albite. An aluminum silicate with soda. Usually white and a common constituent of granite and other igneous rocks.

Feldspar, Anorthite. An aluminum silicate with calcium. A white, grayish, or reddish mass which fractures at oblique angles.

Feldspar, Orthoclase. An aluminum silicate with potash. A whitish mass which fractures at right angles. Large dike near LaGrange airport.

Galena. The sulphide of lead. Bluish gray cubical crystals of metallic luster. Found in very small quantities, though stories are current as to a lost mine, formerly worked by the Indians.

Gneiss, Hornblende. A micaceous granite with a predominance of hornblende. The presence of mica producing a tendency to split into coarse slabs. The hornblende produces a dark color.

Granite. A mixture of quartz and feldspar with small quantities of mica, or of hornblende. The color is whitish or grayish.

Greenstone. Any of the dark green rocks in compact form, usually an igneous alteration of diorite.

Hematite, Red. An oxide of iron, whose reddish dust is identical with iron rust. In crystal form is dark brown and called specular iron ore. In earthy form is called red ocher. Colors many minerals.

Hornblende. See Amphibole.

Ironstone, Clay. A compact mixture of oxide or carbonate of iron with clay or sand. Brown or reddish brown in color.

Jasper. See Quartz, Colored.

Kaolin. A hydrated silicate of aluminum, which loses the water in baking. The basis of pottery and earthenware. Pure white when no metallic salts are present to give color.

Limonite. A ferric oxide of iron, which gives a yellowish color to the associated rocks. In earthy form is called bog iron ore. There is in the county a form resulting from changes in iron pyrite.

Magnetite; Lodestone. The black oxide of iron, which sometimes shows polarity to a compass. Many small boulders of magnetite have been found in the county, which are perfect lodestones.

Metals. Gold is found in minute quantities wherever quartz is abundant, but has not been found in quantities which would justify working.

Iron is widespread in the county, tinging almost every mineral in the county, yet not in commercial quantities as far as developed.

Aluminum is plentiful in most parts of the whole state in the form of clays. Reducible ores have not been exploited in the county.

Potassium is found in orthoclase feldspar, which is fairly abundant, and is capable of producing abundant potash for agricultural use.

Chromium has been mined at the site near Louise, and the increasing use as a rust preventive should enhance this property.

Magnesium is found in many combinations, especially in soapstone and mica, as well as in numerous other minerals. Its value is yet to be discovered in the existing forms in our county.

There have been found traces of many other metals which are more or less rare. Among them may be mentioned: Lead, manganese, calcium, boron, beryllium, tantalum, tungsten, sodium, and perhaps others.

Mica, Muscovite. A potassium aluminum silicate. Pale brown with a greenish tint sometimes, due to iron. Thin sheets colorless. This is the common sheeted mica. It has been mined in this county.

Mica, Phlogopite. A potassium magnesium aluminum silicate. Yellowish brown to brownish red color. Mixed with sands in small streams, it resembles pyrite, but is much lighter in weight.

Mica Schist. Schist is a rock with fine foliations or laminations, and when mica forms a large part of such rock, it is called mica schist.

Onyx. A chalcedony of layers of the different colors. Used to make cameos and intaglios, putting one color in relief against the other.

Orthoclase. See Feldspar, Orthoclase.

Pegmatite. A granite with coarse grained materials. It is characterized by the occlusion of various unusual minerals.

Phyllite. A schist intermediate between mica schist and slate, and has considerable clay as well as mica in the schist.

Pyrite; Fool's Gold. A sulphide of iron. A common brass yellow mineral with metallic luster. When found in sufficient quantities is used in the manufacture of sulphuric acid.

Pyroxene. A constituent of granite and other igneous rocks. Dark green, or black, or dark blue in color. It is found in short prismatic crystals of a variable composition.

Quartz, Colored; Jasper. Silica with colorings due to the presence of metallic elements. Fractures with a smooth surface, and is colored various shades of yellow and red.

Quartz, Milky. A common form of white quartz with a variable degree of translucence. Crystalline or semi-crystalline in character.

Quartz; Rock Crystal. The oxide of silicon. A transparent quartz in masses, or in hexagonal crystals.

Quartz, Rose. A transparent or translucent quartz with a tint of rose, usually massive. Makes beautiful beads when color is deep.

Quartz, Smoky; Cairngorm Stone. A form of transparent quartz with a yellow, or with a smoky appearance. Scorched, or smoked in its appearance.

Quartzite. An igneous rock of which the greater component is quartz fused with the other ingredients.

Rutile. An oxide of titanium, which crystallizes in tetragonal form. Crystals often twins. Reddish brown color modified by the presence of iron. Occasionally found massive and uncrystallized.

Sandstone. A rock of various colors composed of sand firmly united by some cement such as silica, iron oxide, or calcium carbonate.

Semi-Opal. An opal without opalescence. A hydrous silica with variable refractive powers, giving a play of colors.

Serpentine. A hydrous magnesium silicate, usually dull green with mottled spots. Iron adds a reddish tinge when present.

Siderite. A carbonate of iron. A yellowish brown form of iron ore, which sometimes contains traces of calcium, magnesium, and manganese.

Soapstone; Talc. Magnesium metasilicate. A mineral with a soapy feel. A deposit has been found east of the chromite mines at Louise.

Syenite. A granite with a predominance of feldspar.

Tourmaline, Black; Schorl. A silicate of boron, aluminum and some other metal. A black crystal with vertical striations. Sometimes found as massive. The material from which real jet is made.

Trap Rock. See Basalt.

Zircon. An orthosilicate of zirconium. Brown or grayish tetragonal crystals, square prisms, or in pyramids. Lustrous in appearance.

CHAPTER XI. TROUP COUNTY TREES

IN COMPILING a list of Troup County trees, the author has had the advantage of the assistance of Emil Bauer, forester, to whom the credit for many additions to those personally observed is herewith given.

The list may be far from complete, but does include most of the trees that an amateur nature student may easily find. Orchard fruit trees have been purposely omitted because of the interminable variations.

The valley of the Chattahoochee River contains many varieties brought from the upper reaches of the river, and some of them will not be found in sections distant from that stream.

For those who wish to make a more careful and technical study of our trees, the following books are suggested: "Our Native Trees" by Harriet L. Keeler, published by Charles Scribner Sons of New York; an ideal book, profusely illustrated, for one without technical knowledge, for it contains both popular and technical distinctions and descriptions for any season of the year; "Trees of Northern United States" by Austin C. Apgar, published by American Book Company; this book contains a larger number of varieties and variations, but is entirely technical in language.

Abele Tree. See Poplar, White.

Acacia. See Locust.

Alder. Alnus glutinosa. A shrubby tree found near watercourses. Simple nearly round serrate leaves. Identified by the strobile, or persistent catkin, resembling a mulberry in shape, but is dry and black and remains on the tree after the leaves have fallen.

Althea; Hibiscus. Hibiscus syriacus. A widely cultivated member of the hibiscus family with various colors of flowers: white, pink and blue. The flowers resemble the hollyhock, but are not clustered.

Angelica Tree; Hercules Club. Aralia spinosa. Frequently miscalled the prickly ash. Scattered prickles and leaf scars on the trunk which is bare in winter. Enormous leaves four feet long look like young branches, and are three-fold pinnately compound. The white terminal cluster of flowers blooms in August.

Apple, Crab; Fragrant Crab. Pyrus coronaria. Found on every wayside with its fragrant rose-colored blossoms of early spring, and its thorny and tangled masses of branches, an extremely acid fruit.

Arbor Vitae. See Cedar, White.

Ash Trees. All the ash trees have bark either brownish or ashy gray. The leaves are compound with varying number of leaflets. The fruit is in panicles of samaras, or thin papery winged seed holders.

Ash, Blue. Fraxinus quadrangulata. Bark light gray tinged with red. Branchlets four angled, rusty orange changing to gray. Leaflets five to nine, ovate. Autumn color from brown and purple to yellow. Samaras numerous, $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch by 1 to 2 inches long.

Ash, Green. Fraxinus lanceolata. May be readily distinguished by the smooth bright green branchlets. Leaflets seven to nine, darker than other varieties of ash, bright green on both sides.

Ash, Mountain. Pyrus americana. Bark light gray and scaly. Leaves resemble the sumac, thirteen to seventeen leaflets, serrate. Pomes or berries green changing to red when ripe, not edible.

Ash, Red. Fraxinus pubescens. The inner surface of bark is red. The branchlets are downy. Leaflets seven to nine are oblong. Samaras are slender and straight.

Ash, Water; Carolina Ash. Fraxinus platycarpa. A small tree found along streams. Leaflets five to seven, ovate. Samaras often three-winged.

Ash, White. Fraxinus americana. Bark gray with deep furrows. Branchlets dark green changing to ashy gray. Leaflets five to nine, ovate. Samaras long linear.

Aspen; Quaking Aspen. Populus tremuloides. Characterized by the quivering of the leaves in almost imperceptible breezes. The leaf stem is flat at right angles to the broadly ovate leaf. Bark greenish brown. Branchlets red brown changing to light gray.

Azalea, Wild Honeysuckle. Azalea nudiflora. The small shrub with clusters of white and pink, and sometimes yellow blossoms, before the leaves are grown. Sometimes found with rusty gourd-like seed pods, brown.

Azalea; Swamp Honeysuckle. Azalea viscosa. Similar to above but the white flowers appear after the leaves. No other colors.

Basswood. See Linden.

Bay, Sweet; Swamp Magnolia; Small Magnolia. Magnolia glauca. Bitter aromatic bark. Evergreen leaves leathery like magnolia. Flowers smaller than magnolia, creamy white, and sometimes purple.

Beech. Fagus ferruginea. The smooth ashy gray bark is the favorite place to carve initials. Leaves resemble the elm in size and shape. The triangular nut is small but has fine flavor.

Birch, Black; Sweet Birch; Mahogany Birch. Betula lenta. The aromatic dark brown bark with deep furrows does not curl. Ovate leaves three to six inches. Scaly strobiles from one to one and one-half inches.

Birch, Red. Betula nigra. Bark curls back in thin papery plates. The leaves are serrate with wedge-shape bases entire. The strobiles are about one and one-half inches.

Birch, Yellow. Betula lutea. The trunk resembles the white ash, and the branches resemble the wild cherry. Leaves are ovate with cordate bases.

Bladder Nut Tree. Staphylea trifoliata. A small tree of beautiful proportions. Trifoliate leaf, central leaflet with longer petiole. The white blossoms appear in May. Three-celled pod with small brown seed.

Blackthorn. See Sloe.

Black Gum. Nyssa sylvatica. A tough wood with interlaced fibres. Oval leaves which become bright red in autumn. Dark blue or black drupes, or berries. Favorite old time back-log for the yuletide holiday, which lasted until the back-log burned in two.

Buckeye, Red. Aesculus octandra hybrida. A small shrub with leaves of five leaflets digitately spread. Leaves yellow in autumn. Terminal panicles of red flowers. Buckeyes are sometimes used as a charm against disease, and are carried in the pocket for that purpose.

Button Bush. Cephalanthus occidentalis. A small bushy shrub sometimes called ball willow. Numerous small creamy flowers in a round head, which makes the ball. Loves a damp soil.

Buttonwood. See Sycamore.

Catalpa; Indian Bean. Catalpa catalpa. The large cordate leaf is a favorite of caterpillars. Leaves in pairs or threes. Many-flowered panicle of white flowers. The capsule or bean from six to twenty inches in length.

Cedar, Ground. See Juniper.

Cedar, Red; Savin. Juniperus virginiana. Bright red wood. Tufts of yellow jelly cling to twigs in rainy weather. Needles are awl-shaped. Branches sprawl in all directions.

Cedar, White; Arbor Vitae. Thuja occidentalis. Needles in four rows, flattened as if pressed. Fruit a globular woody cone.

Cherry, Black. Prunus serotina. Green to reddish brown branchlets. Bark black and rusty. Oblong leaves. Dark purple drupes in clusters.

Cherry Laurel. See Laurel.

Chestnut. Castanea sativa. Serrate leaves which yellow in autumn. Large burs with two or three nuts. Dry wood crackles when burnt.

China Tree; Chinaberry. Melia azedarach. Small tree with compound leaves. The umbrella china tree with a uniform rounded top is a variety. The drupes are green at first turning to a pulpy yellow at maturity. They are excellent pop-gun ammunition when green.

Chinquapin. Castanea pumila. A small tree resembling the chestnut, but with much smaller burs, containing only one acorn-like nut.

Cucumber, Yellow. Magnolia cordata. Leaves like the magnolia are not evergreen, turning yellow in autumn. Flowers lemon yellow tinged with red. Fruit about three inches in length.

Custard Apple. See Papaw.

Cypress, Bald; Southern Cypress. Taxodium distichum. One of the cone bearers like the pine. Peculiar conical excrescences grow up from the roots characterize the tree. Specimens near Salem school.

Dogwood, Flowering. Cornus florida. Tree with opposite leaves is easily distinguished by the four white sepals around a small clover-like head of minute yellow blossoms. The alternate leafed dogwood has not been observed in this county. Another variety with bright red branchlets has been observed, but it seems not to have been listed in floras.

Elder. Sambucus canadensis. A shrubby tree with a weak stem and a large pith core. Leaves compound pinnate. The white cymes of flowers in spring, and smooth black berries in autumn easily mark the plant. Pop-gun barrels from the pithy stems, and excellent wine from the berries are often made.

Elder, Poison. See Sumac, Poison.

Elder, Box. See Maple, Ash leaf.

Elm Trees. The varieties of elms may always be distinguished by the differences in the crab-claw-like samaras of the seed enclosures. The autumn colors of all the elms are varied tints of yellow, or brown.

Elm, Cork; Rock Elm. Ulmus racemosa. The branches have corky wings on the two-year old parts. Small leaves. Samaras winged all around.

Elm, Red; Slippery Elm. Ulmus fulva. Bark red tinged. Leaves large and doubly serrate, asymmetric. Samaras hairy with bare margins.

Elm, White; American Elm; Water Elm. Ulmus americana. Rough gray bark with no red. Green to reddish brown branchlets. Samaras with notch entirely closed.

Elm, Winged; Wahoo. Ulmus alata. The corky wings on all parts of twigs. Samaras a long oval. Elliptical leaves.

Euonymous, American. See Strawberry Bush.

Fringe Tree. Chionanthus virginica. Bark a red tinged brown. The branchlets green shading to orange. Opposite ovate leaves. Dark blue drupes in small clusters.

Hackberry; Sugarberry; Nettle Tree. Celtis occidentalis. Tree similar to the elms, with asymmetric serrate leaves. The drupe or berry is a little larger than the wild cherry, palatable when ripe.

Haw, Black; Stag Bush. Viburnum prunifolium. The black haw is without thorns and has a short crooked trunk. Dark blue drupes are edible after frost. The leaves and fruit resemble the cherry laurel.

Haw, Scarlet. See Thorn Scarlet Fruited.

Hawthorn; Black Thorn. Crataegus tomentosa. Gray barked shrub with the branchlets similar to scarlet fruited thorn. Ovate leaves serrate except at base. The pomes are dull red.

Hercules Club. See Angelica Tree.

Hickories. The varieties of hickories are distinguished by the number of leaflets on the compound leaves, and by the size and shape of the nuts and their shells. The leaves of all varieties are yellow in autumn.

Hickory, Mockernut. Carya tomentosa. Seven to nine leaflets. Spherical thick shell with a four ridged hard shell nut.

Hickory, Pignut. Carya porcina. Five to seven leaflets. Hulls thick and thin, but small nuts with thin walls. Favorite food of wild hogs.

Hickory, Shellbark; Shagbark Hickory. Carya alba. Light gray scaly bark, sometimes in large plates. Nuts somewhat flattened.

Hickory, Small Mockernut. Carya microcarpa. Similar to the mockernut hickory in leaves, but the nut small and not so hard.

Hickory, Swamp; Bitternut. Carya amara. Seven to eleven leaflets. Nuts resemble pecans, but are bitter to taste. Specimens found in the vicinity of the old Cameron Mill.

Holly. Ilex opaca. Dioecious, that is male and female plants; only the staminate trees bear the red berries. Characterized by the wavy margined leaves with spiny points.

Honeysuckle, Wild. See Azalea.

Hornbeam; Blue Beech. Carpinus caroliniana. A beautiful tree similar to the cork elm in foliage. The fruit are clusters of halberd shaped involucre. The autumn colors are red, scarlet and orange.

Hornbeam, Hop; Ironwood. Ostrya virginiana. A small tree with gray brown bark. Leaf similar to white elm with indented veinlets. The strobile resembles that of the hop vine.

Huckleberry. Gaylussacia dumosa. A very small shrub with oblong-ovate leaves, entire. The berries smooth and shining black. Specimens found on the hillsides north of Chattahoochee.

Ironwood. See Hornbeam, Hop.

Judas Tree. See Redbud.

Juniper; Ground Cedar. Juniperus communis. Needles in whorls of three at right angles to branches. Tree tends to cone shape. Berries are tiny green spheres with a silvery coat of bloom. The berries are used in the manufacture of gin.

Laurel; Cherry Laurel. Prunus caroliniana. Small tree with evergreen ovate leaves. Branchlets green with tan spots. Small black drupe which sometimes stupefies birds.

Laurel, Mountain; Calico Bush; Sheepbane. Kalmia latifolia. The many flowered pink and white corymbs of top-shaped flowers with dark dots easily mark the laurel when in bloom in April or May. Specimens found on Salem Road and on banks of Chattahoochee.

Linden; Basswood; Lime Tree. Tilia americana. Branchlets light gray shading to reddish brown. Heart shaped leaves with fine serrations. Nut-like seed attached to oblong bract by long fiber.

Liquidamber. See Sweet Gum.

Locust; Acacia; Black Locust; Yellow Locust. Robinia pseudacacia. Small tree with black thorns, sometimes branched. Seven to nine leaflets on the compound leaf. Flat dry brownish legume about four inches.

Locust, Honey. Gleditschia triacanthos. Dark scaly bark with thorns. Leaves bi-pinnate. Pods about one foot long filled with sweet pulp between the seeds, dark brown.

Magnolia, Large Flowered; Southern Evergreen Magnolia. Magnolia grandiflora. Evergreen leaves, shiny above, rusty below. Large white flowers. Oval mass of scarlet seeds.

Magnolia, Mountain. See Umbrella Tree.

Magnolia, Swamp. See Bay, Sweet.

Maple Trees. The maples are characterized by palmate leaves radiating in five lobes, by the brilliant autumn coloring, and by the shape of the key, or double samara.

Maple, Ash Leaf; Box Elder. Negundo aceroides. This tree has the compound leaf of the ash and the fruit of the maple. Three to five leaflets and the presence of keys identify this maple.

Maple, Mountain. Acer spicatum. Cordate base and serrate margin for leaves. Key is red changing to brown. Scarlet and orange in fall.

Maple, Red; Swamp Maple; Soft Maple. Acer rubrum. Early buds and the branches red. Keys red. Autumn colors are scarlet and crimson.

Maple, Silver; Soft Maple; White Maple. Acer dasycarpum. Leaves silvery white on under side. Middle lobe tri-lobed. Keys with curved wings. Pale yellow in autumn.

Maple, Sugar; Rock Maple. Acer saccharinum. Branchlets green. Leaves with cordate base. Keys green. Maple syrup made from sap.

Mimosa; Crimson Acacia. Acacia julibrissin. Bi-pinnate leaves with eight to twelve pinnae, each with 25 to 30 leaflets. Flowers in clusters with the heads resembling crimson thistles. Legume flat.

Mistletoe. Phoradendron flavescens. An evergreen parasite on other trees. Brittle stems of translucent green. Leaves pale green. White glutinous berries.

Mock Orange. See Orange, Osage.

Mulberry, French. Callicarpa americana. A small shrub which is easily identified by the autumn clusters of violet berries. Easily propagated by seed or cuttings.

Mulberry, Paper. Broussonetia papyrifera. Large ovate leaf of nine inches, underside tomentose. Wood is spongy white. Propagates freely from root runners.

Mulberry, Red. Morus rubra. Leaves with cordate base and serrate margin, sometimes lobed. Compound drupes red to dark purple. Favorite fruit of boys and birds.

Myrtle, Crape. Lagerstroemia indica. A cultivated small tree with smooth sycamore-like bark of olive brown. The clusters of pink, purple, or white flowers have a craped crumpled appearance.

Nettle Tree. See Hackberry.

Oak Trees. The oaks are divided into two classes: first, those with rounded leaves and one-year acorns; second, those with pointed leaves and two-year acorns. The varieties are distinguished by the size and shape of leaves and acorns.

Oak, Bear; Scrub Oak. Quercus ilicifolia. Five lobed leaves with wedge shaped points. Very flat biennial acorns. Autumn colors are dull red or yellow. Resembles post oak except the bark.

Oak, Black; Yellow Bark Oak. Quercus tinctoria. Seven pointed lobes with deep sinuses. Large biennial acorns with roundish cups. The autumn tints are dull red, or brown and yellow. Inner bark yellow.

Oak, Black Jack; Barren Oak. Quercus nigra. Delta shaped leaves with three lobed point. Oblong ovate biennial acorns. Brown or yellow in autumn.

Oak, Chestnut. Quercus prinus. Crenate obovate leaves similar to the chestnut. Long oval acorn annually. Dull yellow in autumn.

Oak, Live. Quercus virens. An evergreen oak with oval or oblong leaves. Acorns in clusters of one to three.

Oak, Pin; Swamp Spanish Oak. Quercus palustris. Leaves with five or seven lobes, middle pair longer. Hemispherical acorns. Autumn tints a deep scarlet. Pointed leaves.

Oak, Post. Quercus minor. Leaves with five rounded lobes, middle pair longer. Acorn and cup together conical. Yellowish brown in autumn. Vertical furrows in bark.

Oak, Red. Quercus rubra. Seven to nine pointed lobes terminating in a bristle. Large biennial acorn in shallow cup. Inner bark red. Autumn tints are yellow bronze.

Oak, Scarlet. Quercus coccinea. Seven to nine sharp pointed lobes with deep sinuses. Resembles red oak, but leaves narrower and acorns smaller. Scarlet autumn leaves.

Oak, Scrub. See Oak, Bear.

Oak, Shingle; Laurel Oak. Quercus imbricaria. Oblong or oval leaves similar to live oak. Acorns nearly spherical. Dark red in autumn.

Oak, Spanish. Quercus falcata. Sprawling three to five pointed lobes. Globular acorns, small. Autumn tint yellow.

Oak, Swamp White. Quercus bicolor. Loosely sinuate craped leaves with rounded sinuses. Large acorns on short base cup. Autumn tints a dull yellow.

Oak, Water. Quercus aquatica. Concave deltoid leaves, sometimes faintly lobed. Small oval acorns half covered by cup.

Oak, White. Quercus alba. Seven to nine rounded lobes with deep sinuses. Oblong acorns in shallow cup. Autumn tints a deep red.

Oak, Willow. Quercus phellos. Slender willow-like leaves pointed at both ends. Small hemispherical acorns. Autumn tint a pale yellow.

Oak, Yellow; Chinquapin Oak; Chestnut Oak. Quercus acuminata. Silver gray bark. Leaves similar and smaller than chestnut oak. Acorn and cup together oval and small, light brown in color.

Osage Orange; Mock Orange. Maclura aurantiaca. Wood orange yellow. Thorny branches. Fruit is a large yellow ball of united drupes with a milky juice. Ovate leaves about four inches long.

Palmetto, Dwarf Fan. Chamoerops humilis. These dwarfs with fan leaves are found on Long Cane Creek.

Papaw; Custard Apple. Asimina triloba. Leaves similar to sourwood and persimmon, larger than persimmon. An oblong kidney-shaped fruit about four inches long, palatable. Flowers as green as the leaves, then darkens to rich red.

Paulownia, Imperial. Paulownia imperialis. A naturalized tree from Japan. Very large broad leaves, six to ten inches wide. Terminal panicles of purple flowers. Sometimes miscalled cottonwood.

Pecan. Carya olivaeformis. A cultivated member of the hickories. Compound leaf with eleven or more leaflets. The nuts vary greatly in the many different varieties.

Persimmon. Diospyrus virginiana. A member of the ebony family with the sapwood yellowish. Five inch oval leaves. The familiar yellow berry easily identifies the tree. A variation found has purple fruit.

Pine Trees. The pines are identified by the number of needles in a bundle, and by the shape and position of the cones on a tree.

Pine, Loblolly; Old Field Pine. Pinus taeda. Six to ten inch needles in bundles of three. Long slightly concave cones.

Pine, Long Leaf Yellow; Southern Yellow Pine. Pinus palustris. Ten to fifteen inch needles in threes. Long cylindrical cones.

Pine, Pitch; Torch Pine. Pinus rigida. Three to five inch needles in threes, sometimes mixed with twos. Small ovate cones sometimes clustered in twos and threes.

Pine, Short Leaf Yellow; Yellow Pine. Pinus echinata. Three to five inch needles in twos. Ovate cones not prickled near base for one-third of length. Cones lateral.

Pine, White. Pinus strobus. Needles in bundles of five, which is all that is necessary to identify this species.

Plum, Bullace. See Sloe.

Plum, Wild Red or Yellow. Prunus americana. No identification is required, except the red and yellow drupes in early summer.

Poplar, Lombardy. Populus dilatata. Introduced from Europe. Tall and slender trunk with closely hugging branches. Leaves similar to the aspen. Numerous suckers grow from near the base of trunk.

Poplar, White; Abele Tree. Populus alba. Dark green leaves with a cottony fuzz on under side. Leaves resemble maple leaves. Roots creeping send up shoots on all sides. Willow-like catkins.

Poplar, Yellow; Tulip Tree. Liriodendron tulipifera. The light gray trunks with greenish yellow tulip-like flowers identify the tree. Four lobed cordate leaf, sometimes called the "baby's shirt." Fruit is a light brown hop-like cone.

Redbud; Judas Tree. Cercis canadensis. The heart shaped leaf, the bountiful mass of small purple blossoms, and the legume like a butter bean, are sufficient to identify this tree.

Rose, Cherokee. Rosa laevigata. The impenetrable clumps of these roses with their solitary white blossoms, and the stout recurved prickles on every branch mark this semi-wild rose.

Rose, Eglantine; Sweetbrier. Rosa rubiginosa. Foliage sweetly aromatic when crushed. Pale pinkish solitary flower with five petals.

Rose, Pasture. Rosa humilis. Resembles the eglantine rose, but the foliage is not aromatic. Flowers generally solitary.

Sassafras. Sassafras sassafras. Richly aromatic bark and root. Red brown bark. Leaves very variable. Root bark makes a pleasant tea.

Savin. See Cedar, Red.

Silverbell Tree. Halesia tetraptera. White bell-shaped flowers few in a cluster. Fruit a four winged dry pod, remaining until midwinter. Ovate leaves four to six inches long.

Sloe; Blackthorn; Bullace Plum. Prunus spinosa. Resembles the common wild plum, but the fruit ripens later in summer, and is bitter or sour, and never sweetens.

Snowdrop Tree. Halesia diptera. A variation of the silverbell tree, the difference is that of a two winged fruit instead of four.

Sourwood; Sorrell Tree. Oxydendrum arboreum. Leaves resemble large persimmon leaves. Panicles of bell-shaped flowers. Branchlets light green changing to reddish. Leaves scarlet in autumn.

Stagbush. See Haw, Black.

Strawberry Bush; American Euonymus. Euonymus americana. A small shrub which is characterized by the crimson fruit remaining after the leaves have fallen. Similar to the evergreen euonymus berries.

Stuartia, Virginia. Stuartia virginica. Two inch leaves elliptic-ovate. Globular pod. Flowers white with purple filaments and blue anthers. A beautiful shrub.

Sumac, Dwarf Mountain. Rhus copallina. Interstices of compound leaves are winged. The fruit is a crimson hairy drupe, terminal.

Sumac, Velvet; Staghorn Sumac. Rhus typhina. Compound leaves with eleven to thirty-one leaflets. Deep crimson panicles of drupes make a nice lemonade. Autumn colors crimson, yellow and orange.

Sumac, Poison; Poison Dogwood. Rhus venenata. Called the most dangerous tree in American flora. Pinnately compound leaves with the leaflets entire. The berries are white or tan. The acrid juice is more painful than poison ivy, and takes longer to heal.

Sweetbrier. See Rose, Eglantine.

Sweet Gum; Liquidambar. Liquidambar styraciflua. Five lobed star pointed leaves. Cork winged branchlets. Spiny many-capsuled ball as fruit. Source of home made chewing gum.

Sweet Shrub; Sweet Scented Shrub. Butneria florida. The familiar small shrub with aromatic bark and brownish purple flowers, fragrant.

Sycamore; Buttonwood. Platanus occidentalis. Reddish brown bark peels off leaving almost white surface. Leaves rough to touch. Fruit is a one inch ball hanging from a long filament. The forest ghost.

Syringa. Philadelphus grandiflorus. Ovate opposite leaves. Flowers white tubular with spreading petals, not fragrant; four parted.

Thorn, Cockspur; Newcastle Thorn. Crataegus crus-galli. Obovate leaves with cuneiform base. Second year branchlets thorned. Dull red pomes, commonly called haws.

Thorn, Scarlet Fruited; White Thorn; Scarlet Haw. Crataegus coccinea. Bark light brown to ashy gray. Scarlet pomes in twos and threes. Branches spined.

Thorn, Spatulate Leaf. Crataegus spathulata. Most of the leaves are spatulate. The berries or pomes are small and bright red in thick clusters.

Tulip Tree. See Poplar, Yellow.

Tupelo; Pepperidge; Sour Gum. Nyssa sylvatica. Resembles the black gum in many ways. Leaves tend to cluster at ends of branches. The dried roots are lighter than cork.

Umbrella Tree; Mountain Magnolia. Magnolia tripetala. The enormous oval oblong leaf from twelve to eighteen inches long is sufficient to identify this tree. Fruit a red mass of carpels.

Wahoo. See Elm, Winged.

Walnut, Black. Juglans nigra. Compound leaf with fifteen to twenty-three leaflets. Nut inclosed in a green drupe, which changes to dark brown dry drupe. Hulls are a source of dye for copperas jeans.

Willow, Black. Salix nigra. Dark brown or black bark. Slender leaves. Catkins from one to three inches in length.

Willow, Sandbar; Long Leaf Willow. Salix fluviatilis. Leaves six inches long pointed at both ends. Branchlets slender and of orange color. Catkins about an inch long.

Willow, Weeping. Salix babylonica. Characterized by the slender drooping branches and leaves. Native of Babylon. Dioecious tree and only the pistillate tree in America. Propagated by cuttings.

Witch Hazel. Hamamelis virginiana. Light brown smooth bark; inner bark reddish purple. White dotted orange brown branchlets. Wavy toothed oval leaves. Yellow brown two celled pod.

CHAPTER XII. TROUP COUNTY BIRDS

IN PREPARING a list of Troup County birds, advantage has been taken of the hobby of Paul B. Smith in the study of bird life, to whom credit is herewith given for his assistance. The list may be far from complete but those listed have been observed as nesting in this county and include some migrators which customarily breed in other sections of the country.

The numeral after the several names of a given bird is the length in inches from the beak to the end of the tail feathers. The upper and lower plumage tints, the color of eggs, songs and calls, nests and the favorite lurking places are taken from standard works on bird life.

Blackbird, Red Wing; Swamp Blackbird; Red Winged Starling.—9½. Male: black with scarlet and buff shoulders; streaked breast. Female: brownish black and no red. Eggs: bluish white. Song: harsh cackle and "Conk-eree." Edges of swamps and ponds, frequently nests on ground.

Bluebird; Blue Robin.—7. Light blue back and brownish red breast. Eggs: pale blue. Song: a continuous warble. Orchards and open woods; nests lined with grass.

Buzzard, Turkey; vulture.—30. Brownish black plumage; naked red head. Eggs: dirty white spotted with brown and lavender. Nests in or near hollow logs and stumps.

Cardinal Grosbeak; Crested Redbird; Virginia Nightingale.—9. Male: brilliant cardinal red with crest; throat black. Female: brownish yellow shading to gray, crested. Eggs: greenish blue with reddish brown spots. Song: loud clear warble; call, a low chirp. Nests are frail structures of twigs in thickets.

Catbird; Black Capped Thrush.—9. Dark gray with breast somewhat lighter in tint. Eggs: greenish blue. Song: grating rasp; also a fine singer in imitation of birds. Hedges and thickets; nests lined with black rootlets.

Chat, Yellow Breasted; Polyglot Chat; Yellow Mocking Bird.—7½. Back gray with yellow breast shading to white under. Eggs: white speckled with red brown. Song: a medley of whistles and calls; flirts tail in singing. Tangled thickets; nests of grass and weeds near ground. This bird is a ventriloquist.

Chicadee, Carolina.—4½. Crown, nape and throat black; upper gray; under a dirty white; white cheeks look like a collar. Eggs: white sparingly speckled with red brown. Song: "phebe;" "chic-a-dee-dee;" "dee-dee-dee." Nests in hollow stumps.

Chuck-Will's-Widow.—12. Male: rusty brown speckled; outer half of wing white. Female: no white. Eggs: white blotched with lavender. Song:

"chuck-will's-widow." Nests on ground in leaves; in danger carries nestlings in beak.

Creeper, Brown.— $5\frac{1}{2}$. Brown with ashy gray stripes; barred wings; lozenge mottles. Eggs: white speckled with reddish brown. Song: faint trill; "tseep." Nests behind loose bark; of twigs, moss and bark.

Crow, Common; "Corn Thief."—16. Glossy black with violet reflections. Eggs: white spotted with brown. Coarse rickety nest in high tree tops. Two crows kill in one day birds which would destroy 100,000 insects.

Cuckoo, Black-billed; Rain Crow.— $11\frac{1}{2}$. Upper grayish brown; under whitish. Eggs: greenish blue. Song: repeated "cow," sometimes "cow-uh." Flat shabby nests at low elevations. Destroys tent caterpillars.

Dove, Turtle.—12. Fawn color to bluish gray; breast reddish brown. Eggs: white. Song: "a-coo-o; coo-o; coo-oo; coo-o." Nests of loose sticks in hedges.

Flicker; Golden-winged Woodpecker; Clape; Yellowhammer; High-hole; Yarup.—13. Head and neck gray; red crescent on neck; upper golden brown barred with black; linings under bright yellow. Eggs: white. Songs: several; "cuk, cuk, cuk;" "quit-u." Nests in tree and pole cavities.

Flycatcher, Crested.—9. Dark olive or gray, crested. Eggs: buffy white streaked with brown. Song: repeated "wit-whit." Nests of straw in holes of dead limbs. Always places a piece of snake skin in nest.

Goldfinch, American; Wild Canary; Yellowbird; Thistle Bird.— $5\frac{1}{4}$. Male: bright yellow tipped with black in summer, changing to yellow olive in winter with drab tips. Female: brownish olive upper with yellowish under. Eggs: pale blue. Song: prolonged canary-like "tcheer," and twittering. Nests of fibers and grass with thistle down lining.

Grackle, Purple; Crow Blackbird; Maize Thief.—12. Iridescent purple head and greenish back. Eggs: pale bluish gray. Song: "tshack" and a squeaky song. Nests of sticks and twigs in bushes.

Hawk, Sparrow.—12. Tawney back, bluish wings, chestnut tail; seven blotches on head. Eggs: speckled brown on white. Nests in holes of woodpeckers or in old crow nests.

Hummingbird, Ruby-throated.— $3\frac{1}{2}$. Green iridescent plumage, male with red or orange breast. Eggs: white. Song: twitters and squeaks. Nest a beautiful network of fibers and cobwebs, moss lined.

Indigo Bird; Indigo Bunting.— $5\frac{1}{2}$. Male: indigo blue. Female: brownish with trace of blue. Eggs: pale bluish white. Song: canary-like warble, and a sharp chirp. Nests of grass in shrubs and bushes.

Jay, Blue.—11. Slaty blue tipped with white. Eggs: pale greenish blue. Song: two-syllabled whistle, or harsh scream; also a mimic. Nests of twigs and sticks; prefer pine trees for nests. These birds bury nuts to soften for opening.

Kingbird; Tyrant Flycatcher; Bee Martin.—8½. Dark olive or gray; adults with concealed orange croon patch. Eggs: white speckled with brown red. Song: shrill "thsee." Nests of sticks, roots, grass, string at any height. Watches for insects from a favorite perch.

Kingfisher, Belted; Halcyon.—13. Upper parts slaty blue; under, white. Eggs: white. Song: loud and penetrating harsh rattle. Nests in tunnel in side of a bank. Perches near water, watching for fish.

Kite, Swallow-tail; Hawk. Chestnut colored with swallow-like barred tail. Eggs: white spotted with brown. Song: a shriek not often heard. Nests of sticks and grass in tall trees.

Kite, White-tailed; Hawk. Like the above except that the tail is white.

Martin, Purple.—8. Male: rich glossy black; wings and tail duller. Female: with more of brown and mottled. Eggs: dull white. Song: a grating warble or twitter. Nests of straw, paper, rags in bird houses or gourds. Enemy of crows and hawks.

Meadowlark; Field Lark; Oldfield Lark.—10½. Mottled brownish plumage. Eggs: white speckled with brown. Song: "tseeu-tseer," and a sputtering call. Nests in sedges on ground, partially arched over.

Mockingbird.—10½. Gray above; wings and tail brownish; wings white tipped; whitish under. Eggs: bluish green. Song: great variety of musical notes; a great mimic. Nests in impenetrable thickets or bushes. The unsurpassed singer; some taught to sing airs.

Nighthawk; Nightjar; Bull Bat; Mosquito Hawk; Pisk.—10. Mottled brownish; white band across tail and wings. Eggs: gray and white. Song: nasal "peent." Nests on bare ground, sometimes on gravel roofs in cities. Feeds on the wing, destroying flying insects.

Nuthatch, White-breasted; Tree Mouse; Devil Downhead.—6. Upper parts slate color; under, white. Eggs: white spotted with brown. Song: "yank-yank," "ya-ya" in same tone. Nests in cavities lined with leaves and feathers. Climbs trees with head downward.

Oriole, Baltimore; Golden Oriole; Firebird; Golden Robin.—7½. Male: orange and black. Female: dull yellowish and gray. Eggs: white scrawled with brownish black. Song: clear varied whistle and warble. Nests of fibers and string suspended from limbs. Place colored strings near nesting place and watch result.

Oriole, Orchard; Orchard Starling.—7½. Male: chestnut and black. Female: yellowish and gray. Eggs: white, speckled and scrawled with black and brown. Song: rich and loud warble; a clattering call. Nest is a woven basket suspended from forks of limbs.

Owl, Barn. Characterized by the large eyes, and nocturnal habits. Eggs: white. Song: hoots, accompanied by snapping of the bill. Nests in holes of trees, on rocks, in deserted nests.

Owl, Horned. Marked with a pointed crest, resembling horns. Eggs: white. Song: hoots and whoos. Nests similar to barn owl.

Partridge; Quail; Bob White.—7. Upper, brown and black marked with buff; under, whitish. Eggs: white. Song: "Old Bob White." Nests on ground in sedges and grasses.

Pewee, Wood.—6½. Dark olive or gray; wings longer than tail; bills hooked. Eggs: creamy white speckled with brown. Song: "pee-ah-wee, pee-wee." Nests are moss covered. Perch on dead limbs in order to see better.

Phoebe; Dusky Flycatcher; Bridge Pewee; Water Pewee.—7. Dusky olive brown above; crested; dingy yellowish white under. Eggs: white. Song: pewit, phoebe. Nests of moss and mud lined with hair, feathers, or wool. Builds near water.

Robin; Red-breasted Thrush; Robin Red-breast.—10. Dull olive gray above; breast red; white under tail. Eggs: bluish green. Song: cheerily-cheer-up. Nests of mud and grass on boughs. An occasional nester here.

Shrike, Northern; Butcher Bird; Nine Killer.—10. Slaty gray above; white spot on wings. Wings and throat black; light gray below. Eggs: grayish with spots darker gray. Song: similar to catbird with various whistles. Nests of twigs and grass in thorny trees. Impales their catches on thorns to better tear in pieces.

Sparrow, Chipping; Chippy; Hairbird; Chipbird.—5½. Black on neck, throat and back; dark red crown; some brown. Eggs: whitish thickly spotted with brown. Song: chip-chip-chip, repeated for several seconds. Nests of twigs, rootlets and lichens generally in pines.

Sparrow, English; House Sparrow.—6¼. Male: ashy with black and chestnut stripes; throat black. Female: same as male but gray under. Eggs: whitish scratched with black. Song: a discordant twittering. Gregarious nests built anywhere, and of grass and leaves.

Sparrow, Field; Field Bunting; Wood Sparrow; Bush Sparrow.—5½. Chestnut streaked with black; grayish white under. Eggs: whitish marked with reddish brown. Song: swee-see-see-se-e-e; piping ascending whistle. Nests of frail grasses and weeds, lined with finer material. Builds in trees and sometimes on ground.

Sparrow, Sharp-tailed Nelson.—5½. Brownish or grayish olive with black streak; pale buff under. Eggs: greenish white speckled with brownish spots. Song: a weak squeaky trill. Nests in hollows of the ground.

Starling.—8. Metallic green and purple. Eggs: pale blue. Song: metallic; flock makes "wheelbarrow chorus." Nests near and in and on buildings. A newcomer to the South.

Swallow, Tree; White-bellied Swallow.—6. Lustrous dark steel green above; soft white below. Eggs: white. Song: twittering. Nests of grass lined with feathers. Lives on border of water, or in orchards.

Swift, Chimney; Chimney Swallow; American Swift.—5½. Sooty black plumage; spines on ends of tail feathers. Eggs: white. Song: a continuous twittering. Nests of sticks glued to side of chimney. Gregarious; feeds on mosquitoes and insects.

Tanager, Scarlet; Black-winged Redbird; Firebird.—7½. Male: brilliant scarlet with black wings and tail. Female: olive green above; lighter below. Eggs: pale bluish green. Song: like the robin but higher; call, "chip-charr."

Tanager, Summer; Redbird; Smooth-headed Redbird.—7½. Male: uniform red. Female: yellowish green olive; orange under. Eggs: bluish green. Song: similar to robin. Nests of twigs and rootlets on limbs in open woods.

Thrasher, Brown; Brown Thrush; Mavis; Brown Mockingbird.—11½. Rusty red brown; white bands on wings; streaked white below. Eggs: bluish white. Song: bright cheerful carol; whistled "wheeu." Nests of twigs and rootlets in hedges and thickets. The official state bird of Georgia.

Thrush, Hermit; Swamp Angel; Little Thrush.—7. Olive brown reddening at tail; pale buff under. Round spots on breast. Eggs: greenish blue. Song: only during nesting time; similar to mockingbird. Nests near or on the ground in briers, bark and leaves.

Thrush, Wood; Song Thrush; Wood Robin; Bellbird.—8. Reddish brown to olive at tail; breast white spotted. Breast spots are heart shaped. Eggs: greenish blue. Song: clear and flute like; call, "quit," "quirt." Nests of grass, weeds and some mud on horizontal limbs.

Towhee; Chewink; Grasel; Joree.—8. Male: black with white breast; chestnut wings and tail. Female: brownish instead of black. Eggs: white with brownish spots. Song: tow-hee-e-e; call, cherink. Nests of bark, leaves and grass, usually on the ground.

Vireo, Blue-headed; Solitary Vireo.—6. Head bluish slate; yellow green sides; whitish under. Two white bars on the wing. Eggs: creamy white. Song: a carol of pure serene trust. Nests are woven baskets of lichens, fibers and bark. Spider webs are interwoven in the nests.

Vireo, Yellow-throated.—6. Plumage greenish; throat and breast yellow. Two white wing bars. Eggs: creamy or rosy white specked with brown. Song: a sad and persistent strain. Nests of bark, grasses and lichens over water.

Waxwing, Bohemian; Black-throated Waxwing; Silktail.—9. Drab above; lighter gray below; crested; black throat. Feather quills dark; two white wing bars; wings tipped with red. Eggs: bluish white specked with black. Song: softly hissed twittering. Nests of twigs and moss, lined with feathers. Generally nests low in pine trees.

Whip-poor-will.—10. Mottle brownish, gray, black and white; bristles under bill. Eggs: pale brown, gray and lilac. Song: repeats its name at night. Nests on bare ground. Moth eaters; takes its food on the wing.

Woodpecker, Downy Southern.—6. Black and white; male with red neck patch; female none. Eggs: white. Song: a sharp series of "peenk." Nests on bare wood in holes of trees.

Woodpecker, Hairy.—9. Black and white with a spot of red on head. Eggs: white. Song: a whistled "peenk." Nests in holes of trees in deep woods.

Woodpecker, Pileated.—17. Black and white crested; red side patches on head. Eggs: white. Song: a two-syllabled shriek. Nests in tree holes; can bore a live tree.

Woodpecker, Red-cockaded.—8½. White and black; male, scarlet side of head; female, none. Eggs: white. Song: a nasal "peenk." Nests in holes of trees.

Woodpecker, Red-headed; Tricolor; Red-head.—9½. Black and white; head and breast red; young, gray-headed. Eggs: white. Song: a repeated "charr." Nests in trees and telephone poles.

Woodpecker, Yellow-bellied; Sapsucker.—8½. Black, white and yellowish above; crown and throat bright red. Eggs: white. Song: a whining "whee;" other calls harsh. Tree holes in deep woods are nesting places. They drill holes in tree bark to eat the sap.

Wren, Carolina; Mocking Wren.—5½. Chestnut brown; throat whitish; white streak from eye to neck. Wings and tail darkly barred. Eggs: white specked with reddish brown. Song: a loud indescribable tinkling. Nests of weeds, grass and trash in brush heaps, holes and boxes.

Wren, House.—5. Cinnamon brown; whitish under; wings and tail barred. Eggs: white, thickly speckled with pinkish brown. Song: loud clear and enthusiastic warble. Nests of grass and weeds in crevices and boxes near houses.

Wren, Short-billed Marsh.—5 $\frac{1}{4}$. Brown faintly streaked with white; black and buff tails. Wings and tail barred; white shading to buff under. Eggs: white. Song: not noted. Nests on sides of reeds; a globular woven nest with side entrance. Moves and rebuilds whenever disturbed.

CHAPTER XIII. TRANSPORTATION

EARLY ROADS. The location of the early trails and roads are largely matters of supposition and conjecture. They were the trails of hunters and trappers, and roads to some market for exchange of trade and supplies. The location of the old river ferries indicate the objective points, when one was traveling westerly from the already settled parts of Georgia.

The Philpot Ferry on the northern line of the present county marks the road through Brown Crossroad, Harrisonville, and Hogansville, towards Greenville, Griffin, and Milledgeville, and eastward.

The Mooty Ferry, now the Mooty Bridge, served the road running diagonally across the county through Ware Crossroad, LaGrange, Pleasant Grove, Troup Factory, Chipley, King's Gap, and on in the direction of Columbus.

The Hawthorn Ferry, north of the island and afterward at the south point of the island above Sterling Bridge, now called McGee Bridge, was the road from Antioch, Cameron Mill, LaGrange, and Mountville, eastward.

The Vernon Ferry was formerly just above the bridge of the A. B. & C. Railroad, and was moved later, on the abandonment of the town of Vernon, to Hairston Ferry near the present Glass Bridge.

The West Point Ferry was in the heart of the town, and accommodated the roads to LaGrange, Chipley and Columbus, and was the crossing place of roads extending into Alabama.

Nearly all the above roads were probably the trails which the Creeks used in reaching their capital, Indian Springs. But the roads running north and south were probably laid out by the white settlers, for the road to Whitesville is along land lot line a greater part of the way.

In laying out the old roads, steepness of grade received little consideration, for ridges and divides were sought for the drainage they afforded, and the crests of hills were vantage points in locating distant landmarks. The only other consideration was to seek approaches to streams where fordable bottoms were found, or for easy bridging secure from floods. The treatment of unavoidable marshes and bogs was to heap the road with stones, where small in extent, and for long stretches to corduroy the road with closely laid poles transverse the road.

The trails were widened into roads for the convenience of wheeled traffic to replace pack animals with panniers. The long established width was thirty feet including such ditches as nature and the annual road working supplied.

VEHICLES. The commerce of the early days was carried in huge conestoga wagons with canvas or hide covers. They were drawn by slow moving oxen, or by mules and horses in teams of two, four, or six to each wagon.

The travel was in caravans for mutual protection, camping by the roadside at night. The old teamsters were unmindful of sanitation and germs, but ever alert to the howl of wolves, the growl of angry or hungry bears, or the war-whoop of unfriendly Indians. The travel of business men and pleasure seekers for short distances was on horseback, gig, or in the family carriages; for the longer distances, the public stage coaches were used.

Mrs. J. H. Traylor described a trip with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cabiniss, from Henry County, Virginia, to Georgia in October of 1827. They came in a carriage with outriders, and their possessions followed in covered wagons. They met with great hospitality on the road, not the least of which was offered by an Indian chief, whose log house looked down on the waters of the Chattahoochee River. In the early days there were many handsome carriages, some of which were lined with heavy satin or velvet, and often cost a thousand dollars. They were drawn by thoroughbred horses, and driven by liveried negro coachmen.

STAGE COACHES. As the population increased, stage coach lines were organized, and they were well patronized. The most popular line passing through the county was the Montgomery and Griffin line, a division of a transcontinental system. These coaches passed through Mountville, near which there was a relay station for fresh horses. David Beaman, a New England man, was the owner of this line, and he owned a house for his hostler, and stables for his horses on a creek near the Boddie home.

The coming and going of the stage coach always elicited the greatest interest from the communities through which the coach passed, as it was the one contact with the outside world. Railroads and telegraphs were not yet used as mediums of communication.

Two Texas girls planned to come to LaGrange College, then operated by the Montgomery brothers, and mistaking the meaning of the word, "Commencement," for the beginning of the term, came nearly all the long trip by stage coach. Discovering their mistake, they decided that it was too long and too hazardous a journey to return, so they remained the entire four years until their graduation before returning to their homes. Many of the older citizens remember Bob Griffin, who was one of the best and the last of the old stage coach drivers in this vicinity.

Mrs. Benjamin H. Hill gives an interesting description of her bridal tour in 1845. Mr. Hill and Miss Emily Moore of Athens were engaged for three years before their marriage. He spent those three years in LaGrange studying law with William Dougherty, and was finally admitted to the bar in the summer of 1845. They were married November 18, 1845, and started on their trip from Athens to Long Cane, Troup County, Georgia, where his father, John Hill lived as a successful farmer. The bride and the groom went from Athens to Union Point in a horse car, drawn by two horses hitched tandem. At Union Point they boarded the Georgia Railroad train for the city of Atlanta. Here after several hours of delay they took the stage coach for Long Cane, stopping every ten miles for a relay of horses. It required as long to go from Athens to Long Cane, as it now does to reach New York. Mrs. Hill continues the narrative by saying that it was a freezing cold night, and on account of the delay of the stage coach, they did not drive the coach to the house, which was a short distance from the road, so they walked, piloted by a tall negro holding aloft a torch to light the way. A great glowing fire welcomed them within doors, and warm hearts took the young bride and groom into their tenderest affection.

CHATTAHOOCHEE RIVER. About 1831 the Chattahoochee River began to attract attention, and Colonel Reuben Thornton, a wealthy and enterprising citizen of West Point, ran barges and flat boats from West Point up the river to a point called Standing Peachtree, which is in DeKalb County, transporting produce, most of which was sold at this point. He took one load of flour over the shoals at Columbus, but could not get his boat back, consequently had to haul his load of sugar, salt, and coffee, to West Point by wagons. After building new boats, he took his cargo on to Standing Peachtree in the boats, and from thence it was wagoned to East Tennessee markets. The merchants of LaGrange and West Point bought their goods in the markets of Augusta, Savannah, or Charleston, and as there was no other means of transportation, they were carried in wagons. These wagons crossed the intervening rivers on flat boats, and it is a significant fact that no serious accident ever occurred. In 1838, Daniel Duncan and J. M. Harrington ran boats from Heard County to West Point. They brought all the material used in building the toll bridge at West Point, and materials for many other structures.

ATLANTA AND LA GRANGE RAILROAD. Incorporated December 27, 1847, with the following incorporators, many of which were Troup County citizens: B. H. Conyers, Andrew J. Berry, John Griffin, Brittain Sims, Sr., Hugh Brewster, John Ray, John H. Johnson, Willis P. Menifee, Littleberry Watts, Joel W. Terrell, J. V. Davis, Thomas W. Bolton, Joseph Poythress, Henry West, Edward Y. Hill, R. A. T. Ridley, John Douglas, William Reid, and James M. Beall. The charter was amended December 14, 1849, to give the power to extend the road to the Alabama line at or near West Point. The building of this railroad excited great interest in the surrounding county, and the day the first train came in to LaGrange, all the citizens of the town and the countryside flocked in to see it. The first engine was named "E. Y. Hill," and the first engineer was Oliver Park. The railroad was completed to West Point in March, 1854; the railroad bridge was built in 1853 and 1854. George H. Winston supplied the stone for the piers.

On December 22, 1857, the name was changed to the present name of Atlanta and West Point Railroad. The old car shed was built in 1857-58, with Daniel H. Cram as architect. The bridge and the depots were destroyed by Colonel LaGrange, commanding the Federal troops that captured Fort Tyler in 1865. They were rebuilt in 1866 by Colonel Grant and son.

The original terminal of the Atlanta and West Point Railroad was located where the No. 14 Highway crosses the present railroad in entering West Point from LaGrange.

MONTGOMERY AND WEST POINT RAILROAD. Incorporated in Georgia on December 26, 1837, it was completed to West Point in July, 1851. The first engine from Montgomery to run through to West Point was named the "General Winfield Scott." This railroad is now called the Western Railway of Alabama, and together with the Atlanta and West Point operates as a unit from Atlanta to Montgomery.

ATLANTA AND WEST POINT RAILROAD. This railroad as described above is a component part of the fast railway mail service between New York and New Orleans. The stations on this road in Troup County are as follows:

Trimble.....	55 miles from Atlanta.....	Flag station
Hogansville.....	58 miles from Atlanta.....	R. B. Briscoe, Agent
Louise.....	64 miles from Atlanta.....	Flag Station
LaGrange.....	71 miles from Atlanta.....	P. E. Redding, Agent
Gabbettville.....	80 miles from Atlanta.....	Flag Station
West Point.....	87 miles from Atlanta.....	I. H. Weaver, Agent

MACON AND BIRMINGHAM RAILROAD. Incorporated December 27, 1886, by Benjamin H. Bigham, Robert S. McFarlin, Elisha D. Pitman, and William C. Yancey, under the name and title of Macon, LaGrange and Birmingham Railroad. A new charter was granted September 9, 1889, under the name of Macon and Birmingham, and this charter amended as to route November 7, 1889, and November 12, 1889. It was completed in 1891 from LaGrange to Sofkee, near Macon. This road proved unable to earn a livelihood, and the greater part of it was abandoned in 1925. However, parts of it are in operation as parts of other systems.

NORTH AND SOUTH RAILROAD. Incorporated October 24, 1870, to run from LaGrange to Rome through Carrollton. The following were the Troup County incorporators: Benjamin H. Bigham, W. O. Tuggle, H. H. Huntley, C. W. Mabry, R. A. T. Ridley, John R. Broome, B. C. Ferrell, F. A. Frost. In the LaGrange Reporter of July 5, 1872: "The present status of the company is over forty miles of heavy road graded, the iron laid on over six miles, with train running and materials on hand to complete fifteen miles more." This road was graded from LaGrange to a point beyond the Mooty Bridge and into Heard County. Further efforts were made to complete this line, when the rights of the Columbus and Northern Railroad were purchased October 15, 1885, by R. S. McFarlin, and a new corporation of the LaGrange North and South Railroad chartered with the following subscribers: R. S. McFarlin, W. V. Gray, Thomas S. Bradfield, Henry E. Ware, B. C. Ferrell, John J. Swain, James G. Truitt, Henry C. Butler, William C. Yancey, O. A. Dunson, Edwin R. Bradfield, Alfred Truitt, Thomas J. Howell, Enoch Callaway, Louis J. Render, F. M. Ridley, Elisha D. Pitman, I. F. Cox, John R. Broome, Benjamin H. Bigham, Francis M. Longley, William J. McClure, and A. D. Abraham and associates. The road was not completed.

LAGRANGE AND TROUP FACTORY RAILROAD. Incorporated December 22, 1857, by Thomas Leslie, Jesse McLendon, Thomas J. Thornton, Thomas C. Evans, Orville A. Bull, John W. McGehee, and James M. Flowers. Never built.

LAGRANGE AND OXFORD (ALA.) RAILROAD. Incorporated March 5, 1856. Five miles were to be built in two years, and the whole to be finished in six years. No evidence of any accomplishment.

LAGRANGE AND BARNESVILLE RAILROAD. Incorporated December 15, 1871, by Jesse McLendon, F. A. Frost, S. W. Swanson, A. D. Abraham, John N. Cooper, Isaac Wise, George V. Boddie, B. B. Amoss, Thomas S. Bradfield, Thomas C. Miller, B. C. Ferrell, B. H. Bigham, J. H. Fannin, W. O. Tuggle, William C. Jarboe, C. W. Mabry, J. E. Toole, H. R. Harris, M. Reeves, J. E. G. Ferrell, John A. Simonton, James W. Banning, Obediah Warren, J. P. Atkinson, M. B. Lovett, J. Banning, James M. C. Robinson, Thomas C. Leslie, J. R. Broome, Godfrey Kener, John H. Mitchell, David Freeman, William E. Murphey, A. Stafford, and R. J. Powell. No construction.

GRIFFIN, LAGRANGE AND WESTERN RAILROAD. Incorporated December 27, 1886, by W. E. H. Searcy and T. D. Rockwell of Spaulding County; J. W. Sullivan of Meriwether County, and James G. Truitt of Troup County. The name was changed September 22, 1887, to Birmingham and Atlantic Airline Railroad. No construction.

BRUNSWICK, LAGRANGE AND NORTHWESTERN RAILROAD. Chartered December 21, 1893, with the provision that the charter be forfeited unless five miles of road are built within five years. Forfeited.

ATLANTA, BIRMINGHAM AND COAST RAILROAD. The records of incorporation of the original company, The Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad, were not available. On March 24, 1905, a committee of LaGrange citizens, Hatton Lovejoy, E. B. Clark, F. E. Callaway, J. G. Truitt, and Roy Dallis, arranged a banquet to entertain George Dole Wadley, vice-president, and Alex Bonnyman, chief of construction, of the railroad. The purpose of the meeting was to insure the routing of the road through LaGrange to the Birmingham terminus, and the effort succeeded. The road made a direct route to the Alabama coal fields and iron and steel mills, and gave promise of increased trade with our sister state. After the many physical difficulties were overcome, there were financial troubles. All the stations in Troup County are flag stations with the exception of the LaGrange station. The stations are: Big Springs, Knott, LaGrange, Pyne, and Abottsford. The LaGrange agent is W. M. Fincher.

CHATTAHOOCHEE VALLEY RAILROAD. This road is located in Alabama with the exception of the passage through the city of West Point. It is a potent factor in the development of the Chattahoochee valley on the Alabama side of that stream, and is the outlet for the products of the plants of the West Point Manufacturing Company.

COUNTY HIGHWAYS. Nothing has been more conducive to the growth and development of Troup County than the system of good roads, which has been evolved from the muddy, and sometimes impassable, roads of even fifteen years ago. The Troup County Commissioners have been active in sponsoring good roads, and as a result of this activity, the county now has thirty-seven miles of concrete paving, and one thousand and thirty miles of topsoiled roads. The convicts housed at the model stockade on the road to Chipley, just beyond Long Cane Creek, are used to keep the roads in the most excellent condition. Number 1 Highway which passes through LaGrange from Franklin southeast to Chipley and Columbus, and number 14 Highway from Trimble to West Point are state highways and are maintained by the state department.

CHAPTER XIV. PUBLIC UTILITIES

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH. Telegraphic facilities came to Troup County soon after the establishment and operation of the Atlanta and LaGrange Railroad in the early eighties.

The location of the office was at first in the old depot, the present freight office, from which place it was removed to the second floor of the Truitt Building and as late as 1908 had only three wire lines in the LaGrange office. It was afterwards moved to the rear of the National Bank Building, and in 1929 moved to the present office on Bull Street.

Among the operators of the LaGrange office are noted the names of William Speer, Ed Dansby, Mrs. May Dennis Heard, Miss Ruby Medlock, Mr. Sanford, and the present manager, Mrs. Clyde McLaney Jones, who has held her post since 1908. This station also has a branch office at the Southwest LaGrange community located in the Callaway Mills General Offices under the management of Miss Lucy McLaney.

The West Point office was established at about the same time as the LaGrange office and is under the efficient management of Mrs. Walters.

The Hogansville office established at a later date is under the management of Mrs. Mary John Briscoe. Other communities of the county are reached through telephone, as the railroad operators do not accept commercial messages.

The present wire service (1933) consists of six wire circuits with a total of about twenty available in an emergency, but which merely relay through the LaGrange office and can be switched into active service from that office, and about the same number in the West Point office.

POSTAL TELEGRAPH CO. This company is a newcomer to our county, and opened the LaGrange office on September 24, 1929, under the management of Olin W. Alexander. This company can furnish typewriter extension to remote points, which automatically receives and transmits messages through the parent office. The only other office of this company in Troup County is located at West Point, where similar facilities are offered, and is under the management of Mrs. Roy Pirkle.

COMMERCIAL TELEPHONE CO. The first commercial telephone of the county was operated by the above company, chartered May 5, 1892, by J. F. Askew, C. V. Truitt and T. C. Lane. The charter specified the line from Newnan to West Point, and was operated as a toll line connecting the intermediate points, but was abandoned after the Southern Bell entered LaGrange.

LAGRANGE TELEPHONE EXCHANGE. This pioneer exchange was built in 1894 by W. W. Milam and his son, W. R. Milam, and commenced operation with only twenty-eight subscribers in an office over the old Bank of LaGrange on Main Street. In 1900 the exchange was moved to the residence of W. W. Milam at 203 Greenville Street with two hundred subscribers. In 1906 it was moved to an office over Davis Pharmacy with four hundred twenty-five subscribers. In 1895 a toll line of Southern Bell entered the exchange for the convenience of subscribers in long distance calls. In 1909 the exchange was sold to the Southern Bell by the Milam family. The county and LaGrange in particular are indebted to this family for the efficient service they rendered in this pioneer enterprise.

WEST POINT TELEPHONE AND ELECTRIC CO. This exchange was chartered on November 7, 1896, by W. A. and J. T. Robinson. It furnishes the telephonic communication for the thriving city of West Point and its Alabama neighbor of Lanett. This exchange has Southern Bell connections, but continues to remain a separate corporation. It is under the management of J. Smith Lanier and has been for many years.

HOGANSVILLE TELEPHONE CO. This exchange was chartered on May 6, 1902, by J. C. Wilkinson, M. K. Word and A. R. Arnold, and continued to operate until 1909 when it was purchased by the Southern Bell and made a part of that great system.

BIG SPRINGS TELEPHONE CO. This exchange was built by Eldredge Jones in 1907 and reaches the communities of Mountville, Salem, Odessadale and Stovall. It is owned and operated by Grady Jones with about twenty subscribers since 1915 after the death of Eldredge Jones.

SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH CO. This great company bought the LaGrange and Hogansville exchanges in 1909 and has operated long distance lines since 1895. It has about sixteen hundred phones in the county and numerous trunk lines for long distance use. Telephones were formerly neighborhood means of communication, but one can now speak to the ends of the world in combination of wired and radio phones.

RAILWAY EXPRESS AGENCY. The original company, which operated in this county for parcel delivery, was the Southern Express Company. It was organized soon after the Civil War, and operated under the same name until July, 1918, when the Federal government assumed control under the title of American Railway Express. In March, 1930, the railroads purchased the business, and since that time, the company has operated as the Railway Express Agency. The names of John M. Barnard, Philip G. Awtry, and Ed Dansby are associated with the old Southern Express Company. The present agent of the Railway Express Agency is J. W. Short.

GEORGIA POWER COMPANY. The Columbus Power Company entered LaGrange and West Point in 1911 on 66KVA lines and furnished light and power to LaGrange, West Point, and Hogansville. The city of LaGrange operated a municipal electric plant, which they still own, but the power company offered current cheaper than could be produced by the city. A connection was made with the Georgia Power Company, and a shortage of one company was supplemented by the excess of the other. In 1923 the voltage of the transmission lines was raised to 110KVA to the various power stations and there transformed to 11,000 volts, or 11KVA, to be carried to the individual power houses of customers, and there reduced to 550 or 220 volts for power, and 110 volts for lighting purposes. In 1930, on July 1, the Georgia Power Company acquired the properties of the Columbus Power Company, and this county has been very efficiently served by this company since that time. The West Point station is under the jurisdiction of the Alabama Power Company, which serves the valley industrial plants. The LaGrange station has for its efficient master, W. H. Tillery, and the Hogansville station, W. A. Mann. The Maintenance Department is under the supervision of L. L. Estes for the Troup County customers, and the well-kept stations and lines bespeak his knowledge and efficiency. Not least among these genial officials is the foreman of the lines, I. I. West, who has the dangerous task of handling 110KVA lines, sometimes with a full current flow, or hot as the boys say.

THE RAILROADS. The railroads are classified as Public Utilities, but have been treated in the chapter on Transportation.

CHAPTER XV. TROUP COUNTY TEXTILE INDUSTRY

ROBERTSON WOOLEN MILL. Built in 1847; located in land lot 78 of the 4th district. At some time prior to 1847, there came from Scotland to Troup County Robert Robertson, who bought from James O'Neal a site a short distance west of the Smith Mill on the Salem Road, and established thereon the first textile plant of the county, which was known as the Robertson Woolen Mill. From far and near the patrons brought their bags of wool for cleaning and carding. It was returned to them in long rolls or balls ready for the home spinner or weaver. The success of this mill inspired the next textile venture in a district purely agricultural.

TROUP FACTORY. Built in 1845, and adapted to cotton manufacture in 1848; located on land lot 15 of the 4th district. This plant was built by Robertson, Leslie and Company, a firm composed of J. L. C. Robertson, Thomas Leslie, and a Mr. Beaman, as a gristmill in 1845, and was converted into a cotton mill in 1848, being the second such plant in Georgia, and it continued to operate as such for more than a half century. Troup Factory sheetings and homespuns were standards of excellence in a widespread area of Georgia, and their use is within the memory of many present day citizens. Charles H. Griffin was an active factor in the management of this plant in the early nineties. It was originally located on Flat Shoals Creek on the Columbus Road or the Georgia No. 1 Highway, but was moved to Greenville Street in LaGrange in 1902.

The business of the plant was so great that on December 22, 1857, a railroad was incorporated for the purpose of handling the products, which was called the LaGrange and Troup Factory Railroad. Disturbances due to the impending Civil War prevented its building. The name was changed after the removal of the plant to LaGrange to that of Park Cotton Mills, and its products were limited to yarn. This mill is now one of the things past and gone with only a few of its walls standing to mark the spot.

LAGRANGE MILLS. Built in 1888, and located on land lots 108 and 109 of the 6th district. The LaGrange Oil and Manufacturing Company was chartered on August 6, 1883, and its incorporators numbered most of the business and professional men of the little town of LaGrange: L. J. Render, A. N. Davenport, J. M. Barnard, J. G. Truitt, J. P. Thornton, H. C. Butler, W. O. Tuggle, S. P. Smith, F. M. Longley, M. L. Fleming, J. C. Forbes, T. J. Harwell, H. H. Cary, E. D. Williams, G. A. Speer, Henry Banks, W. V. Gray, A. R. Phillips, T. H. Whitaker, Louis Mayer, J. G. Whitfield, E. R. Bradfield, I. F. Cox, J. R. Broome, James Ellis, T. S. Bradfield, A. P.

Jones, Enoch Callaway, J. T. Perry, J. W. Harrison, F. M. Ridley, W. C. Yancey, and T. C. Crenshaw.

This plant was erected for the extraction of cotton seed oil, but also operated a large public ginnery. In 1888, the charter was amended so as to include the manufacture of cotton textiles in addition to the oil plant, and the name was changed to LaGrange Mills. The building of the cotton mill plant was a great event in Troup County; the first giant Corliss engine, the curious machines for cotton manipulation, the first electric dynamo for the lighting of the mill, the monumental smokestack, were a succession of marvels to the curious bystanders of that day.

In March of 1890, the charter was again amended so as to permit the LaGrange Mills to construct electric pole lines in the city and to furnish current for the same. There immediately followed the construction of an arc circuit for lighting the city streets, to which was added an incandescent circuit of direct current for the benefit of mercantile establishments. These lines were extended to furnish lights for the Southern and the LaGrange Female colleges in the same year. The use of meters was unknown and the rate was a flat fifty cents per month for each sixteen candle power light. Lighting for residences was not yet accomplished.

The prosperity of LaGrange Mills induced the Consolidated Cotton Duck Corporation to make the stockholders a very tempting offer, which was accepted on November 28, 1905. In 1913, this corporation in turn sold to Lockwood, Green and Company of Boston, who changed the name to International Cotton Mills, LaGrange Mills Division, the corporate name shared by Canadian, New England and the southern plants owned by them. In the regrouping of the above-named plants, the name was again changed to the New England Southern Mills, LaGrange Mills Division.

The financial collapse of the owners and the pressure from the creditor banks of Boston and New York forced the sale of their southern properties, and again LaGrange Mills became the property of local stockholders, and was renamed LaGrange Calumet Mills, and in the year 1932 became a unit of the Callaway Mills in the consolidation of the various corporations under that name. But in the minds, thoughts and speech of the old employes, it is named "The Old Mill." The names of John M. Barnard, manager; George W. Murphy, superintendent; George Mitchell, electrician, will always be associated with the success in the operation of this mill.

Among the superintendents of this plant under the various owners are noted the following names: George W. Murphy, William Reid, John Turnipseed, Eugene Stevens, W. H. Dickinson, John A. Baugh, afterwards manager; Forest B. Gardner, and B. W. Robinson.

DIXIE COTTON MILLS. Built in 1895, located on Greenville Street in LaGrange in land lot 107 of the 6th district. This mill was incorporated on September 26, 1895, and the following names appear on the charter: Samuel Hale, James G. Truitt, Blount C. Ferrell, Francis M. Longley, of LaGrange; W. N. Weeks of New York; J. T. Cressey of New Hampshire; Thomas P. Ivey of Atlanta. Many investors of the local commercial world afterwards joined their forces to the above. At first the plant was not an entire success, because of poor equipment, much of which was out of date in cotton manufacture. It is curious to note that in the original plans for buildings and the layouts for machinery no provision was made for a power plant to operate the mill. Provision for this oversight and for the replacement of much of the antiquated machinery placed a handicap on this plant in the form of excessive debt; nevertheless, under the skillful management of O. A. Dunson, it continued to operate until forced to sell by the mortgagor on October 17, 1917, when the plant passed into the possession of Wellington-Sears Company, and at this date is a unit in their chain of mills. This plant is the pioneer in this county for the manufacture of lightweight cotton fabrics, eight ounces to the yard being the heaviest goods made in this plant. Among the names of the superintendents of this plant are noted the following: DeGroat, Magraw, W. S. Dunson, Jack Donaldson, J. J. Ward, A. Culberson, George W. Murphy, Jr., Albert Lehmann; and the names of Samuel Hale, L. J. Render and O. A. Dunson as the managers of the plant.

HOGANSVILLE MANUFACTURING COMPANY. Built in Hogansville in 1899, and located in land lot 96 of the 11th district. This plant was chartered on July 11, 1899, by E. H. Thornton, and R. J. Lowry of Atlanta; and Frank Word, Judson F. Mobley, and J. F. Askew of Hogansville. The history of this plant from the above date is the same as that of the LaGrange Mills, as it was sold to the same corporation and afterwards was included in every transaction in which LaGrange Mills was concerned, and in those changes suffered the same changes of name and was distinguished as the Hogansville Mills Division of each change. It was purchased by the Consolidated Duck Corporation on November 28, 1905; sold in turn by them to Lockwood, Green and Company and called the International Cotton Mills, changed to New England Southern Mills; sold again to LaGrange parties and renamed Hogansville Calumet Mills; consolidated in 1932 as a unit of the Callaway Mills, retaining the name of Hogansville Calumet as a designation. The activities of this plant constituted a commercial barometer of the community of Hogansville until the construction of Stark Mills, which shared the business indicator with the older plant. Among the superintendents and managers are noted the following: George W. Murphy, William Reid, John Turnipseed, W. H. Turner, Jr., Oxford, James Mooty, David G. Reid, and John A. Baugh, manager.

UNITY COTTON MILLS. Built in 1900, and located in land lot 141 of the 6th district, on Leman Street in LaGrange. This plant was chartered on May 8, 1900, and the following were the incorporators: J. M. Barnard, C. V. Truitt, J. E. Dunson, F. E. Callaway, S. H. Truitt, S. P. Smith, J. H. Edmondson, G. E. Dallis, W. V. Gray, G. B. Heard, E. G. Hood, T. J. Thornton, F. J. Pike, J. L. Bradfield, H. D. Glanton, T. S. Bradfield, C. D. Hudson, A. H. Nunnally, P. H. Hutchinson, N. R. Hutchinson, F. M. Ridley, J. R. Broome, H. R. Slack. There have been some additions to this plant at intervals, but the greatest expansion was in the form of an entire new plant under the name of Unity Spinning Mills, located in land lot 147 of the 6th district. This was built in 1909 by the parent plant of which it formed an auxiliary. The management of this plant was in the hands of C. V. Truitt up to the time of his retirement, after which it devolved upon Cason J. Callaway. The superintendents of this plant are as follows: George W. Murphy, Sr., William W. Arnold, William H. Turner, Jr., James Newsome, Ed Estes, W. Preston Dunson.

The products of Unity Cotton Mills were originally in the form of the cotton ducks, but later became more diversified in character. The plant may be considered as the parent plant of the group of cotton mills now designated as the Callaway Mills.

ELM CITY COTTON MILLS. Built in 1905, located in land lot 142 of the 6th district. The charter bears the date of November 15, 1905, and enlisted a large number of contributors under the leadership of Fuller E. Callaway, Sr., as the directing genius. The following names are recorded in the charter: F. E. Callaway, C. V. Truitt, J. G. Truitt, S. H. Truitt, Roy Dallis, W. A. Holmes, A. T. Dallis, V. E. Dallis, George E. Dallis, Pike Brothers, E. G. Hood, J. H. Edmondson, Henry Banks, Sr., J. W. Johnston, Bradfield Drug Co., F. M. Ridley, H. R. Slack, J. C. Roper, J. M. Barnard, George W. Murphy, P. G. Awtry, J. L. Bradfield, H. D. Glanton, N. E. Marshburn, E. R. Bradfield, Sr., W. V. Gray, L. D. Mitchell, Pope F. Callaway, McCaine and Market, E. B. Clark, F. M. Longley, B. H. Seay, R. L. Adams, J. R. Hall, G. B. Heard, S. P. Smith, W. S. Davis, A. H. Cary, C. Y. Hall, J. R. Broome, W. L. Cleaveland, N. S. McCalley, J. M. Formby, W. J. Hardy, J. F. Market, J. Wid Freeman; Banks and Arnold of Coweta County, H. M. Atkinson, W. D. Brady, George M. Traylor, James Banks, A. E. Thornton, M. Frank, George W. Parrott, George Dole Wadley, S. P. O'Neal, J. H. Lane & Company. Elm City was also a cotton duck plant and has enjoyed a long term of prosperity under the skillful management of the superintendents, Ira B. Grimes and H. F. Shuford.

UNITY SPINNING MILLS. Built in 1909, and located on land lot 146 in the 6th district. No new corporation was formed, but the plant was built by Unity Cotton Mills and formed a part of its properties. The products of this plant were twines, cords and yarns. No weaving was done in this plant in the original layout. The superintendents were S. Y. Austin and Boyd N. Ragsdale. This is also a unit of the Callaway Mills.

DUNSON MILLS. Built in 1910, and located in land lot 87 of the 6th district. The charter was granted on November 19, 1910, and the following names appear on the charter as the promoters of this plant: T. J. Thornton, W. S. Dunson, A. H. Cary, F. M. Ridley, W. A. Reeves, J. M. Barnard, S. H. Dunson, W. E. Morgan, P. H. Hutchinson, F. M. Longley, R. O. Pharr, J. E. Dunson, J. F. Ogletree. The plant was enlarged in 1923, nearly doubling the original capacity of the mill, and varying the production to include the light as well as the heavyweight cotton goods. The management was in the hands of T. J. Thornton in the beginning, and he was succeeded by the present efficient manager, W. S. Dunson. There has always been exercised a liberal conservatism in the management: liberal in attitude towards the churches and schools and sports, yet conservative in the business aspects. The superintendent was W. S. Dunson until his promotion to manager, and he was succeeded by A. C. Dunson as the present superintendent.

HILLSIDE COTTON MILLS. Built in 1915, and located on land lot 143 of the 6th district. The charter was granted on December 5, 1914, to a large number of incorporators: F. E. Callaway, C. V. Truitt, J. G. Truitt, S. H. Truitt, Roy Dallis, A. T. Dallis, V. E. Dallis, Render Dallis, S. Y. Austin, J. H. Edmondson, H. H. Childs, R. O. Pharr, W. S. Davis, T. H. Nimmons, E. R. Callaway, H. W. Callaway, W. A. Holmes, C. J. Callaway, Hatton Lovejoy, W. H. Turner, Jr., R. C. Key, C. Y. Hall, J. R. Hall, James Newsom, I. B. Grimes, Boyd Ragsdale, H. R. Slack, B. H. Seay, L. H. Zachry, Pike Brothers, J. M. Formby, H. T. Wooding, J. D. Hudson, R. L. Render, C. W. Smith, C. N. Shearer, R. K. Colley, G. W. Birdsong, A. H. Thompson, J. J. Milam, McCaine Brothers, H. D. Glanton, C. L. Smith, W. L. Cleaveland, W. G. Cleaveland, Henry Banks, Sr., H. D. Phillips, J. A. Perry, O. D. Grimes, P. G. Awtry, W. E. Johnson, H. H. Tigner, W. J. Hardy, J. W. Bryant, R. W. Bryant, E. C. Lewis, James Banks, J. Carroll Payne, W. D. Brady, C. H. Hutcheson, J. H. Lane and Company, F. Coit Johnson, James W. Lane, E. W. Leseur, Howard L. Marsh, Oliver L. Johnson, Charles T. Newberry, Charles D. Brady, W. H. Tobey, C. M. Pirkleman, W. W. Quinlan. This plant, by reason of the installation of a dye house as a part of the equipment, manufactures the greatest variety of products of any mill located in the county; in weight from the heaviest to comparatively lightweight goods with many color variations. This was the parent plant of several lines of manufacture, which were afterwards incorporated as separate entities and some of them removed to other locations. These were Valley Waste Mills, Valway Rug Mills, Rockweave Mills, and Oakleaf Mills. The superintendents of this plant were S. Y. Austin, J. O. Blackmon, and Frank L. Asbury.

STARK MILLS. Built in 1922, and located in land lot 11 of the 12th district. This plant was not chartered in Troup County, but was built by Lockwood, Green and Company of Boston, the owners at that time of the Hogansville and LaGrange plants of the New England Southern Mills, and sold with them in 1928. It was afterwards sold to the United States Rubber Company and is still in their possession. This mill was adapted to the use of long staple cotton for the manufacture of tire cord. The mill is under the superintendency of H. H. Ocheltree. The managers were John A. Baugh for Lockwood, Green and Company, and H. Gordon Smith for the U. S. Rubber Company.

VALLEY WASTE MILLS. The construction of this plant followed very closely upon the building of Hillside Cotton Mills, of which it formed a part. A separate charter for this plant was granted on November 4, 1927, to Cason J. Callaway, Henry G. Smith, and Grady S. Kennington. As the name implies, it was a plant for the utilization of cotton waste. In the merger of 1932, the plant has lost its corporate identity.

VALWAY RUG MILLS. Incorporated on November 4, 1927, by Cason J. Callaway, Ira B. Grimes, and Henry G. Smith. This plant is a distinctive idea in the diversification of production in the South. The manufacture of rugs in the plant has always been a source of interest to the passing visitor, because the use of Jacquard looms and other machines is so different from those of the ordinary cotton mills. The beauty and variety of the rugs have commended them to a widespread patronage in America.

ROCKWEAVE MILLS. This plant was another offshoot of Hillside Cotton Mills, and was originally called Rockweave Laundry Textile Mills, but the charter was amended on December 9, 1927, to conform to the above name. The plant with a wide variety of products specialized in the manufacture of those products associated with the laundry trade: bags, nets, and all forms of canvas containers and receptacles. Most of this plant has been transferred to LaGrange Calumet Mills, and its corporate identity was lost in the merger of 1932.

OAKLEAF MILLS. This plant is another of the Hillside group of industries, and was chartered on April 16, 1928, and its location changed to the vicinity of the Unity Spinning Mills. It specializes in flannels, wiping cloths and cords of various kinds. The superintendent is T. L. Arnette.

THE CALLAWAY MILLS. Under this title were merged into one great corporation the allied plants that were sponsored and controlled by the late Fuller E. Callaway, as well as those organized and built since his death under the management of Cason J. Callaway as president, and Fuller E. Callaway as treasurer. The plants in this great organization are as follows:

	SPINDLES
Calumet, LaGrange Plant.....	9,984
Elm City Plant.....	11,664
Hillside Plant	31,680
Oakleaf Plant	3,168
Unity Plant	12,960
Unity Spinning Plant.....	15,552
Calumet, Hogansville Plant.....	12,096
Manchester Plant, Manchester, Ga.....	25,080
Milstead Plant, Milstead, Ga.....	13,668
Total Number of Spindles.....	135,852

The maintenance of recreation parks and playgrounds, the Young Men's Christian Associations, assistance to the schools and churches have always been included as a part of the operating budgets of these plants, and the care of health safeguarded by the presence of well-trained nurses has been one of the first thoughts towards the welfare and happiness of employes.

The products of these plants include twines, cords, ropes, drills, sheetings, sateens, moleskin, corduroy, filter fabrics, and every sort of canvas and duck, a variety of rugs, and many other specialties.

WEST POINT MANUFACTURING COMPANY. While the plants of this corporation are not located in Troup County, yet the executive and administrative offices are located in the city of West Point. The plants of this corporation are noted below:

Riverdale at Riverview, Ala., built in 1866, makers of tent and awning ducks. 11,684 spindles.

Langdale at Langdale, Ala., built in 1867 as the Chattahoochee Manufacturing Company, and purchased in 1880. The plant has 33,856 spindles. This plant donated the sails to refit the frigate Constitution, popularly known as "Old Ironsides," also donated the sail duck for the Byrd Expedition to the South Pole.

Lanett Mills, makers of wide drills, twills and sateens, and the fabrics used in automobile manufacture.

Shawmut Mills, makers of the heavier forms of cotton duck that is used for hose and belting.

Fairfax Mills, whose specialty is the making of towels for every kind of use, and of every size and weight.

Lanett Bleachery and Dye Works is the pioneer in the dyeing of the fabrics and the addition of color to our section of the South.

The West Point Manufacturing Company has a total of 192,000 spindles in the various plants. The corporation has been for many years under the management of the Lanier family, which has contributed so much to the financial, educational, social, cultural and political life of Troup County, and of West Point in particular.

TROUP COUNTY TEXTILES. The county of Troup ranks well in the total of the textile plants, the total spindles of each plant is given below:

	SPINDLES
Calumet, LaGrange	9,984
Calumet, Hogansville	12,096
Dixie Cotton Mills.....	23,936
Elm City Plant.....	11,664
Dunson Cotton Mills.....	41,000
Hillside Plant	31,680
Oakleaf Plant	3,168
Stark Mills	35,560
Unity Plant	12,960
Unity Spinning Plant.....	15,552

Total Spindles	197,600

CHAPTER XVI. INDUSTRIAL AND COMMERCIAL

EARLY INDUSTRIES. The furnishings of the earliest cabins yield the clue to the nature of the early commercial barter and industrial activity. These consisted of rifles, knives, broadaxes for hewing, hatchets for shaping, crosscut saws, froes, sledge hammers, anvils, spinning wheels and looms, and such furnishings and fittings as could be made with the above implements. In later days the large plantations operated commissaries that could supply almost any need of the neighborhood, and employed smiths who could fabricate horseshoes, hinges and straps, and hammer out such wrought nails as were necessary in house construction, and carpenters who could hew a sill, rive boards for roofs and palings for yard and garden fences, build houses and barns, and fashion the giant "totem pole of the clan" in the form of the tall screws for the cotton presses.

The early industries of Troup County were crude and simple in operation, and were dependent for power on muscle, mules, and water power. The apparatus for steam power was too heavy and too cumbersome to haul so far with only oxen as the tractile agency. The mills of the early days were smithies, carpenter shops, and gristmills, and later sawmills and tanneries. By reason of the same difficulties of transportation, the patronage of a given industry was limited to the range of travel of one day for the round trip.

The journeys to the markets of Augusta and Savannah were generally annual caravans, and they required about two weeks of travel for each round trip, and to this must be added the time to see the bright lights, to view the novelties on display since the last visit, and to enjoy the pleasures of the trading instinct, both in disposing of the wares and produce carried for the purpose of sale, and to select the quantity and quality of goods to be hauled on the homeward trip. The entire trip could easily use a month.

THE TROUP COMPANY. Chartered October 14, 1905, by A. H. Cary, J. M. Barnard, J. E. Dunson, Frank L. Hudson, W. A. Reeves, T. J. Thornton, J. H. Edmondson, J. D. Edmundson, Albert S. Dunson, Frank Word, M. H. Hightower, R. W. Trimble, C. W. Smith, L. S. Turner, A. E. Thornton, W. A. Speer, N. O. Banks, and T. M. Zellars. The corporation was organized for the purpose of manufacturing fertilizer and the operation of a warehouse for storage of cotton. After several years of operation the fertilizer plant was sold to Swift and Company. The warehouse was retained and is still operated by a reorganized company.

FARMERS WAREHOUSE COMPANY. Chartered April 29, 1891, by Andrew J. Daniel, Scott Davis, James L. Sims, William C. Matthews, and John Daniel. This corporation of Hogansville operated for some time, but at the present date the corporation has dissolved and its properties consolidated with other warehouse properties.

HOGANSVILLE WAREHOUSE. Chartered December 29, 1906, by J. F. Askew, H. H. Ware, Brazell Trimble and Company, R. W. Moore, J. M. Woodruff, and B. F. Rosser. This is an active corporation of Hogansville, and has united the interests of the warehouses of Hogansville.

SECURITY WAREHOUSE COMPANY. Chartered June 28, 1906, by F. E. Callaway, C. V. Truitt, W. A. Holmes, J. C. Roper, S. H. Truitt, J. D. Edmundson, J. F. Market, H. H. Childs, G. W. Birdsong, McCaine and Market, R. O. Pharr, Henry Banks, V. E. Dallis, C. Y. Hall, S. D. White, N. S. McCalley, W. A. Heard, W. N. Hogg, R. S. Jackson, W. L. Haralson, Pike Brothers, Roy Dallis, H. D. Glanton, and J. B. Whitley. A portion of this warehouse was used for a time as a silk mill, and afterwards as a wholesale grocery company. The warehouse is at present operated by H. H. Childs as manager.

OTHER WAREHOUSES. The cotton warehouses of West Point are located in Alabama, which is beyond the scope of this record. Among the personally owned warehouses there is noted Barnard and Awtry, which afterwards became the property of E. G. Hood, and is now the freight depot of the A. B. & C. Railroad in LaGrange; and the name of Frank Word in Hogansville is always associated with the storage of cotton. There are, perhaps, many other names of former days that should be recorded, but the lack of definite information prevents.

THE BRADFIELD DRUG COMPANY. Chartered May 3, 1897, by Thomas S. Bradfield and W. S. Davis for the purpose of conducting the wholesale and retail trade in drugs. The retail stores were a continuation and expansion of a long established patronage. The Court Square Pharmacy was the original retail drug store.

HOGANSVILLE MILL AND LUMBER COMPANY. Chartered April 9, 1902, by T. J. Pendergrass, W. C. Lee, J. T. Armstrong, and J. H. Melson. This company operates the planing mill on the south side of Hogansville.

GEORGIA GRANITE AND POWER COMPANY. Chartered April 7, 1902, by J. F. Mobley, Mrs. M. E. Morgan, and Milton H. Hightower, for the production of gravel and crushed stone. The plant located near Trimble furnished the material used for railroad ballast, and for concrete construction. Many thousand tons were marketed by this company.

MUTUAL COFFIN AND MANUFACTURING COMPANY. Chartered November 8, 1902, by C. H. Revis, H. C. Clay, J. L. Rice, Squire Thornton, and the Mutual Aid Society, No. 1. It was organized as an adjunct to the Colored Burial Insurance Company, and prospered for many years as such.

LA GRANGE ICE AND MANUFACTURING COMPANY. Chartered November 16, 1891, by John D. Edmundson, Joseph E. Dunson, C. V. Truitt, F. M. Longley, and H. C. Butler, for the manufacture of ice. The corporation was enlarged to include the manufacture of ice cream, cold storage of perishables, and the sale of fuel, and the name was changed to that of LaGrange Ice and Fuel Company. This plant as well as the Citizens Ice and Coal Company was purchased by the American Service Company of Chicago.

WEST POINT IRON WORKS. Chartered May 5, 1891, by W. C. Lanier, L. Lanier, and E. F. Lanier, for the manufacture of castings, gears and machinery parts. The scope was widened to include all forms of woodwork, and the business of contracting. This company was a pioneer of the county in the development of machine shops and foundries.

PIKE BROTHERS LUMBER COMPANY. Chartered January 30, 1904, by J. A. Pike, F. J. Pike, and C. N. Pike, for the manufacture of doors, sash, and blinds, wooden columns, and all forms of woodwork, paving tile and concrete building blocks. This company was a development of a plow factory, formerly operated by W. C. Cox. Upon the retirement of Pike Brothers from contracting and manufacturing, the plant was purchased by the West Point Iron Works above mentioned, and operated under the name of LaGrange Lumber and Supply Company. Newman Construction Company is the present owner.

NOVELTY AND MANUFACTURING COMPANY. Chartered November 7, 1891, by S. T. Whitaker, M. Herzberg, R. R. Lanier, and J. M. Harrington, for the manufacture of candy in West Point.

MUTUAL COTTON OIL COMPANY. Chartered July 25, 1906, by M. H. Hightower, H. H. Mobley, Frank Word, S. A. Davis, J. F. Jones, J. S. Jones, T. T. Jones, H. B. Darden, S. N. Reid, J. M. Barnard, J. E. Dunson, and E. F. Lanier. This plant, located in Hogansville, was constructed for the extraction of cotton seed oil. It continues to be a powerful industrial factor in the development of Hogansville.

TRIMBLE BRICK COMPANY. Chartered by R. W. Trimble, P. H. Darden, and Edwin Trippe, on May 12, 1902, for the manufacture of brick. This company has been an important factor in the building trades not only of this county, but in the entire southern territory. All the textile plants erected since 1902 in this section of Georgia have used Trimble brick.

LA GRANGE TANNERY. This plant was established about 1832, and was located on the corner near the intersection of Whitesville and Hamilton streets on the branch, which still bears the name of Tanyard branch. The original owners were Samuel Reid and Seaborn J. Thompson. It continued to operate until destroyed by the raiders under Colonel LaGrange in 1865.

WEST POINT TANNERY. This plant was located on the tract of land now known as Heyman's Pines, and was organized at an early date. During the Civil War it was operated for the Confederate government by Herman Heyman and Daniel Merz. The Federal raiders of 1865 seized the entire stock of leather. This plant was in operation some time after the close of the war.

KENER FURNITURE SHOP. This shop was located on Hines Street in the early LaGrange days. Many of the handsome pieces of furniture that are now classed as antiques were fashioned in this old shop. Godfrey Kener, the proprietor, built the old rock mill near Tanyard branch on Hines Street, and that old building, used as a gristmill, may have been the shop. This building was razed when LaGrange Mills were built in 1888.

CARLTON AND THACHER. This firm, located in Mountville, operated a furniture factory in that place. Their excellent work in the manufacture of beds, dressers, dining tables, and all kinds of handmade furniture, was the source of pride and gratification to many of the housewives of old Troup County.

KIDD GIN FACTORY. This plant was located three or four miles east of LaGrange, and was owned and operated by George Kidd, who had invented some improvements on the existing cotton gins. The products of this old factory were widely used throughout Georgia and parts of Alabama.

GRISTMILLS. The old gristmills of the county, some of which dated from the opening of the county, have always been a source of pleasure and convenience, as well as manufacturing enterprises. The list is not complete, yet numbers all that are known to the author: Norwood Mill in the northeastern part of the county; Culberson Mill in the northern part; Cameron Mill on Yellow Jacket Creek near the river; the Double Mills on the two sides of the Chattahoochee just above Glass Bridge; Dennis Mill on Long Cane down near the 4th, 5th, and 6th districts corner; O'Neal's Mill, which gave the name to the militia district, on Polecat Creek near the Salem Road; Smith Mill on Turkey Creek on the Salem Road; Dallis Mill near the Meriwether County line north of Chipley; Young Mill on Beech Creek on the Haralsonville Road, and Pool's Mill in the 14th district on Whitewater Creek.

A. P. JONES BUGGY AND WAGON MANUFACTURING COMPANY. This company, formerly located on the site of the present Dunson Hospital, was for a long time a prosperous business. It was established in 1878 and continued to operate until 1904, when the advent of the automobile commenced its conquest of the horse-drawn conveyances. One remarkable thing in regard to this business is that three brothers established four plants for the manufacture of wagons and buggies: A. P. Jones of LaGrange; R. H. Jones of Cartersville and Rome, and W. E. Jones of Atlanta. There are still to be found in Troup, Meriwether, Heard and Harris counties, specimens of the excellent handiwork of "Jones, the Buggy Man."

BANK OF LA GRANGE. This bank was chartered by the General Assembly of Georgia in 1852, authorizing the corporation to commence business when $50,000.00 in specie had been paid in. There are no records that the condition was ever complied with. No names were included in charter.

LA GRANGE SAVINGS BANK. Chartered in 1866 by F. A. Frost, B. H. Hill, R. A. T. Ridley, Jesse McLendon, and Thomas J. Thornton. No records of the savings bank available, but several of the incorporators were engaged in a private and unincorporated business.

LA GRANGE BANKING AND TRUST COMPANY. Chartered in 1871 by H. S. Wimbish, John F. Moreland, John A. Speer, John R. Broome, S. W. Swanson, T. J. Thornton, W. F. Spalding, John H. Glanton, A. D. Abraham, and James F. Ogletree. The capital stock was fixed at $50,000.00 with the privilege of increasing to $100,000.00. This corporation for a long time was the principal commercial bank of the county, and the closing of which almost paralyzed the commercial interests of LaGrange. Among those who presided over this bank are noted the names of Major A. D. Abraham, George A. Speer, Thomas J. Thornton, Joseph E. Dunson, Sr., and Joseph E. Dunson, Jr. It is now in process of liquidation.

MERCHANTS AND PLANTERS BANK OF WEST POINT. Chartered September 29, 1883, by J. J. Hagedorn, A. M. Eady, Daniel Merz, W. B. Higginbotham, J. R. Scott, W. E. White, J. M. Reed, J. W. Smith, B. L. Harris, Lawrence Smith, and William Collins. This bank enjoyed a long period of prosperity, but like many others of our country, succumbed under the pressure of the twentieth century depression and shrinkage of values.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF LA GRANGE. Chartered December 20, 1883, by L. J. Render, B. C. Ferrell, F. M. Longley, J. G. Truitt, W. C. Yancey, W. O. Tuggle, J. M. Barnard, and H. H. Cary. This bank continued to operate until 1890, when it was converted into a state bank. The exactions of a national bank, which did not permit more than 10% of the capital stock to be loaned to one customer, did not permit the bank to finance the LaGrange Mills for their sufficient operation, as the capital stock was only $50,000.00. Some of the currency of this bank is still in circulation, but largely kept as keepsakes.

BANK OF LA GRANGE. Chartered in 1890, by L. J. Render, J. G. Truitt, F. M. Longley, J. M. Barnard, B. C. Ferrell, and H. H. Cary. The business of the First National Bank above mentioned was carried on by this bank without interruption, the change being made between the close of business on Saturday and the opening on Monday morning. This bank, too, felt the iron hand of depression and was closed and liquidated.

BANK OF WEST POINT. The personnel of this corporation is not available, but it was a factor in the commercial life of the community, and like so many other institutions was forced into liquidation.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF WEST POINT. This bank like the First National of LaGrange found itself unable to continue its operations, and was put into liquidation.

HOGANSVILLE BANKING COMPANY. The leading spirit in the organization of this bank was J. F. Askew, but it like many others fell victim to the dark days of the depression and was forced to close.

MERCHANTS AND FARMERS BANK. Hogansville. The organizers of this bank were J. P. Mobley and N. H. Hight, and enjoyed an era of prosperity but was unable to cope with frozen assets and likewise closed.

LAGRANGE NATIONAL BANK. Chartered by United States May 29, 1905, by F. E. Callaway, C. V. Truitt, J. G. Truitt, W. A. Holmes, S. H. Truitt, F. M. Longley, and P. H. Hutchinson. One of the few institutions that remained closed only during the bank holiday, or moratorium, declared by President Roosevelt. The handsome structure on Main Street in the city of LaGrange is the home of this institution. The presidents of this bank in their order are Fuller E. Callaway, Ely R. Callaway, and Henry D. Glanton.

CITIZENS BANK AND TRUST COMPANY. This company represents the banking interests of the city of West Point, since the closing of the other banks.

CITIZENS BANK OF HOGANSVILLE. This is not a bank strictly speaking, but conducts the present business of the city of Hogansville as a sort of clearing house for an Atlanta bank.

CHAPTER XVII. EDUCATIONAL

LA GRANGE FEMALE COLLEGE. This institution has the unique distinction of having its origin in the first institution in America chartered for the instruction of women. The originator of such a revolutionary idea was Thomas Stanley, who conducted a small school in the village of LaGrange. He held the then unpopular opinion that girls should be given the same educational advantages that their brothers had long enjoyed. How revolutionary this idea was, may be learned from the fact that only a few years prior to this time, the General Assembly of Georgia had refused to permit the establishment of "Female Academies." However, Stanley and his friends persisted in their efforts, and possibly brought some political influence to bear on the legislative body, for on December 26, 1831, a charter was granted to LaGrange Female Academy, designating the following board of trustees: Wilson Williams, Julius C. Alford, Rufus Broome, James Herring, John L. Gage, William A. Redd, and Joseph Poythress.

As there were in existence no institutions for women empowered to confer degrees on women, the term academy was used to designate an institution, in which the higher branches of learning were taught, but without authority to confer degrees. They were the finishing schools of the day.

This academy was established on the lot set apart by the Inferior Court of Troup County for an academy, when the town of LaGrange was laid out by them. It is shown on the plat of original LaGrange as the southwest corner of No. 11 Commons, and is the present site of No. 406 Broad Street, known in later years as the Turner home.

The academy was presided over by Thomas Stanley as first principal for two years. At the death of Stanley in 1833, John Park was chosen to succeed him, and served eight years, assisted for a time by Mrs. Ellen Stanley in the conduct of the school.

In 1843, the academy and the present site of College Hill were purchased by the Montgomery brothers, Hugh B. T., Joseph, and T. F., and the dormitory was located on the hill, and the academy building used as classrooms.

In 1847, an application for a fuller charter was made, and was granted on December 17, 1847, and the name changed to LaGrange Female Institute. The institution retained this name until a charter amendment on December 26, 1851, when it received the present designation of LaGrange Female College.

In 1851, the "new building" was erected on the college hill for the accommodation of classes and administration of college affairs; the cornerstone was laid on July 4, 1851, with masonic ceremonies. It was an imposing structure built on the model of the Temple of Diana at the site of the present building.

In 1857, on the 29th of January, the Montgomery brothers sold the properties to the Georgia Conference of the Methodist Church, South, and by an act of legislature of December 19, 1859, the trustees were authorized to sell the property of the Stanley buildings and site.

Fortunately this sale was not immediately consummated, for on March 28, 1860, the entire plant on the college hill was consumed by fire during the night following a concert held in the auditorium. Classes were resumed in the Stanley Building, and plans for rebuilding were at once made. The dormitory, the northern end of the present Oreon Smith Building, was completed by December 20, 1860. The college building was to be completed by May 15, 1861, but the confusion from the incipient war prevented the immediate completion. The masonry work was completed, but the floors and roof unfinished. Benjamin H. Cameron was the contractor, and his corps of workmen were negro slaves trained for the work.

In 1879, the college building was completed and the classes have been held in this building since that time. This reconstruction was due to the untiring efforts of J. R. Mason, president at the time.

In 1885 began the remarkable administration of the beloved Rufus W. Smith. This covered a period of thirty years and witnessed great improvement in the curriculum and equipment, and a wonderful broadening of purpose and quickening of the spirit of the institution. A regular department of education was established. An annex of twenty-eight rooms, a dining hall and a modern kitchen were added to the dormitory. Electric lights were installed in 1888. Running water and bathrooms were added to the equipment. The Harriet Hawkes Building was erected in 1911 through the generosity of A. W. Hawkes in a gift of $10,000.00 for that purpose. It was during this regime that William S. Witham established a loan fund of $10,000.00 for the aid of worthy students. Alwyn M. Smith and his wife (Miss Laura Crain), both graduates of the Leipzig Conservatory of Music, were instrumental in placing the department of music upon a high plane of excellence.

During the administration of Miss Daisy Davies, who was elected president in 1915, an endowment fund of $251,000.00 was pledged largely from local citizens; notable among the many contributors, the following generous sums: James G. Truitt and wife, $50,000.00; the Dunson estate, $37,000.00; Miss Mary Nix, $12,000.00.

In 1920, William E. Thompson was elected to the presidency, and during his administration, Samuel C. Dobbs donated $25,000.00 and built a beautiful home on the campus.

In 1931 the college celebrated the centennial of the original establishment with a pageant, depicting its progress from a small school to the present splendid equipment.

In the early days of the school, it is interesting to note some of the quaint incidents and settings. These first students, "Amarantha Cameron, Philogenia Ware, Elethia McLendon, Sophronia Campbell" and others arrived in carriages and in barouches with far more bandboxes and umbrellas than books. They were accompanied by their black "mammies," but this new business of girls getting an education did not encourage so many "curling tresses" and so much "tubbing and buttoning," so the mammies were sent home.

A serious period ensued in which one-half of each day was devoted to the study of mathematics, it being generally conceded in that day that a woman could not learn such an abstract subject. But much time was given to the writing of essays with such serious subjects as "Mother, Home and Heaven," "What is Life but Fleeting," "All a Mist," and "In the Dark Our Fortunes Meet Us," and others of like import.

The college authorities declared that a knowledge of French was indispensable, "as the diplomas are printed in French." In addition to all this getting of knowledge, these young misses were admonished to "mind your manners, and walk sedately."

The board of trustees of LaGrange Female Institute, who succeeded the board of LaGrange Female Academy, were as follows: Sampson Duggar, Hampton W. Hill, Daniel McMillan, Orville A. Bull, and Thomas B. Greenwood.

The catalogue of 1848 announces that, "Board for pupils of the Institute can be obtained in the following homes: Major George Heard, Benjamin Harvey Hill, Esq., Dr. N. N. Smith, James Bradfield, Esq. Price of board per month, $9.00, exclusive of washing and lights." Lights were tallow candles. Twenty girls were accommodated in the institute at the same price.

The dormitory was used in the last days of the war as a hospital for wounded soldiers.

Thus it will be seen that the LaGrange Female Academy, chartered on December 26, 1831, and a suitable building erected for its accommodation was used continuously for the academy classes and those of LaGrange Female Institute, which was chartered on December 17, 1847, and also for the classes of LaGrange Female College, as it was later called, until 1851. The little academy has the distinction of being the first institution ever chartered for the instruction of young ladies in any state.

The presiding officers of the institution under the original title of principal, and later as presidents, are given below. For three years the classes were combined with those under President Ichabod F. Cox at the Southern College, and his name is added to the list.

SOUTHERN FEMALE COLLEGE. In 1842 Rev. John E. Dawson organized a school for young women. Dr. Dawson was soon succeeded by Milton E. Bacon, through whose efforts the school was chartered under the name of LaGrange Female Seminary in 1845. By an act of the General Assembly of Georgia dated January 31, 1850, it changed the corporate name to LaGrange Collegiate Seminary for Young Ladies; two years later on January 14, 1852, the name was changed to Southern and Western Female College. On February 17, 1854, the name received its last change of Southern Female College as a title.

The first class of four was graduated in 1845. The institution won an enviable reputation for thorough and conscientious work, and its increasing patronage demanded more extensive accommodations.

In 1850, the old school building was remodeled for a boarding house or dormitory, and a beautiful chapel was erected. The location at this time was in the eastern part of LaGrange, between the present Hill and Greenville streets. President Bacon was succeeded by John A. Foster.

In 1857, I. F. Cox was made president, in which position he labored over thirty years. During this period he firmly established the success of the college.

Near the close of the Civil War, the buildings, which were then used as a hospital for Confederate soldiers, were accidentally destroyed by fire. The government at Richmond, Virginia, upon the presentation of the claim by Benjamin H. Hill, appropriated $51,000.00 to restore the property, but as the Confederacy soon dissolved, no return for the loss could be made.

With indomitable energy President Cox set to work to rebuild and re-furnish the institution. In 1871, the new site on Church Street was selected and work begun on the buildings. The chapel erected in 1877 was a monument to the generosity of President Cox and the people of LaGrange.

During the commencement of June, 1887, President Cox was stricken by apoplexy and died from the stroke. But the heritage he left was a college free from debt and equipped with handsome buildings and the most modern appliances. For a time Mrs. I. F. Cox served as president, and was succeeded by her son, Charles C. Cox.

After the death of President I. F. Cox, which occurred during the commencement in June, 1887, the college was managed for a time by his wife, who was succeeded in turn by her son, Charles C. Cox. Mr. Cox was greatly beloved by the citizens of LaGrange as well as the students, and the college flourished under his administration which continued until the summer of 1895.

Dr. G. A. Nunnally became president, and his administration lasted for seven years, during which time a new dormitory, the Sarah Ferrell Lyceum, and a chapel were added to the institution.

In 1902 M. W. Hatton was chosen as president, and he served until 1908 when two of the buildings were burned. Due to the vigorous efforts of the local alumnae, the Sarah Ferrell Lyceum was renovated and arranged for classrooms as well as a dormitory, and Dr. R. H. Blalock was engaged to manage the institution, and so successful was his administration that not only were the annual expenses met, but a surplus was provided. Rev. W. D. Upshaw was engaged to solicit funds for the rebuilding of the dormitory.

In 1910, the new building was completed, and William F. Brown was elected as president, and served as such for two years. In 1912, James E. Ricketson succeeded as president, and continued to serve until 1916, when M. W. Hatton returned for one year.

In 1917, the trustees of the college decided that inasmuch as L. J. Render had for many years been a generous patron of the college and had advanced large sums of money for buildings and for maintenance of the college, that repayment of these advances would be an impossibility on the part of the trustees, and that the wisest course was to discontinue the school and turn over the property to their creditor. This was done, and the buildings were converted into apartments, and some time later became the property of Pike and Hunter under the name of Render Apartments.

The Southern was always noted for its classical background and the splendid musical conservatory. The Cox administration inaugurated this excellent department, and Dr. John H. Norman of Oxford, England, and Miss Eula Render, who had studied many years in New York and abroad, added greater lustre by their knowledge and brilliant performance.

The presidents of Southern Female College at LaGrange include in their roster many well and widely known educators. The roster follows:

1842-46	John E. Dawson	1895-03	Dr. G. A. Nunnally
1846-55	Milton E. Bacon	1903-08	M. W. Hatton
1855-57	John A. Foster	1908-10	Dr. R. H. Blalock

1857-87	Ichabod F. Cox	1912-16	James E. Ricketson
1887	Mrs. I. F. Cox	1916-17	M. W. Hatton
1887-95	Charles C. Cox

BROWNWOOD. In 1840, the Brownwood Institute for young ladies was established by Dr. Robert C. Brown. It was located about two miles from LaGrange in land lot 113 on the West Point highway, and occupied the site of Dr. W. W. Rutland's present residence.

Dr. Brown was born, reared and educated in England. He had previously taught at the Scottsboro School, and Mrs. B. C. Ferrell had been one of his pupils. It was through Judge B. C. Ferrell that he was induced to locate in LaGrange. He was a man of great wealth, and spared no expense in designing and building the school.

The buildings were entirely English in design, drawn by English architects, and built by English workmen. The campus was immense, about one hundred acres in extent, and the school buildings were placed in the center. There were magnificent oaks, velvety lawns of blue grass, and many of the flowers common to the Old South. Winding walks and broad driveways, sanded with the whitest sand, wound through the campus.

Pupils were enrolled from all over the South, and it was a great honor to receive a diploma from Brownwood. For among the noted educators of this old school are recalled the names of Bennett, Sherman, Foster, and Cox. Dr. and Mrs. Brown had four children: Harry became a noted physician; Marie, an artist, never married; Lucia married Ovid Rodgers; Lydia a physician. Dr. Brown is buried in Hillview Cemetery in LaGrange.

After the death of Dr. Brown, Brownwood was sold to Dr. Otis Smith, a Baptist minister from Massachusetts. Dr. Smith married Martha Womack, an aunt of Mrs. Thomas A. Boddie.

Thomas Boddie was a student at Brownwood and recounted to Miss Belle Boddie some of the pranks of the school boys. On one occasion, Dr. and Mrs. Brown went to the house of Peter Tatum to perform the wedding ceremony of Betty Tatum and Dr. Little. Dr. Smith and his wife were the first guests to leave for home after the ceremony. It was a very dark night, and on reaching the Brownwood neighborhood, the horses became disquieted and refused to go on. Ben, the negro coachman, got out to investigate and found a rail fence built across the road. Ben cleared the road and next morning there was no sign of a fence there. Dr. Smith made no reprimand, and in fact, enjoyed the prank as much as the boys who played it.

In 1852, Brownwood was chartered by the General Assembly as a university for boys with Dr. Otis Smith as president, and for many years enjoyed the reputation of one of the best schools in the South.

COUNTY PUBLIC SCHOOLS. The public schools of Troup County were organized in January, 1871, in accordance with an act of the General Assembly enacted on October 13, 1870. The following members constituted the County School Board, and the militia district represented is noted:

655	LaGrange District.....	James H. Fannin, President
	City of LaGrange.....	John E. Toole, Secretary
673	Harrisonville District.....	J. P. Mooty
656	East Vernon.....	E. J. Greene

805	McLendon's.....	Joel Gibson
1086	Pool's Mill.....	S. H. Dunson
	Town of Hogansville.....	No election

The examination and selection of teachers and the issuance of the licenses to teach were made in August, September and October, 1871, and the following names were authorized to teach in the common schools: In East Vernon, F. B. Mosely and Mrs. Mary R. Lane; in Harrisonville, J. P. Mooty, John Willingham and Isaac Jackson; in Rough Edge, Robert H. Dallis; in O'Neal's Mill, Frank Ward; in West Vernon, Charles S. Johnson; in West Point district, J. D. Attaway and J. R. Mann; in Antioch, W. G. Floyd and Miss Ella M. Boyd; in Long Cane, Miss Florence Burton; in McLendon's, L. S. Bates; in city of West Point, A. P. Mooty and A. F. Trimble; and the following names with place undesignated: J. M. Hogg, Lemuel Bruce, W. S. Alford, Mrs. Ella Marchman, Mrs. Fannie Autrey, J. B. Camp, Robert E. Park, I. F. Cox, J. W. Hogg, W. E. Palmer, J. W. Tarleton.

The first school census taken in the county in the fall of 1871 merely gives the totals of white and colored between the ages of six and twenty-one.

COUNTY SCHOOLS REORGANIZATION. The original Board of Education which was chosen in 1871 was found to be too large for efficient work, so the board was reorganized on January 19, 1872. The new board consisted of five members with a term of office of four years. The first three of the board given below were chosen for two years, and the other two for four years, so that the terms of the whole board would not expire at the same time.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS. The county school superintendents, called formerly commissioners, were elected by the Board of Education in the first plan of operation, but were afterwards made elective by the voters, but excluding those in cities which had an independent system of schools.

The officials of the early days of public schools were hampered in many ways in the accomplishment of their purposes: the apathetic attitude of the people, the lack of suitably trained teachers, and the woeful lack of funds coupled with the temporary diversion by the state authorities of the school funds, which caused the pay of teachers to be deferred or discounted. The roster of superintendents follows:

1871-85	John E. Toole, Sr.	1912-20	John B. Strong
1885-01	Orville A. Bull	1920-28	Thomas G. Polhill
1901-08	Hatton Lovejoy	1928—	J. H. Melson
1908-12	W. C. Davidson

PRESENT COUNTY SCHOOLS. In 1920, when Thomas G. Polhill was elected as County School Superintendent, there were twenty-three small white schools in Troup County outside of the municipal corporations of LaGrange, Hogansville and West Point. The attendance on these schools was very irregular, for it was dependent on weather conditions and the needs of the various stages of crop development on the farms. Some of the school buildings were poorly lighted and heated and inadequately furnished with suitable desks, blackboards and apparatus. During the administration of T. G. Polhill, the physical conditions were almost revolutionized and reconstructed. Instead of the numerous poorly constructed buildings, there were constructed nine modern consolidated schools, each one of which is provided with a suitable assembly room, a library of well selected books, furnished with modern desks and an adequate teaching force. The question of attendance further hampered by the increased distance of some pupils from the consolidated school, was solved by the use of school buses under the control of careful and skillful drivers to carry pupils to and from the schools. Since the consolidation of the various schools, the pupils have made wonderful advancement in comparison with former days.

Another potent factor in the advancement of the rural schools of our county has been the introduction of the Four-H Clubs in the schools by Miss Ida Bell, and the Boys Club by our county farm agents, George Daniel and John Anderson. These ideas were impracticable until the schools were consolidated, because the units were too small to justify the expense.

These great improvements that were inaugurated in our county schools have been amplified and carried on under the efficient management of the present superintendent, J. H. Melson, who is a teacher of wide experience and ability, and who is in sympathy with every effort towards improvement.

The following are the schools: Pleasant Hill at Abbottsford; Center and Gray Hill in the 5th district; Hillcrest in the 12th; Mountville; Oak Grove; Rosemont; Salem; Tatum.

PERSONNEL OF THE COUNTY SCHOOLS. The personnel of the county schools under the supervision of J. H. Melson follows:

Abbottsford.....	H. B. Coleman and two teachers
Center.....	J. D. Whiteside and six teachers
Gray Hill.....	K. T. Wilson and four teachers
Hillcrest.....	H. B. Clay and three teachers
Mountville.....	H. M. Perry and four teachers
Oak Grove.....	Frank Cain and three teachers
Rosemont.....	O. T. Harmon and seven teachers
Salem.....	Miss Ruth Boyles
Tatum.....	H. R. Sims and three teachers

TROUP COUNTY ACADEMY. The Troup County Academy was chartered in 1827, and in 1828 was located on the present site of Hillview Cemetery in LaGrange. The students of the academy used water from a spring on the grounds of the Church Street Park, the former Ridley place. Among the teachers of this academy are noted Judge Orville A. Bull, Judge Blount C. Ferrell, and Lem Robertson. In 1838 the property was transferred to the trustees of the LaGrange High School, who sold the property to the city for a cemetery.

FRANKLIN ACADEMY. This academy was chartered in 1827, and incorporated on December 26, 1831, at the same time as the incorporation of the town of Franklin, and was located in land lot 283 of 5th district on the present site of the high school. On December 24, 1832, the name of the town and of the academy were changed to the name of West Point Academy.

PLEASANT GROVE ACADEMY. This academy was chartered by the General Assembly of Georgia in 1827, but no names were mentioned in the charter. It is probable that the old Pleasant Grove School was the site, but there are no records available to verify this.

VERNON ACADEMY. Chartered on December 22, 1829, with the following named trustees: Woody Dozier, Willis Whatley, Elliott Reid, Wiley J. Sterling, and Ira Allen. It was chartered as an accessory to the town of Vernon on the Chattahoochee, which had been an aspirant for the location of the county seat in 1828. The academy, like the town, now exists in memory only.

LAGRANGE FEMALE ACADEMY. Incorporated on December 26, 1831, this was the school which was developed into LaGrange Female College. This academy has the distinction of being the first incorporated institution for the instruction of women only in the state of Georgia. The history will be treated under the history of LaGrange Female College.

WEST POINT FEMALE ACADEMY. This academy was chartered and incorporated on December 25, 1837, with the following trustees: Beaman H. Martin, Benjamin P. Robinson, William Reid, Dickerson, Burnham, John M. Russell, John C. Webb, and Edward B. Terrell. This academy was operated for some time, probably up to the time of the war in 1861, and formed the nucleus of the Female College afterwards built in 1868.

LAGRANGE HIGH SCHOOL. This school was chartered on December 28, 1838, with the following board of trustees: N. N. Smith, Benjamin Cameron, William A. Redd, Jesse Bull, John E. Gage, Bennett M. Ware, Wilie Womack, Andrew Battle, and James K. Redd. The property of the Troup County Academy was donated to them by the trustees of that institution, which was sold, and a site bought on the eastern side of the town between Hill and Greenville streets and east of King Street. The site contained about twenty acres, and fronted 750 feet on the present Hill Street. This school was presided over by some well known educators, Otis Smith, Carlisle Beman, Threlkeld, Hodges, Mooty and Jones. On October 14, 1843, the property was purchased by Joseph T. Montgomery, and it is probable that he induced Carlisle Beman, then president of Oglethorpe University, to take charge of the school. At a later date it was in possession of the LaGrange Board of Education, who sold the school site to a company to use as a race track, and the school was moved further west to the intersection of Hill and Greenville. This in turn was sold by the city to Robert E. and Edward Park, and the building removed to Park Avenue and operated as a boarding school for boys. A few years later it was destroyed by fire.

HOME ACADEMY. Chartered on December 31, 1838, with the following named trustees: William Christian, William E. Marcus, Peachy Bledsoe, William M. Fincher, Elkanah Talley, Thomas Tatom, George Wells, and Samuel Cartright. The location of this academy cannot be definitely stated as the names of the trustees constitute the only clue. Probably in the southern part of the county, but possibly in the eastern.

WEST POINT FEMALE COLLEGE. While the college may have been a development of the West Point Female Academy, it was organized as a college mainly through the efforts of Major McClendon, and financed by a stock company in 1868. In November, 1873, it was destroyed by a storm, but was rebuilt in 1874 by the city council under the administration of B. F. Reid as mayor. Colonel A. P. Mooty was one of the presidents, and was in charge in 1874, at which time there were about a hundred students in attendance.

THE LA GRANGE PUBLIC SCHOOLS. Education in LaGrange for many years was dependent on her colleges, the high school for boys, and several private schools, all of which received a small addition to their income from the state school fund through the county school commissioner. The General Assembly of Georgia had passed several acts enabling the city of LaGrange to establish a system of public schools, and in the early part of 1903, an election was held to authorize an issue of bonds for the construction of school facilities to the amount of $25,000.00, and the citizens approved the measure by an overwhelming majority.

The following Board of Education was elected by the city council to put the system into operation: F. M. Longley, who was chosen as chairman, T. A. Atkinson, J. H. Edmondson, H. R. Slack, C. L. Smith, W. L. Cleaveland, and John D. Edmundson, mayor and ex-officio member. The high school, now Harwell Avenue, was erected at a cost of $13,000.00; East LaGrange and the Union Street colored school, for $4,500.00, and the balance up to $20,000.00 was used for desks and apparatus.

Clifford L. Smith was chosen as the first superintendent; James E. Ricketson as High School principal; Miss Lulu Ward as principal of East LaGrange, and Miss Fleming Ward as principal of Unity School, conducted in a building furnished by the Unity Cotton Mills. An additional colored school was established as Hill Street in the old colored academy.

The construction of Elm City Mills in 1905 and the Unity Spinning Mills in 1909 soon overcrowded the Unity School, for which temporary provision was made on Oak Street for the first grade, but finally resulted in the construction of the Unity School on Wilkes Street, and the enlargement of Union Street. The High School was built in 1914 at an approximate cost of $36,000.00. The system at that time included the High School on north Greenwood Street, Harwell Avenue Grammar School, Unity Grammar School, East LaGrange Grammar School on Johnson Street, and a kindergarten school on Dixie Street, and the two colored schools, Union Street and Hill Street.

In 1920, the city limits were enlarged to a two-mile radius, and the Southwest LaGrange School and the Dunson School added to the city system, and a colored school in the Valley Waste village.

In 1922, the Dawson Street School was built to replace the East LaGrange School, which was abandoned and razed; and the East Depot School for colored students was erected in the same year; the High School was enlarged and a gymnasium added in 1921; the Domestic Science building was added to the High School group on Greenwood Street. In 1931, the Junior High School was erected on Hill Street. The present system includes the following schools:

- High School on Greenwood Street.
- Junior High School on Hill Street.
- Harwell Avenue Grammar School.
- Dawson Street Grammar School.
- Southwest LaGrange School on Washington Street.
- Dunson School on the Atlanta Highway.
- Unity School on Wilkes Street.
- Union Street colored school.
- East Depot Street colored school.

The story of the LaGrange Public Schools would be incomplete without paying tribute to the excellent work of James E. Ricketson as principal of the High School until he became president of the Southern Female College, and his able successor, Thomas G. Polhill, afterwards the superintendent of the Troup County schools, and their associates, for the establishment of a standard of scholarship beyond reproach, and to these at a later date was added the work of Robert L. Cowart as principal. The painstaking work in the early years of the schools of Miss Lulu Ward and her sister, Miss Fleming Ward, in preparing the way for fuller upper grades, which were pitifully small in the beginning. The Southwest LaGrange School under the superintendency of Chilton W. Coleman before the merger constituted a powerful factor in the later expansion of the schools by the excellent preparatory work accomplished. Since 1916 the LaGrange schools have been under the care of Superintendent F. F. Rowe, under whom they have made great progress in development of scholarship, and have added an enviable record of athletic activities.

WEST POINT PUBLIC SCHOOLS. The West Point Public Schools were operated as part of the county system until 1876, when a local board of education was authorized. In 1879 on August 9, the board was composed of nine members, the terms of three members expiring every year. On August 20, 1906, the pro rata of the school fund of West Point was authorized to be paid direct.

The utilization of the West Point Academy as a nucleus for the system and with some additions was found to be adequate for the demands of the schools. A large per cent. of West Point citizens in the business sense are political citizens of Alabama, and the colored population of the Georgia side is small in proportion to the white. The population of the textile plants are all in Alabama. Yet the normal growth of the thriving city on the banks of the Chattahoochee increased the demands of the school on the hill, and in 1932 a handsome, commodious, and well arranged high school was built, which would be a credit to a veritable metropolis.

The number of superintendents testifies to the merits of these well known educators by their long service: A. P. Mooty was the first, serving under the chairmanship of John R. Scott; J. W. McKemie; Norman C. Miller; J. E. Purks; Walter P. Thomas, and the present incumbent, W. Terrell Harrison.

HOGANSVILLE PUBLIC SCHOOLS. The public schools of Hogansville were established in 1893 in conformity to an act passed by the General Assembly of Georgia during that year. The school was located in the northern part of the town in a small wooden building. In 1896 the old small building was replaced by a larger wooden structure, which at the time seemed to be ample for the accommodation of pupils for some time to come. The construction of the Hogansville Manufacturing Company in 1899 caused an influx of students which soon filled the school to overflowing and necessitated the use of temporary quarters for some of the classes. The new brick schoolhouse and auditorium was erected in 1919, and again there seemed to be plenty of room. The construction of the Stark Mills in 1922-23 complicated the situation once more, and resulted in the construction of the new High School in 1932.

Among the early teachers of the Hogansville schools are noted the names of Mrs. Sarah Covin and her husband, John H. Covin, and A. F. Trimble. The superintendents include the following: Marvin Williams, Duval Jackson, J. B. Sammons, E. B. Strozier, J. T. McGehee, McLarty, and the present incumbent, O. C. Lam.

CHAPTER XVIII. LITERATURE AND ARTS

LAGRANGE DAILY NEWS. In any record of the literature of a community, the editors of the newspapers hold a prominent place, inasmuch as a great part of the progress of a community is mirrored in, and influenced by the attitude of the papers of the community. Troup County has been fortunate in having so many able editors.

The present LaGrange News has had several names during its long and honorable career. It was launched as the LaGrange Herald in 1843, and later was called The Chattahoochee. In the early sixties it bore the name of The LaGrange Reporter, which name was retained up to the time of the merger of the LaGrange Reporter, the LaGrange Graphic and the Shuttle in the year 1928. Since that time it has borne the name of LaGrange Daily News.

In Avery's History of Journalism in Georgia, he tells us that the LaGrange Herald, then a weekly, was founded by Dr. Bronson. William J. Scott was an early editor. Judge Alexander M. Speer, for many years prominent in the political history of South Carolina and Georgia, was one of the senior editors. Thomas J. Bacon, one of the most brilliant members of the ante bellum bar of LaGrange, was the editor until 1861 at the beginning of the war. He was mayor of LaGrange at the time and was one of the first to volunteer and was a Captain in the 27th Georgia Volunteer Infantry. He was killed at Seven Pines on May 31, 1862, and was the first LaGrange man killed on the battlefield.

C. H. C. Willingham was the editor during the war and the reconstruction days. He was an able and fearless writer and his intense loyalty to the South, and his denunciations of Federal injustice came near causing his arrest several times.

Another editor was John T. Waterman, who was a man of brilliant intellect and courtly manners. He conducted the Reporter for eight years, making a great success of his management.

Rev. S. Pope Callaway, son of James Callaway, one of the Troup pioneers, is remembered most happily as editor of the Reporter for many years by the old citizens now living in the county. He was noted for his cultured English, his grasp of thought, and his force of expression. After his death in 1896, his wife, Mrs. Ellen Patillo Callaway assumed the management and called to her assistance W. W. Randall, an experienced editor and newspaper man. Some time later she gave the management to her son, James Pope Callaway, during whose administration the daily was instituted.

In 1902, George E. Billingshurst became manager and editor, and with him was associated W. W. Randall. In 1904, J. O. Bell purchased the plant and became manager and editor. The property again changed hands and J. A. Perry became manager and editor for some time.

The next editor was John H. Jones, who became the state senator from our 37th district in 1921-22. He was also the author of "Americanism," a book of observations and records of the World War. Many of the succeeding managers and editors were never very closely identified with local interests, and did not leave much impression upon the memory of the readers. Some of these were Williams, Mahaffey, Henry Emory, Howard, Paul Porter. The present manager and editor is Roy C. Swank, who is able and efficient.

THE LAGRANGE GRAPHIC. This paper commenced publication on January 7, 1888, under the management of C. R. Hawkes and W. W. Randall. After some time Hawkes was replaced by Roe C. Ward, and this continued until Randall was employed as editor of the Reporter, when Orville Gustavus Cox became editor of the Graphic. Associated with him was G. A. B. Tomlinson, and from this gifted pair came many sparkling gems of prose and poetry. After his death in 1903, he was succeeded by the following editors and managers: James B. Ridley, Marvin M. Dickinson, Samuel G. Woodall, Roy McGinty, James B. Daniel, W. A. Richardson. After these the paper was merged with the Reporter under the name of LaGrange Daily News.

THE WEST POINT NEWS. This newspaper is the medium of news of West Point and the Chattahoochee valley industrial plants, and was established by Joseph Hames. He was succeeded by W. Trox Bankston, whose facile pen enriched the pages for many years. Bankston was a member of the legislature for our county in 1917-18. Upon his change of residence to the city of Covington, the editorship and management fell upon the shoulders of John Coffee and his son, who are the present operators of the paper.

THE HOGANSVILLE HEADLIGHT. This newspaper was established in 1897 by J. R. Kendall and George E. Billingshurst. After Billingshurst removed to LaGrange, Rev. George W. Morgan became the editor. He was followed by R. H. Jackson, who was editor up to the time that it ceased publication.

THE SHUTTLE. This paper was established as a paper ministering to the news of the southern textile plants in 1919 under the management of Mrs. Ethel Thomas, who added to the interest of the pages with a weekly letter under the pen-name of "Aunt Becky." She was succeeded by Mrs. C. J. Lewis for a short time, and she was followed by Miss Eleanor Orr, who was manager until it was merged with the Reporter in 1928 under the name of the LaGrange Daily News.

OUR PAPERS. The end and aim of these papers of Troup County has ever been to bring the news to its readers in an entertaining manner, to uphold the lofty principles of our government, to promote civic and urban growth, and to disseminate culture and enlightenment among the readers. The modern editors have striven and succeeded in carrying forward the high moral policies established years ago by the pioneer editors.

LITERATURE. A tea for authors given by the trustees of the LaGrange Memorial Library in September of 1933, as a feature of the observance of the Georgia Bicentennial program, brought out the fact that Troup County has produced a number of writers of note. The display included the work of the following Troup County authors:

Mrs. Oreon Mann Smith, a novel, The Novice. She was the wife of Rufus W. Smith, president of LaGrange Female College, and was a teacher of distinction in Georgia schools for more than fifty years.

Mrs. Addie Bull Tomlinson, a poem, Missionary. She was the wife of J. M. Tomlinson, a portrait painter, and the mother of Mrs. Mary Tuggle and gifted son, G. A. B. Tomlinson.

Gustavus Adolphus Bull Tomlinson, a volume of poems, The Old Brigade and other poems. He was the son of the above. This talented family added greatly to the culture of Troup County.

Orville Gustavus Cox, a volume of poems, Elms and Roses. He was editor of the LaGrange Graphic, and was mayor of LaGrange in 1903-04.

Frank Harwell, a volume of poems, In a Garden. He was judge of the City Court of Troup County, 1905-16; judge of the Court of Appeals. His friend, William Cole Jones says of his poems, "He will stand revealed as one whose crowning gift is a fine responsiveness to the beauty of nature and the worth of man." He lives in Decatur at present, but Troup County still calls him her son by virtue of his long residence there.

Mrs. Jewel Faver Glass and her talented daughter, Katherine Faver Glass, have had many poems published in the newspapers, and they each have several poems on trees in "Poems of Trees," a Sidney Lanier Memorial.

Carrie Fall Benson, plays and poems. She has written five plays, two of which, "Fiddlin Fellow" and "Timbers," were sold to the Carolina Players, and produced in many cities of the country. The other three, "Decorous Days," "Porcelain Heartbreak," and "Mickleberry Manor," have been produced at LaGrange College and before many organizations of women. She has written many charming poems, which have been published in poetry magazines and in anthologies.

Charles Stakeley, a volume of poems. He was a minister of note, and was pastor for many years at Augusta, Georgia, and at Washington, D. C. He died at Montgomery, Alabama, in 1932.

Mrs. Lottie Anne Spikes, a volume, Memories. She was the wife of L. E. Spikes. She was a contributor to the columns of the Banner Herald.

John Franklin Edwards, a volume, The Red Book. He was a member of the 35th Georgia Volunteer Infantry, C. S. A., the father of Mrs. R. L. Hammett. The book is an autobiography of Confederate service.

John H. Jones, a volume, Americanism. He was an editor of the LaGrange Reporter, and our Georgia state senator in 1921-22.

Ulrich Bonnell Phillips, a history, Life and Labor in the Old South. He is the most celebrated writer of LaGrange origin, son of J. R. Phillips and nephew of Robert M. Young. His history of the ante bellum South is fearless in style, clear cut, and enlightening, yet giving to facts an interesting and picturesque touch. He was awarded a prize offered by Little, Brown and Company for the best unpublished history manuscript, the publication of which won for him the Kahn Fellowship Foundation, which is awarded for unusual attainment and gives a year of leisure for travel and rest from work. He is now professor of American History at the University of Michigan.

Mrs. Arabella Dawson Hill, a volume, Mrs. Hill's Cook Book. She was the wife of Judge E. Y. Hill, and daughter of John E. Dawson, founder of Southern Female College at LaGrange. Her book was for a long time the supreme authority on all forms of cookery, and many of her recipes are still in use.

Clifford Lewis Smith, a booklet, Birds and Trees of Troup County. He is the author of this volume.

Belle Boddie, contributions, Early Recollections of Troup County. She has recorded the recollections of her mother, Mrs. Aley Womack Smith Boddie, the wife of Thomas A. Boddie, with great charm and dignity. They were published in the LaGrange Graphic. In addition to these contributions, she has had many other articles accepted by papers and magazines.

Edward Thomas Moon, a history, Class of 1893 of University of Georgia. A history of the achievements of the class of 1893, written in a clear and entertaining manner by one of its members.

Mrs. Annie Bass Hill, poems. She is the wife of B. H. Hill of West Point. She has written many poems of merit and distinction, which have been published in the Atlanta Constitution, the New York Times, and in several magazines. She is a member of the Atlanta Writers Club.

Anderson M. Scruggs, poems. His boyhood was spent in West Point. His most widely known poem, "Glory to Them," is a glorification of the toilers of the earth. This poem has been published in thirty magazines, anthologies, and newspapers, and appeared in an English anthology of the best poems of 1930. He is professor of histology and embryology at the Southern Dental College, and is a member of the Poetry Society of America, and of the Atlanta Writers Club.

Nellie Sue Bailey, poems. She is a student at LaGrange College, and has had several poems published in the local papers, and one included in the volume of Trees—the Sidney Lanier Memorial.

Benjamin Harvey Hill, addresses and orations. He was one of the distinguished orators of America, prominent in state and national affairs. Many of his addresses have a wide circulation. His official positions are noted in the roster of Officials and Old Citizens.

PAINTING. Our county has been fortunate in having many exponents of art in color and in form in the communities, and emanating from the colleges. Some of these have bestowed their artistic creations on friends and loved ones, and enriched the walls of many homes. Some of these artists and teachers follow: Mamie Stakeley, an early instructor; Lucy Carpenter, whose specialty was wax flowers; J. M. Tomlinson, portrait painter; Mamie Holifield, an artistic artist; Mrs. Ada Wooten Shaw, Mrs. Pearl Long Smith, Roberta Black, Viola Burks, and many others. All of the above have received awards of merit for pictures exhibited at state and local fairs and exhibitions. Vance Cotter also won recognition with his etchings and pen and ink work. William Lamar Dodd, son of Rev. F. J. Dodd, has exhibited some beautiful water colors in Philadelphia at the Feragil, and in the International Exhibit at New York. He received a scholarship in the Art League of New York for excellence of his work.

MUSIC. From the early days to the present, the citizens of LaGrange and of the entire county have enjoyed unusual opportunities in culture and entertainment and instruction on account of the presence of masters of art, music, and literature in the colleges, and from the celebrities who came to our communities under the auspices of our educational institutions. Among these passing celebrities are noted: Walter Emerson, premier cornetist of the world; Thomas Nelson Page, author and ambassador to England; Governor Bob Taylor, the inimitable entertainer; Rumenji, the master violinist; Blumenstein, the matchless cello player of the Boston Quintet Club; these and many more through the colleges; William J. Bryan, the orator and statesman; and John Burroughs, the naturalist; the last two through the public schools. Among the musicians that have contributed to the technique and appreciation of music, and became identified with our county as citizens are noted many names: Alwyn Means Smith, a talented singer and master of music, and his wife, Mrs. Laura Crane Smith, a finished singer and musician; Herman Schirmacher, musician and orchestral expert; John Norman, pianist and organist; Louis Alberti, singer and choral expert; Mrs. Pauline Witherspoon Hutchinson, the golden-voiced soprano; Mrs. Jennie Evans Bradfield, the matchless contralto; Eula Render, Mrs. Ethel Dallis Hill, and Mrs. Gene Covin Farmer and her talented daughters, all violinists of the highest order; Mrs. Mary Will Cleaveland Thompson, Mrs. Annie Lizzie Strong Park, Sallie Cox, and Viola Burks, artistic pianists and organists; a host of others, of which those above were only types.

CHAPTER XIX. PUBLIC BUILDINGS

THE COURTHOUSE. In 1827 the first session of Troup County Superior Court was at a private home west of the town of LaGrange, since the county seat had not been selected by the Inferior Court, and in fact the selection was made in the spring of 1828. The old brick courthouse was erected in 1830, and the accompanying jail was located on the site of the present city hall. The original jail was replaced by a brick structure in 1845, which was built by Benjamin H. Cameron. In 1892 the jail site was changed to the present one under the administration of M. L. Fleming as chairman of the Troup County Commissioners, and the present structure was built in that year. The other commissioners were J. M. Callaway, J. P. Baker, J. E. Smith, and W. J. Hammett, and the builder was William L. Landrum.

The old courthouse was supplemented at a later date by two small offices separated by a vault. These were for the accommodation of the County Clerk and the Ordinary, and were located on the eastern edge of the courthouse plat, which was inclosed by an octagonal iron fence. This fence was afterwards used to inclose the Confederate Cemetery. The old brick courthouse and the offices were dismantled in 1904, and while the work of demolition was in progress, O. G. Cox, talented poet and editor of the LaGrange Graphic, penned the following lines:

"The march of time had ordered that the old courthouse should go.
It was shoddy and old-fashioned and out of time, I know,
But I'm thinking of the vanished scenes in the long ago.
Alford is grandly thundering,
Dougherty is pleading, and Edward Hill is there!
Bull is weighing justice with scales balanced fair.
Haralson in argument is pealing strong and clear,
Ben Hill sees on furrowed cheek the tribute of a tear.
Gordon's youthful visage, bright eyes aflame!
Ferrell, clear and brilliant, and a host whom I could name."

In 1904, the present courthouse was built under the administration of Charles H. Griffin as chairman, and ably assisted in the work by the other members of the Board of Commissioners, J. M. Callaway, W. J. Hardy, J. F. Market, and Frank Word, and Frank Harwell as clerk of the board. It was built by C. C. Totherow and Company as the contractors.

THE LAGRANGE POST OFFICE. The time of waiting in the lobby of the old post offices was formerly spent in political discussion, and the transmission of social news, otherwise known as gossip. The gathering time was the arrival of the mail train, and the waiting time during the distribution in the various boxes until "General Delivery" was open. The records of the early days are not kept in the local office and the memory of old citizens, some of which have blank intervals, furnish the source of all available information. The earliest location of the office in the memory of the author was a wooden building about where the Howard Garage is situated on Church Street, and Captain W. S. Evans was the postmaster. This was during the first Cleveland administration in 1884. It was next moved to the west side of Ridley Avenue near the Misses Young store, and Moses R. Kirby was the postmaster. The next move was to the east side of Main Street, and the postmaster was William Laird, who was not previously a citizen of LaGrange. In 1905 the office was moved to the corner now occupied by the A. & P. store, as the National Bank had leased the old quarters on Main Street, and on this site Mrs. N. F. Awtry presided as postmistress.

In 1911 the present Federal building was erected as a post office, and continues to be the office until the present date. This is a modern building with all the conveniences necessary for the reception and forwarding of mail. The addition of the convenience of the parcel post was established about 1917, some time later than the erection of this building. The present courteous and obliging postmaster is Walter L. Turner, who succeeded Mrs. Awtry.

THE WEST POINT POST OFFICE. The thriving city of West Point and the adjoining part of the city that lies in Alabama also have a Federal building as a post office, the erection of which was completed in 1932. It is on the west side of the river on the south side of 8th Street, almost on the Alabama state line.

CITY HALL OF LA GRANGE. The city hall of LaGrange was erected in 1926, during the administration of Grover C. Hunter as mayor, with the approval of the following members of the city council: F. J. Pike, R. L. Render, Roy Dallis, E. D. Phillips, J. E. Borders, and A. C. Dunson. The building was designed by Lockwood and Poundstone, and constructed by the LaGrange Lumber and Supply Company. The cornerstone was laid by W. D. Richardson, Grandmaster of Georgia Freemasons.

The building is located on the northeast intersection of Haralson and Ridley Avenue on the site of the old county jail. It provides commodious city offices for the clerk and the city engineer, a comfortable room for a council chamber, and in the basement the city police office and the city prison. The city clerk is J. H. Moss, and the city engineer, G. H. Sargent.

WEST POINT AUDITORIUM. This modern structure is a credit to the city of West Point, and houses the welfare activities of the community, and the headquarters of this district of scouts under the leadership of Grady Bradshaw. The city offices are located on the corner of First Avenue and Ninth Street. Further details and dates were not obtainable.

HOGANSVILLE CITY HALL. The city hall of Hogansville was erected in 1924, during the administration of Mayor Daniel. It is located on the south side of Main Street a short distance from the railroad station, which is the center of the corporate limits of the city. Upon the cornerstone appears the following information: "Hogansville City Hall, 1924; G. G. Daniel, Mayor; C. C. Nall; R. E. Daniel; B. F. Rosser; W. P. Wilkes; B. R. Williams, Sr.; R. H. Utting, clerk." The building is a credit to the enterprise of this energetic city.

THE DUNSON HOSPITAL. This hospital was originally the LaGrange Sanatorium, which was chartered November 24, 1902, by H. R. Slack, F. M. Ridley, H. W. Terrell, T. S. Bradfield, F. E. Callaway, J. E. Dunson, C. V. Truitt, W. A. Reeves, and A. T. Dallis. The Sanatorium was sponsored by Dr. H. R. Slack, who was a large contributor in the subscription to the enterprise, and it was operated by him until 1916, when it was purchased by the city of LaGrange in response to a bequest by Joseph E. Dunson, who died in that year. The bequest was stipulated as a fund of $10,000.00 for the erection of a municipal hospital, and in addition a maintenance fund of $500.00 annually for five years for the operation of the hospital. The city purchased the Sanatorium for $20,000.00 by adding $10,000.00 from the city treasury. The Sanatorium was valued at a larger sum, but Dr. and Mrs. Slack donated the excess value to the hospital.

The Dunson Hospital began operations with forty beds, and included a colored ward in accordance with the conditions of the bequest. At a later date the hospital was enlarged to accommodate sixty beds and an X-ray laboratory. A training school for nurses was conducted for a time.

Among those citizens who have served as trustees, or directors, of the hospital are found the names of H. H. Childs, Jarrell Dunson, T. J. Thornton, F. S. Tatum, J. J. Milam, and C. N. Pike. The present board consists of C. N. Pike, R. O. Pharr, T. G. Polhill, Richard Hutchinson, and Mayor R. S. O'Neal, ex-officio member.

The superintendents of the hospital are named in the order of their service in the hospital: Freda Walters, Ethelyn Patterson, Grace Hudson, and Catherine Shriver McDuffie, the present incumbent.

LAGRANGE MEMORIAL LIBRARY. The LaGrange Woman's Club bought from G. B. Heard, administrator of the Heard property, the house and lot on Church Street in 1911 for a club house. Even at this early date, a public library was being discussed by the club, but the income from the rental of the house was used for liquidating the indebtedness, and all the remaining available funds were used during the World War and the following years for the care of war orphans and Red Cross projects. Finally, on March 1, 1921, during the administration of Mrs. Howard Park as president of the club, and with Mrs. Clifford Smith as chairman of the library committee, a small library of three hundred volumes was installed in the assembly room of the club house. So generous were the gifts to this little collection that in a month's time it numbered two thousand volumes. The chief gift was the reference library from the Southern College, donated by the Render family.

The Woman's Club bore all the expense of maintenance of the library for three years, after which the city began to appropriate a small sum towards its support. A reading room was added to the library at a cost of $800.00, which was open to the public for one or two days each week. The library soon outgrew its quarters, and the club members began to agitate the question of erecting a larger and more convenient building for the library.

As a result of this agitation in 1924, Joseph H. Edmondson made a most generous and attractive proposition to the club women, viz.: that he would contribute $5,000.00 toward a library building, if the club and the citizens of the town would raise $10,000.00. In response to this proposal, in 1925 Hubert Quillian, secretary of the South-West LaGrange Y. M. C. A., was asked by the Woman's Club to take the chairmanship of the library movement. The club as an organization had promised to contribute $1,000.00 in cash and its valuable lot on Church Street and the sum to be obtained from the sale of the old house on the site as a nucleus to build a library and Woman's Club room. The club also promised to contribute its books, then valued at $3,000.00. In addition, fifteen members of the club had met previously and had subscribed $1,500.00 as their personal gifts to the construction.

The matter was presented to the Rotary Club by Hubert Quillian in such an attractive and interesting manner that the club took over the project and with their characteristic enthusiasm and energy, they achieved the astounding success of securing $25,000.00 in subscriptions in one day. It was suggested and adopted by all the interested parties that the library should be dedicated as a memorial to the soldiers who suffered and died in the World War.

The Troup County Library Association was formed with Hubert M. Quillian as president, a constitution was adopted and a charter secured; and plans drawn by Ernest D. Ivey of Atlanta were accepted, and a contract for building a public library and a Woman's Club room was let to the LaGrange Lumber and Supply Company. This handsome library was completed in November, 1926, and dedicated on Armistice Day to the veterans of the World War as a memorial to those who suffered and died in that great conflict.

The library was opened to the public on December 6, 1926. It now has nearly seven thousand volumes, a very good reference collection, and all the leading magazines. In 1932 the total circulation was 33,716 volumes. It is supported by the City of LaGrange and the Woman's Club, the city contributes $1,200.00 yearly to the support and the club pays the deficit and adds to the library.

Miss Jeannette Wilhoite has acted as the librarian since its beginning in 1921. Her efficiency and charm have contributed in a large measure to the usefulness and popularity of the library.

The present board of trustees are as follows: J. H. Edmondson, President; Mrs. Clifford Smith, Vice-President; Render Dallis, Secretary; Robert Hutchinson, Treasurer; Mrs. J. E. Dunson, Jr.; Miss Mary Nix; Cason J. Callaway; H. W. Caldwell, and W. H. Turner, Jr.

HAWKES CHILDREN'S LIBRARY. In 1873 four young men of West Point, Scott Todd, Morris Herzberg, Theodor Mayer, and H. Blumenfield, formed a reading club. They met in the rear of the Herzberg jewelry store, where they kept their books, and read and discussed them.

A few years later the Young Men's Library Association was formed. A room was obtained, the books installed, and a librarian secured. Other members who joined at this time were Shep Shepherd, LaFayette Lanier, Daniel Merz, and H. Heyman. This library finally became the nucleus of the present Hawkes Children's Library, which was established through the activity of the West Point Woman's Club.

A. K. Hawkes, a philanthropic citizen of Atlanta, becoming interested through the influence of Mrs. C. E. Patillo, left a bequest of $7,500.00 for a children's library at West Point. The result of the bequest is the attractive library building on the west bank of the Chattahoochee. Mrs. S. O. Cundy, sister of Mr. Hawkes, supplemented this gift with a contribution of more than $5,000.00, the income from which is used for the purchase of books for the library. On September 29, 1922, the library was opened with appropriate ceremonies.

The library is supported by the city and the West Point Woman's Club. Mrs. Mary Poer Oslin has been the efficient and courteous librarian from the time of its establishment, and her profound interest has been a great factor in the success and upbuilding of the library. On January 1, 1932, there were 4,575 volumes in the library.

CHAPTER XX. CHURCHES

THERE ARE many churches and chapels in the county, and there are some which have moved from their original location to a more convenient site, and a few of the old buildings have come into the possession of the colored people by gift or by purchase. The following list of the churches gives all that are known to the author:

LAGRANGE FIRST METHODIST. The site for the town of LaGrange was purchased on March 5, 1828, and was surveyed and subdivided by the Inferior Court of Troup County a short time thereafter. As soon as the subdivisions were made, on one of the lots set aside for church purposes, the first church of LaGrange was erected, a log church on the site of the present Methodist church. It was completed in 1828. On the same site in 1858, a brick church was built, which was replaced by the present structure in 1898.

This church was under the jurisdiction of the South Carolina Conference from 1828 to 1832; of the Georgia Conference from 1833 to 1867; of the North Georgia Conference from 1868 to the present time. The first session of the Georgia Conference was held at LaGrange in 1833, and in 1855, the Conference again assembled at LaGrange, at which session the question of purchasing LaGrange College was presented for consideration.

From 1828 to 1839, the church had no pastor and shared with the other churches in this section a preacher on the Troup Circuit. In 1840, it was made a half-station, sharing the pastor with West Point. At that time the following were the only stations in the Georgia Conference: Athens, Augusta, Columbus, Macon, Milledgeville, Savannah, and Washington.

LAGRANGE FIRST BAPTIST. This church was organized on April 12, 1828, with Jonathan Nichols as chairman, and James David as supply minister, and a membership of eleven. Necey Fowler was the first person to join the new church. Mrs. S. C. Todd, in a reminiscent article published in the LaGrange Graphic in 1895, stated that the organization took place in the same building where the first court was held, at Nicholas Johnson's house, and that Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, and Mr. and Mrs. Culberson, were among the eleven members.

For a number of years the church worshipped in a building on the northwest corner of Bull and Broome streets. This property was deeded by the Inferior Court to the Presbyterian and Baptist churches on August 15, 1831, as one of the lots to be given by the county for religious purposes. There is also a record, which shows that the Baptist church owned a lot on Smith Street, which they sold to Robert A. T. Ridley on March 4, 1839, but there is no record of a church building on that lot.

On October 12, 1855, the congregation reached a decision to build a church of their own to seat from four to six hundred people, the building to be designed "upon the basis of the highest combination of simplicity and cheapness compatible with taste." The present lot, known then as Howard's Tavern, was selected. At the south end of the building was erected one of the tallest spires in the state, about one hundred seventy-five feet, according to the statements of some old citizens. In the interest of economy, this steeple was erected after the building was completed. It was destroyed in later years by a wind storm.

In 1862, Benjamin H. Cameron was instructed to hang a bell in the steeple and "when it was properly hung, he would be paid." The bell was uninjured in the fall of the steeple, and for many years was in use on a platform in the rear of the church.

The basement of the church was impressed by the Confederate government for a hospital during the War Between the States. A sum of $368.00 was collected for the use of the basement, which sum was used to build a baptistry. Previous to this time, the baptisms were performed in the nearby creeks and the Chattahoochee River. Some time later, a marble pool, the gift of the late I. F. Cox, was installed.

In 1884, an organ was installed, and Miss Sallie Cox was the first organist. Some time later a handsome three-manual Skinner organ was erected after the remodeling of the church in 1922.

In the remodeling of the church in 1922, parts of the old structure were undisturbed, the east wall being retained and parts of the roof, but the purity of its colonial architecture was not in any way disturbed.

LAGRANGE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH. On March 21, 1829, the Presbyterians of the village of LaGrange gathered together and organized a church. Three Presbyterian ministers were present: Garrett Hollenbeck, Edward Lanier and Jesse Stratton.

The charter members of this church are as follows:

Bailey, Nancy	Hall, Robert
Baker, Mary	Hall, Cynthia
Cameron, James	Hall, Fidelia
Cameron, David	Hall, Carolyn
Cameron, Mary	Long, James E.
Wadford, Alexander	Wilkinson, Flora
Watson, John M.	Wilkinson, Margaret

Robert Hall, Green Culberson, John M. Watson, and James H. Cameron were elected Ruling Elders, and James Long was appointed clerk.

Many of the early settlers from other older states were Presbyterians, and they hastened to join by letter. A characteristic of the early churches was their strictness of discipline. One of the members was suspended in open session in 1832 for drunkenness, profanity and gambling. A committee was appointed to see the erring member and to admonish him to confess, repent, and reform. If he complied, he was forgiven; if not, he was called before the session, tried, and frequently suspended.

The first report made by William A. Redd was as follows:

	Added by examination.....	6
	Added by certificate.....	4
	Dismissal by certificate.....	5
	Suspended	1
	Adults baptized	3
	Missionary Funds raised.....	$5.00
	Education Funds raised.....	5.00

Some of the earliest additions to the church were: Benjamin and Eliza Cameron, James Cameron, Sr., and his wife Sara Cameron, James Loyd and his wife.

James Loyd and P. H. Greene organized and taught the first Sunday school in Troup County.

This church shared the building with the Baptist church on Bull Street until January 3, 1846, when the new building on the corner of Church and Haralson streets was dedicated. In 1863 this building was used by the Confederate government as a hospital, and again the congregation shared with the new Baptist church alternating the services. When the church was released, the sum of $245.00 was paid as rental by the Confederate government.

In 1919, the beautiful structure on Broad Street was erected during the pastorate of T. D. Bateman upon a site donated by Miss Laura Loyd. The membership has grown to the present total of three hundred and thirty-six, and contributed members to the formation of Long Cane (Loyd's) and Ebenezer churches.

LOYD PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH. This church was organized in 1837 at Long Cane and was called Long Cane Presbyterian Church, and the majority of its members were former communicants of the LaGrange church. This original church building was the joint property of the Baptist and Presbyterian churches of Long Cane, and was situated near the old camp ground, where camp meetings preceded by prayer and fasting were held in the 30's and the early 40's.

For many years this church was given one service a month by the LaGrange Presbyterian ministers. Sometimes the services were held in homes remote from the church.

In 1887, the Presbyterians withdrew from Long Cane, and built a new church three miles north of Long Cane, and named the new building Loyd

Church, in honor of James Loyd, the oldest surviving member of the Long Cane Church.

In 1911 a manse was built. In 1915, during the ministry of W. E. Dozier, the membership was greatly increased, and the services more frequent, and the old building was torn down and replaced by a comfortable new structure.

MOUNT PLEASANT METHODIST CHURCH. One of the earliest settlers in Troup County was Thomas Evans, who built a cabin home near the present site of Camp Viola. He was of Welsh descent on both sides of the family, and was distinguished by his uprightness and godliness. It was in his cabin, where he and his family were joined in earnest prayer by his neighbors, that the Mount Pleasant Church was organized.

James Hunter, an energetic and consecrated circuit rider, organized this church in 1828, and served as their pastor that year. The services were held in the cabin of Thomas Evans for nearly a year.

However, the congregation grew too large for the cabin, and in the autumn of 1828 the neighbors built a larger log house for worship, near where the old Hebron Church stood. Rev. W. C. Evans, son of the above named Thomas Evans, served this church in 1846.

People continued to move into the neighborhood and again it was found necessary to build a larger church to accommodate the communicants. This second building was located in front of the home of Wilson Partridge.

The years passed and again the church was too small, so another much larger church was built on the hill in Mountville, where the cemetery is now located. One of the most flourishing Sunday schools in the county was organized and conducted in this church through the efforts of John Carleton.

In 1908 the church was moved from the hill to the present site. From this little country church, four of its members have entered the ministry: W. C. Evans, J. E. Russell, William Hightower, and Charles P. Marchman.

WEST POINT METHODIST CHURCH. The first church building in West Point was the Methodist Church, which was a log structure, built on the site of the home of Dr. J. P. Miller in 1831. The building was used by all the denominations, and the Methodist congregation was organized by Rev. Thomas Williamson as the first organization in the town.

In 1834, a frame house was built on the eastern part of block 34, which lies between Tenth and Eleventh streets, just west of the present highway.

In 1852, a building committee, composed of George H. Winston, James M. Hill, and James W. McLendon, let a contract for a brick church on the west half of block 72 on the south side of Seventh Street. The lot was donated by the West Point Land Company. The building was completed in 1853, and was dedicated on December 4, 1853, by Dr. Alexander Means of Emory College.

In 1906, during the pastorate of S. P. Wiggins, the present commodious church and Sunday school buildings were erected under the supervision of a building committee, composed of L. S. Turner, chairman, Benjamin H. Hill, J. S. Baker, H. W. Miller, and J. E. Purks.

Among the early members of this church are noted the families of the following: Lodwick Alford, Arthur E. Baker, Charles Eaton Bass, William Biscoe, Henry Chappell, David Davenport, John Durham, W. B. S. Gilmer, J. M. Harrington, Henry Harris, James M. Hill, Mrs. Emma Lanier Oglesby, William Reid, Evans Richards, James Scott, Thomas Tatum, Henry Todd, Dr. Ward, John C. Webb, George H. Winston, and Thomas Winston.

WEST POINT BAPTIST CHURCH. This church was organized on September 7, 1849, by the following: James Whitten, C. D. Mallory, James Fuller, and William D. Harrington. Twenty-four letters were presented for the membership on the day that the church was constituted as the West Point Baptist Church of Christ, and at an early date became a part of the Western Association. The first building was erected in 1850, and dedicated in August, 1851. It was built on the site of the present church, the lot which was donated by the West Point Land Company. The first record as to a Sunday school was in 1883, but the school may have been in existence prior to that time. On December 3, 1883, the Woman's Missionary Society was organized. The old building was replaced in 1896, and in the new building was celebrated the Semi-Centennial of the organization on September 7, 1899. The present building is a result of the diamond jubilee held in 1924 during the pastorate of Dr. Ernest Quick, and the credit for the beautiful structure is given to the building committee: W. H. Huff, chairman, H. H. Greene, and J. C. Lanier, who supervised the completion in 1925. The second church building was used for classes for a time after the West Point Female College was burned in 1886.

WEST POINT CHRISTIAN CHURCH; Disciples of Christ. It was about the year 1853 that Dr. Hook, a minister of the Christian Church of Augusta, Georgia, visited West Point, and his ministry during this visit marked the beginning of the work of this church in West Point.

Among the pioneer families identified with the establishment of the church in West Point are included the names of the Laniers, the Winstons and the Griggs.

Monthly services were held more or less regularly from 1853 to 1905 by Drs. A. G. Thomas, F. L. Adams, T. M. Harris, J. N. Grubb, A. C. Henry, and Belt White; also during this period special services were held on different occasions by Drs. Z. T. Sweeney, Philip Lamar, and A. R. Moore.

In 1905, S. P. Spiegel, State Evangelist of Alabama, held a protracted meeting, and the organization was strengthened by several additions. The first trustees of the organization were: LaFayette Lanier, Sr., S. T. Hammond, E. F. Lanier, and Phil Lanier.

At the time of the reorganization in 1905, the church began to accumulate funds for the purpose of erecting a building, which was built in 1906 and 1907, and dedicated in 1907.

Dr. A. R. Miller of Savannah was called to become the first full time minister, and served for three years. He was followed by Rev. O. P. Spiegel, who served for one year, 1910. In 1911, Rev. L. M. Omer became the pastor, and remained until the summer of 1917. In December, 1917, S. P. Spiegel, the present incumbent, began his ministry with the church.

The church has a magnificent plant and a good parsonage, and while it has never been strong numerically, it has been and now is a power and an influence for good in the community.

The present trustees, in the year 1933, are: S. T. Hammond; George H. Lanier; William C. Batson, and S. H. Johnson.

ST. MARKS EPISCOPAL CHURCH. There was no organized Episcopal congregation in LaGrange until 1892. There were, however, a number of church members. Some of these were: Mrs. Bennett Ferrell, and her sister Miss Emma Bright, Mrs. Frank Ward and her three daughters, and the families of Fred Ball, Henry Mason, and Wiley Sims. Church services were held in Sterling's Hall, now the Truitt Building, in the Presbyterian church and in the Masonic Hall by visiting clergymen.

On May 26, 1892, Bishop Nelson preached a sermon in the First Methodist Church, which was the beginning of a campaign to build an Episcopal church. A subscription was started and soon a sum sufficient to warrant the purchase of a lot was raised. Rev. William M. Walton, Archdeacon of Atlanta, purchased the present site of the church on the corner of Church and Battle streets.

January 9, 1893, a contract was let to Pike Brothers to build a church and a rectory. Henry C. Butler made and donated the pews, which are still used in the church. Mrs. L. T. Slack, a consecrated church member, and her family were largely instrumental in the erection of this church. R. C. Ward gave the foundation stone and brick.

The first convocation was held in the church on December 17, 1893, by Archdeacon Walton, who served this little church named St. Marks, for five years. He was succeeded by Rev. R. F. DeBelle, Rev. Thomas Burry, and Rev. G. R. Micou, who gave two or three services each month.

The first resident rector was Rev. A. H. Brooke, who began his work in 1903, and was succeeded by Rev. Henry Phillips in 1906. The ministry of Rev. Henry Phillips was quite successful. Due to his efforts the congregation of St. Marks was materially increased, and a mission in southwest LaGrange built with a church, a school and a library. He served until 1915, and was succeeded by the following rectors: Robert Phillips, Arthur M. Marshall, William B. Hays, H. A. Willy, G. V. Harris, J. W. Fulford, G. J. Batty, and J. D. C. Wilson, the present rector.

Under these ministrations, the church has greatly increased its membership and usefulness. The present rector also serves the Good Shepherd Mission in southwest LaGrange.

ASBURY METHODIST CHURCH. This church is located in land lot No. 119 of 12th district, or at Harrisonville. The organizers of this congregation were: John and Nancy Stinson, Henry and Sara West, Philip and Elizabeth Howell, John Ragan, James Amos, W. C. Leith, Ready and George Watts. In 1827 and the early part of 1828, the congregation gathered at the various homes for services, and after the building of a schoolhouse near Providence Cemetery (land lot 171) for a time the building was used as a meeting place. After a short time a place was provided at Tan Yard Hill, but water not being convenient, the building on the Asbury site above mentioned was erected in 1833, in conformity to the charter granted to "Asbury Chapel" in 1832.

For some time this was the only church in the northern part of the county. The impetus given to this community by the session of the annual conference at LaGrange in 1833 was probably an outcome of this great gathering, as the church was built the same year. The church has witnessed the eloquence of many Methodist notables who ministered to the old time circuits. As a result of the great religious revival of 1838, the development in the whole section was rapid in religious fervor and church growth. The following are the pastors who served this church, the year indicated where known:

WEST POINT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH. On December 30, 1837, the West Point Presbyterian Church was organized with thirteen persons in attendance; the meeting was held in a building of logs. The new church was built on a lot near the Georgia and Alabama line, facing the city of West Point. It was built by a negro carpenter belonging to George Croft and George Reese. In the building there was provided a gallery for the slave members. The church was dedicated on July 30, 1852.

In 1886 and again in 1919, the building was flooded by the Chattahoochee River and badly damaged. In spite of these calamities, this devoted congregation has built a handsome, commodious church in the Gothic style of architecture on West Tenth Street and Fifth Avenue. This building was designed by Charles H. Hopson.

EBENEZER PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH. The original location of this church was on the site of the present Hogansville cemetery, and was donated by Joseph N. Boyd on June 12, 1835. The church was fully organized in 1837 with fifty charter members, and at that time was given the above name.

The first elders were Joseph N. Boyd, John E. Gillespie, and Green Culbertson. The early church was affiliated with the LaGrange church and was served by the pastors of that church. At a comparatively modern time the church was removed to the present site in the city of Hogansville.

ANTIOCH BAPTIST CHURCH. This church was an important factor in the religious life in the days when Antioch was a flourishing village. The following document found among the county deeds is an interesting record of this former church:

State of Georgia, Troup County:

Know all to whom it may concern that I, Archey Whatley, of the state and county first written, do for and in consideration of the love and esteem which I have for the Baptist Church who worship at Antioch and who are of the same faith and order with myself and wife who believe in the foreknowledge of God, in eternal unconditional personal election, original sin, particular redemption, efficacious grace, in regeneration and sanctification, free justification by the imputed righteousness of Jesus Christ, and the final perseverance of the saints to eternal glory, that baptism by emersion and the Lord's Supper are ordinances and washing the saints feet, and other good works are Christian duties, and for the purpose of having a Baptist meeting house close at hand for the convenience of myself and family, attending divine worship, know ye that I do hereby constitute and appoint Labon Pitts and John Stillwell who are deacons of Antioch and their successors (Deacons of Antioch Church) trustees in behalf of and of said Antioch Church, know ye that I do hereby give unto the said Labon and John and their successors in office for the use and benefit of Antioch Church who are and may continue to be of the above named faith and order the lots or parcels of lands and roads or ways connected therewith (viz.) one parcel of the following description commencing at a chestnut post on the west line of a parcel of land I sold to Jackson Ray, thence due north twenty rods to a white oak corner, thence southwardly twenty rods to a stake corner, thence west twenty rods to the place of beginning containing two and a half acres more or less for the purpose of building a Baptist meeting house on, and one parcel of land round the spring which is now used by the congregations who meet at Antioch Church meeting and by R. F. Session's family of the following description a circle forty feet diameter the spring to be the center of said circle containing one-tenth of an acre more or less and also a road or way thirty feet wide leading from meeting house lot to the spring to leave the meeting house lot entirely east of the first corner thence directly to the spring, and a road or way thirty feet wide from the meeting house N. easterly to the public road. The above described lands and roads or ways are parts and on lot of land number thirty in the fifteenth district of Carroll when drawn, to have and to hold the above described lands and roads or ways together with every thing thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining unto the said Labon and John and their successors for the use of Antioch Church forever in fee simple. And I, the said Archey, do hereby warrant and will forever defend the rights and titles of the said lands and roads or ways against the claim of myself my heirs and assigns and against the claim or claims of all and every other person or persons whomsoever.

In witness whereof, I hereunto set my hand and affix my seal in the presence of this 12th day of August, A. D., 1835.

BEULAH PRIMITIVE BAPTIST CHURCH. This church, according to the first minutes, was constituted on August 3, 1837, at the house of Archey Whatley and the following constitution with the regular old Baptist articles of faith attached were adopted:

The following, whose names appear below, have mutually given ourselves to each other, and having withdrawn from different churches, for various unscriptural institutions of the day and feeling it our duty to endeavor to promote the cause, and kingdom of Christ on the earth, and having met at the house of brother Archey Whatley, in the western part of Troup County, and agreed to call elders John Blackston, and Moses Gunn, regular ordained ministers, as a presbytery, to constitute us into a church after the regular order of the Baptist. These elders, after examination, and prayer, proceeded to declare us a church of Jesus Christ, on the regular principles, and articles of faith.

After the constitution of the church, it was declared in gospel order, and a conference was organized. The church was named Beulah, and elder John Blackston was called and chosen unanimously as pastor. John Blackston as moderator and Jabez F. Brazell as clerk. Archey Whatley, who had donated the site for Antioch Church, withdrew from that church on the constitution of Beulah.

During the years from 1837 to 1850, forty-two members united with the church, and from 1851 to 1861, inclusive, forty-seven were added, among whom are noted the names of Vachel D. Whatley and wife, Julia Garrett, Ornan Whatley and wife, Edward Cooley, James Bonner, Goodwin D. Floyd and wife.

The church was dissolved by mutual consent on August 17, 1925. The above information was furnished by Elder S. H. Whatley of Thomaston, Georgia, and to the information was appended the following note:

"The children of these old faithful Christians and their neighbors furnished the material for the perpetuity of this old church for eighty-five years. Then the citizens began to move to other sections for various reasons, principally for better school facilities. This made a sad decline in the church attendance and finally it was almost impossible to take care of a pastor. Archey J. Whatley, who still survives at this date, the son of Ornan Whatley and grandson of old Archey, is the only one of the members living in the community of the old church site. Elder Vachel D. Whatley was ordained in Beulah Church in 1853 and served the church until his death in 1866. Elder A. B. Whatley was ordained in 1870 and served until 1874. The writer asks the forbearance of the readers for claiming the honor of being the son of Elder Vachel D. and brother of Elder A. B. Whatley.

"I submit this report in respect to the church of my dear father and mother, the church where they worshipped before I was born. I began my career as a Christian in my early manhood, and though I was never a member of Beulah Church, I loved and still cherish the memories of my childhood at that dear place. I have been preaching for the Primitive Baptist close on to half a century. I shall soon lay down my armor and join the church triumphant."

ELDER S. H. WHATLEY.

The first Sunday school was established in this church in 1868.

TEMPLE BETH-EL. Under the designation of Beth-El Temple was organized the Jewish synagogue for the West Point and Lanett members of the Jewish church, which is allied to the Congregation of Atlanta, and Dr. David Marx, rabbi of the Atlanta Congregation, ministers to the religious needs of the Congregation.

Temple Beth-El is located in Lanett on ground donated by Mrs. Betty Merz Heyman for that purpose and adjoins the home place of Mrs. Heyman and also of Lee Heyman.

The temple was built in 1908 by means of public subscription, and was dedicated in the spring of 1909 by Dr. David Marx, who served as Rabbi for the Congregation before the erection of the temple, and has continued to serve through the succeeding years.

The officers of the Congregation are as follows: President, Lee Heyman; Vice-President, Joseph Herzfeld; Treasurer, Zachariah Hagedorn; Secretary, Louis P. Heyman, who is also the Superintendent of the religious school. The teachers of the religious school are Lee Heyman, Louis P. Heyman, and Miss Rose Heyman.

The Jewish citizens of LaGrange and of Opelika are members of the West Point Congregation, who worship at Temple Beth-El.

JEWISH CEMETERY AT WEST POINT. The Jewish Cemetery at West Point was dedicated in August of 1885 just preceding the burial in it of Herman Heyman, a pioneer citizen of West Point. The dedication was consummated by Rabbi S. Hecht of Montgomery, Alabama. The land adjacent to Pinewood Cemetery was purchased from the city as a Jewish burial place, and prior to that time Jewish citizens on their death were taken either to Atlanta or to Montgomery for interment.

Many well known citizens of West Point and of adjacent towns rest there peacefully in their final sleep: Mr. and Mrs. Herman Heyman; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Freisleben; Morris Herzberg; Zach and Philip Hagedorn; Louis, Theodore and Fred Mayer, and their sister Mrs. Thekla Mayer; Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Hagedorn and their sons; and Mrs. Hagedorn's sister, Mrs. Reichard; Isaac Frohain of Alexander City, Alabama.

MIDWAY METHODIST CHURCH. This church was built in 1867 in land lot 121 of the 14th district. It was the consolidation of two congregations, one of which was at Liberty Hill, and the other called Rehoboth at Antioch. The property consisting of four acres was donated by John T. Boykin, Sr., with the stipulation that it should revert to the heirs in case of abandonment as a church. The property was deeded by the heirs to the North Georgia Conference in 1910. The church was built by contributions of lumber, labor, and money from the members and their friends. Some of the lumber was secured from the Wilder estate, and is still in a state of good preservation. Among the pastors who served this church are noted the names of J. W. Lee, James Eakes, and many others. It was formerly a part of the West Point circuit, but now is a part of the Glenn circuit.

HARMONY METHODIST CHURCH. This church, located about two miles west of Abbottsford in land lot 7 of the 16th district, is one of the earliest churches west of the river, and was probably established in 1838. The present church building, which replaced the preceding small frame building, was built in 1898. The site of this church is the location formerly used as the Harmony camp ground. The church has been during the later years a part of the West Point circuit. It was the gathering point of the community of Troup and Alabama Methodists, especially in the summer months, during which the camp meetings were held. The cemetery adjacent to the church holds the ashes of many of the Troup pioneers.

ANTIOCH BAPTIST CHURCH. The incorporation of this church took place on January 21, 1852, and the following were names of the trustees designated as such in the charter: Henry Walker, Benjamin Green, Hardy Morgan, Thomas Green, and Augustus J. Scrutchins. However, in this charter reference is made to Cedar Creek Baptist Church, which may have been the name of the church before this incorporation. The many changes in this section of our county has caused this church to be absorbed by other congregations.

BETHEL CHURCH. Organized in 1835, and together with its cemetery located in land lot 121 of the 5th district. This is one of the old community churches on the east side of Long Cane Creek, and is a part of the present West Point circuit, sharing with Harmony, Long Cane, and Pleasant Grove the services of one pastor for the four churches.

CHAPTER XXI. ORGANIZATIONS

AMERICAN LEGION, BAXTER L. SCHAUB POST. The LaGrange Post was organized on November 21, 1919, and was named in honor of Baxter L. Schaub, the first Troup County man to lose his life in the service. He was the son of Mrs. J. L. Schaub, and saw service on the Mexican border as a member of the Fifth Infantry, National Guard of Georgia. He continued in service when this regiment was mustered into service as the 122nd Infantry after the declaration of war with Germany. He was a mess Sergeant, and lost his life when the mess hall at Camp Wheeler was destroyed by fire, November 24, 1917.

In the thirteen years of the existence of the Post, it has rendered service to the community in many ways. The care of disabled service men is the first objective of the Legion, and this Post has contributed its services to many deserving cases. The promotion of Americanism by lectures in the schools and the observance of great anniversaries constitutes another activity of the Post. The Legion loyally assisted the other organizations of the city of LaGrange in the erection of the public library as a memorial to the Troup County men who lost their lives in service during the war.

In 1929, under the leadership of Albert Brooks, a drum and bugle corps was organized, and proved very popular. This corps received the honor of being the prize corps in the meet of 1933.

In 1930, under the leadership of John R. Finn, the membership of this Post was increased by the addition of more than 300 members, and entertained the state organization in 1931.

The commanders of this Post are as follows:

Howard, W. L.	1919-20	O'Neal, R. S.	1927-28
Callaway, Enoch	1920-21	Thomason, J. Toombs	1928-29
Bradfield, Loyd	1921-22	Brooks, Albert	1929-30
Martin, Raymond W.	1922-23	Finn, John R.	1930-31
Philpot, Eugene A.	1925-26	Holleran, Owen C.	1931-32
Dunaway, Eugene	1926-27	Winn, Frank	1932-33

No elections were held in 1923, nor in 1924.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY. In February, 1931, John R. Finn as Commander of the Legion named a membership committee for the establishment of an Auxiliary, and they were Mrs. Cason J. Callaway, Mrs. T. H. Nimmons, and Mrs. Albert Brooks, and an application was made on February 1, 1931, for a charter for the LaGrange Auxiliary of the Baxter L. Schaub Post of the American Legion.

On February 21, 1931, a meeting was called, at which the state president, Mrs. E. S. Travis, addressed the gathering on the subject of "Rehabilitation, Child Welfare and Americanism.” At this meeting the following officers were elected:

Mrs. T. Harvey Nimmons.....	President	Mrs. Walter Binns.....	Chaplain
Mrs. R. S. O’Neal.....	First Vice-President	Mrs. J. D. C. Wilson.....	Historian
Mrs. J. B. Davis.....	Second Vice-President	Mrs. George Cahall.....	Sergeant-at-Arms
Mrs. Albert Brooks.....	Secretary-Treasurer

At the time of organization, this Auxiliary had the largest charter membership of any organization of auxiliaries in the state of Georgia. The Auxiliary assisted the Legion most graciously in entertaining the state legionnaires in LaGrange in July, 1931.

At the recent meeting of the Legion in Valdosta in 1933, this Auxiliary received the award for the greatest increase in membership in the state.

UNION MASONIC LODGE. Union Lodge, No. 28, Free and Accepted Masons was one of the early organizations of the county. LAGRANGE WOMAN'S CLUB. In 1908, Mrs. Sallie Boykin Cary organized the LaGrange Woman's Club and was elected the first president. Like the other clubs of the Georgia Federation, which it joined in 1909, this club was organized for civic, philanthropic and cultural purposes. It was divided into a number of departments which followed as near as possible the Federation departmental system, and during the twenty-five years of its existence most of these sections have continued to function. The child welfare, community service, fine arts, American home, garden, and junior sections have been especially successful.

Splendid contributions have been made to the patients at Alto and Milledgeville, Red Cross, Christmas seals, Camp Viola for undernourished children, Tallulah Falls School, and many other worthy causes. A number of scholarships have been given for student aid. The club has maintained a scholarship at Tallulah Falls for two years.

The civics, community service, and garden sections have inaugurated, planted and supervised a city park and a playground, and has planted hundreds of trees, shrubs and roses on the highway.

The child welfare section has conducted a clinic for diphtheria and other preventable diseases in pre-school children for many years.

The fine arts section has exerted a cultural influence in the community by giving concerts and bringing celebrated artists to the city, also sponsoring fine collections of paintings, etc.

The club met in the homes of the members for many years. In 1911, the Heard House on Church Street was bought for a club house for $3,300.00, on which a part payment was made from the small sum that the club had been able to save, and the balance was borrowed from the LaGrange

National Bank through the courtesy of Fuller E. Callaway, the following women indorsing the note and forming a body of trustees for the club: Mesdames Enoch Callaway, C. M. Awtrey, C. V. Truitt, W. A. Holmes, F. E. Callaway, Sarah Reid, T. A. Atkinson and Clifford Smith. This note was paid in the course of time, and in 1920 the trustees deeded the building to the club. It was not used by the club, however, till 1921, the rents being used to help pay the debt. It was at this time that the club put into existence the principal project for which it had been working for many years: a public library.

This library was maintained almost entirely by the club until 1926, when the old club house was torn down and replaced by a beautiful new library and club house. The library has continued to be the principal activity of the club. During the years since 1926 up to the present, 1933, the club has contributed $3,441.36 as its share of the expense of maintaining the building and running the library, in addition to the contribution of the club towards the erection of the building.

The club has won the district gavel many times for its excellent work, the Tallulah Falls gavel, and the General Federation prize of fifty dollars for its Book Week observance. This prize was used to purchase two etchings for the library.

Mrs. Clifford Smith served the club for fourteen years as president, and Mrs. Henry Reeves for three years. The following women have served as presidents of the club:

Mrs. Sallie Boykin Cary	Mrs. Howard P. Park
Mrs. Clifford Smith	Mrs. Jarrell Dunson
Mrs. Sarah White Dunson	Mrs. L. D. Mitchell
Mrs. Henry Woodyard	Mrs. F. C. Ferrell
Mrs. H. H. Childs	Mrs. Henry Reeves

The following members constitute the officers, who have been elected for the current year of 1933:

Miss Margaret Edmondson.....President	Mrs. Render Terrell.....Secretary
Mrs. J. T. Nichols.....First Vice-President	Mrs. T. L. Arnett.....Treasurer
Mrs. Neil Glass.....Second Vice-President

WEST POINT WOMAN'S CLUB. When the realization of what organized women could do was first sweeping the country in 1898, a group of West Point women with a vision of accomplishment banded themselves together as the West Point Woman's Club.

From the beginning the objects of the club were "social, literary and humanitarian." Interesting women of all denominations met in friendly intercourse to exchange ideas under the cheering influence of the "cup of tea." Picnics and outings as well as the annual club reception in September were all parts of the social aspects of the club. The literary and cultural features were in the form of well-executed programs including the study of travel, music and art, suggestions on home making, and always the high lights in current events. A deep interest was developed in civic affairs for the betterment of the community in public buildings, schools, welfare of the poor, care of the cemetery, and the like.

For a number of years the membership approximated thirty members, and under the wise direction of Mrs. J. Lindsay Johnson, at that time president of the Georgia Federation of Woman's Clubs, the club joined the federation in 1899, and acceded to the suggestion that the club be unlimited in numbers.

Standing as a monument of achievement of the club, is the City Auditorium, wherein are provided quarters for the club, Chamber of Commerce, Welfare Association, and the Boy Scouts. Credit also is given the club for the establishment of the Hawkes Children's Library, which is elsewhere described in these pages. The activity of the club made possible the bonds for the school building, the pride of the city.

The care of the cemetery has always been a part of the club plans, and under the leadership of Mrs. E. F. Lanier funds for the fence and gate were provided. The club has always maintained a chairman of cemetery maintenance, among whom the following are noted: Mrs. Benjamin T. Smith, Mrs. E. F. Lanier, Mrs. Clarence Hudmon, Mrs. John H. Horsley, Mrs. Lewis Askew and Mrs. Grady Webb.

Under the direction of the civic chairman and in the interest of beautification of the city, shrubs have been planted at the new school buildings, both at the white and the colored schools.

Under the direction of the forestry chairman, Mrs. Harold Parker, a beginning has been made for the beautification of the highway from West Point to LaGrange, and replacements and extension will be continued.

Plans for a garden section of the club are being worked out with Mrs. George H. Lanier as chairman, and plans for a Junior Woman's Club are being considered in the hope that a junior club may result.

Much attention has been given in the past few years to social entertainments, both for the social intercourse and for the securing of funds for various projects by means of enjoyable entertainments.

For the past two years the club has been interestingly entertained by the dramas given under the direction of Mrs. Jack Hodnett, Jr., who is chairman of drama. The audiences and the participants have been very enthusiastic over the renditions.

The welfare work of the club has been under the direction of the chairman of social service, Mrs. Edmund F. Cook, who is also president of the West Point Welfare Association.

Each year an active chairman handles the sale of Christmas seals in support of the Georgia Tubercular Association, and the present chairman is Mrs. William Keith; and the club annually conducts the campaign for Red Cross members under the direction of C. E. Wright, representative of the Red Cross in West Point.

In 1912 the club was chartered, and many of the present active members were included in the roll of charter members. The list of the charter members follows:

Adams, Mrs. David L.	Heyman, Miss Bertha
Adams, Miss Emma	Heyman, Mrs. Lee
Avary, Mrs. J. Arch	Humphrey, Mrs. Robert T.
Bankston, Mrs. W. Trox	Higginbotham, Mrs. W. B.
Clarke, Miss Carrie	Logan, Mrs. J. G.
Cohen, Mrs. Morris	Lovelace, Mrs. John L.
Crowder, Mrs. R. L.	McAfee, Mrs. M. J.
Cumbee, Mrs. Edward L.	McCulloh, Mrs. Mark
Dixon, Mrs. Mary	McKemie, Mrs. J. Courtney
Fullerton, Mrs. Claude L.	McNamara, Mrs. P. Joseph
Hagedorn, Mrs. Max	Mitchell, Mrs. Edgar
Hagedorn, Mrs. Philip	Omer, Mrs. L. M.
Hagedorn, Mrs. Zach	O'Neal, Mrs. Rance
Harris, Mrs. Anna	Oslin, Mrs. Mary
Herford, Miss Marjory	Poer, Mrs. John M.
Herford, Mrs. William B.	Shaefer, Mrs. Mollie
Herzberg, Mrs. Helen	Scott, Mrs. Fannie
Herzberg, Mrs. Hetty Lou	Stanfield, Mrs. W. H.
Heyman, Mrs. B.	Tatum, Mrs. P. A.

In February, 1933, the club celebrated its thirty-fifth anniversary. The club has continuously served its members, its city, and its citizens and those of the communities which it brings together.

On the organization of the West Point Woman's Club, the officers were limited to a term of two years' consecutive office holding. The presidents of the club commencing with the year of organization in 1898 are as follows:

Lang, Mrs. Ed1898-1900	Heyman, Miss Bertha1910-12
Adams, Mrs. David L.1900-02	McNamara, Mrs. P. J.1912-14

LAGRANGE BAPTIST WOMAN'S MISSIONARY UNION. During the pastorate of M. B. Hardin in 1882, the Woman's Missionary Union of the First Baptist Church of LaGrange was organized with twenty-eight members, and the following officers:

Mrs. John Pitts.....	President
Mrs. U. B. Frost.....	Secretary
Mrs. J. C. Forbes.....	Treasurer

The following consecrated women have acted as presidents during the fifty or more years that the society has diligently labored to carry on the work of Christ: Mesdames F. M. Longley, C. C. Cox, A. T. Cason, W. V. Gray, P. G. Awtrey, W. A. Reeves, R. S. O'Neal, and Misses Ella McLendon and Alice Amoss. Miss Amoss served for fourteen years.

During the administration of Mrs. P. G. Awtrey, a handsome new organ was bought and presented to the church by the union.

During the administration of Mrs. W. A. Reeves there was the greatest increase in the size and number of circles, and in the general excellence of the work. The Bible department under Mrs. Duke Davis won the Western Association award for a number of years.

The union is active in the support of Camp Viola, and their work in behalf of home and foreign missions is deserving of highest praise. At this date, 1933, the union has two hundred and eighty members, and is divided into nine circles. The officers for 1933 are as follows:

Mrs. R. S. O'Neal.....	President
Mrs. L. C. Schaudies.....	Vice-President
Mrs. Enoch Callaway, Sr.....	Second Vice-President
Mrs. Frank Stevens.....	Secretary
Mrs. E. C. Market.....	Treasurer

PRESBYTERIAN LADIES' AID SOCIETY. The Ladies' Aid Society of the LaGrange Presbyterian Church was organized in 1835, and has been noted from that time to the present day for its many benevolent activities. Among its first projects were the purchase of the first church organ, and the assumption of all the expenses of the church except the salary of the pastor.

During the Civil War this society was disbanded in order to form the "Soldiers' Aid Society," which was composed of all the women of the town.

These women ministered to the sick and wounded soldiers, and after this work was over, they reorganized their own societies and took up their separate interests once more.

By their diligence and devotion these noble women were enabled to cancel $3,000.00 of the indebtedness of the present beautiful church. Mrs. Thomas A. Boddie was a member of this body for sixty-seven years, and Mrs. J. L. Schaub for fifty-one years.

UNITED DAUGHTERS OF THE CONFEDERACY. The LaGrange Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy was organized July 3, 1897, under the leadership of Mrs. A. V. Heard, better known as Miss Queen Heard. The chapter entertained the state convention in 1902, at which time the Confederate monument on Court Square was unveiled. This monument bears this inscription:

"Erected by the LaGrange Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy to the memory of our Confederate soldiers—those who fought and died, and those who fought and lived. In our hearts they perish not."

The aims and objectives of the LaGrange Chapter can best be stated in the words of the creed of the general organization:

"We are daughters of the Confederacy to preserve in loving remembrance the memory of those who gave their lives to the Confederacy and to protect their last resting places from neglect and obliteration; to care for the needy ones who still abide with us; to guard the truths of history; to educate worthy young people who are descendants of Confederate veterans; and by mutual study and research to keep alive for many years a distinctly Southern womanhood."

The LaGrange Chapter through the years of its existence has been the active Memorial Association, of which Mrs. Caroline E. Gay was president for so many years. Among the names of those who presided over the chapter the following are noted: Mrs. A. V. Heard, Mrs. Caroline E. Gay, Mrs. Sarah Reid, Mrs. Eugenia Nix, Mrs. F. T. Reid, Mrs. R. O. Pharr, Mrs. Henry Reeves, Mrs. J. L. Bradfield, Mrs. J. J. Milam, Mrs. Enoch Callaway, Sr., Mrs. Roy Dallis, Mrs. L. D. Allen, Mrs. T. G. Polhill, and Miss Mattie McGee.

DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION. In 1894 a small but flourishing chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was organized as the eighth in the state, the Atlanta chapter being the first in 1891. This chapter was called, "The Susannah Elliott Chapter," but it was afterward disbanded. The LaGrange Chapter, as at present constituted, was organized on February 5, 1920, with twenty-three charter members. The LaGrange Chapter was named not only for the beloved "City of Elms and Roses," but also in honor of LaGrange, the ancestral home of the Marquis de LaFayette, French hero, who aided America so materially in her struggle for independence. The officers of this charter member band were:

Mrs. Alice M. Rushton King (B. J. K.)	Regent
Mrs. Birt Thomas Park (H. P. P.)	Vice-Regent
Mrs. Mary Park Polhill (T. G. P.)	Recording Secretary
Mrs. Mary Lane Hutchinson (Frank H.)	Corresponding Secretary
Miss Annie Newton	Registrar
Mrs. Jennie Evans Bradfield (J. L. B.)	Treasurer
Mrs. Mattie Turner Faver (J. D. F.)	Historian

1925-27	Mrs. J. L. Bradfield	1934-	Mrs. J. D. Faver

The LaGrange Chapter has awarded prizes each year in the High School for excellence in American history and citizenship. Scholarships have been given to LaGrange College and the Penn Studios. A chapter of Children of the Revolution was organized by Mrs. Polhill, the second such chapter in the state. The bi-centennial of the birth of George Washington was celebrated during the regency of Mrs. H. R. Slack by planting a tree in the city park with a suitable marker.

LAGRANGE LIBRARY CLUB. One of the first Woman's clubs in the state was organized in LaGrange in 1897 by Mrs. Enoch Callaway, who acted as the president for several years, and represented the club at the first state federation meeting in Rome, Georgia, in that year. The object of this club was to found a library. The meeting was held in the old council room, which occupied a part of the space where the present Masonic hall is now located. A small but select library was installed in this building, and Mrs. I. H. Lane and Mrs. Daniel Curtright acted as librarians. Dr. Callaway was of great assistance to the club in financing the library and furnishing the room. A small fee was charged for library membership, but this was found to be hard to collect, and finally the library was given to the public schools, and made the nucleus of the present school libraries. The club disbanded after disposing of the library.

CHAPTER XXII. ARCHITECTURAL FEATURES

PRIMITIVE. The original type of houses built by the pioneers was adopted from the Indian design. The floor plan was simple, being that of two rectangles separated by a space, and the entire structure covered by a continuous gabled roof of boards. The intervening space was sometimes floored over and sometimes merely raised with carefully packed earth, and was used by the Indians as a meeting place for a council, by the pioneers as a porch or a daylight sitting room when the weather permitted. The name given to this part of the cabin by the pioneers tells the story of other occupants for at least part of the time, as it was called the "dog trot."

Wide and high fireplaces of stone capped by a chimney built of sticks and mud constituted the heating and cooking facilities of the indoors. Chimney corner seats within the cavernous fireplace were the choice seats in winter, during which season the homefires never died, but heaps of ashes kept live coals through a whole season. Huge logs constituted the fuel.

The barns, stables, cribs and houses of the quarters or servant houses continued to be made of logs long after the "big house" became a mansion.

The difficulties of transportation of window glass over rough trails made the use of transparent windows prohibitively expensive; hence most of the window openings were closed with rude wooden shutters, which were seldom opened in winter or closed in summer.

QUARTERS. In the luxurious years that followed the cabin era of the pioneers came the age of gigantic plantations, and an essential part of these were the quarters, or slave and servant homes, which were built at some distance from the big house, and were long lines or groups of small log cabins usually one-room, or two-room at most. In the evening when one approached within hearing distance of the cabins, there might be heard the strum of a banjo, or the shuffle of a dance on the bare ground, or the oral petitions raised to Almighty God by some saintly old negro, or the grunts of some rheumatic with a "misery" in the side or back.

THE BIG HOUSE. The house of the master was always called the "big house," which term had no reference to the size as it might be of modest dimensions. There were two distinct types of residences of the early days. One of them was strictly classical in facade with huge Doric or Ionic columns like some temple to house the altar to some heathen god instead of the lares and penates that it held. These houses were two-story with the columns for the full two-story height, and formed the setting for a spacious verandah, which sometimes was extended on the two sides as well as the front. One invariable feature of these temple-light facades was the presence of a balcony with a grilled balustrade, placed immediately over the front entrance, which in turn was decorated with transom and side lights.

The second form was not so regal in appearance, composed of one-story height slightly elevated from the ground level, and provided with broad low verandahs on three sides. This form resembled the Spanish style with the exception of the central patio and fountain. Numerous small columns decorated the surrounding verandahs.

Our county was fortunate in having the services of skilled architects and builders, such as, Cullen Rogers, Charles Bailey, and the Camerons and Greenes, for to them we are indebted for many of the beautiful houses of the ante bellum days, that were built in the forties and fifties of the nineteenth century.

CHURCHES. The early churches were simple log rectangles seated with puncheon benches and having very primitive furnishings. They were insufficiently heated and not infrequently without any provision for lighting except the lanterns brought from their homes by those assembled.

The replacement of these crude buildings took place at an early date, certainly before 1840. The brick churches followed the lines of basilica structure, a rectangular building with a classic facade, and a pulpit recess at the opposite end. Provision for a choir was made at a much later date in one corner near the pulpit and the altar; because in the early days the use of musical instruments in a church was taboo.

MODERN CHANGES. The ceilings of the dwellings were formerly high, and were decorated with plaster mouldings and also rosettes for the chandeliers. The high ceiling added both to the comfort in summer and to the discomfort in winter. The present day ceilings are low.

The huge fireplaces of the long ago have shrunk to narrow grates, or else have disappeared except as an ornament, where furnaces supply heat. The cellar was once the storage place of wines and liquors, and sometimes of fruits and vegetables.

EARLY HOMES. There are many homes in our county, which are interesting from their age and their associations. Many of these are omitted from those enumerated below for the lack of definite information obtainable by the author. Very few of the original houses of the pioneer period are now in existence. Of those built at a date following that period, the strength and the dignity of composition after these many years give testimony to the fact that our forbears built wisely and well.

BELLEVUE. The most interesting and historic house in LaGrange and perhaps in Troup County is "Bellevue," the former home of Senator Benjamin H. Hill. It is located at the north end of McLendon Avenue, which was formerly the juniper-lined driveway to the mansion. The estate originally included twelve hundred acres. The beautiful colonial house crowned the hill, and afforded from the "Court," as the flat roof was called, a panorama of exceeding beauty. Far in the rear of the house were the slave quarters, orchards and vegetable gardens. The house was surrounded by magnolias and beds of old fashioned shrubs and flowers, bordered with boxwood. The walks paved with granite slabs led through the grove of splendid oaks and hickories of the original forest to the massive iron gates at the entrance. These gates, which cost $12,000.00, were replicas of the gates at the White House in Washington. The entire grounds were enclosed by a stone wall, built by slaves.

This house, which is regarded by architects as one of the purest types of southern colonial architecture, has immense hallways and handsome rooms with high ceilings and beautiful plaster cornices, and additional gilt cornices over the French windows. There is a wide portico on three sides of the house adorned with magnificent Ionic columns of two-story height. On the roof above the second story is the "Court" surrounded by a balustrade in keeping with the stately columns.

"Bellevue," which required two years in building, was designed by an architect by the name of Taylor, and was erected on the site of General Hugh A. Haralson's home, which had been burned. The site was purchased by B. H. Hill on November 3, 1853. Mr. Hill built the home for his beloved wife, and she said that she spent the happiest years of her life here. During their residence at "Bellevue," it was noted for its lavish hospitality and the large number of celebrated people entertained. Here Jefferson Davis, Stephen Mallory, Clement Clay and a host of other celebrities were guests. Associated with this house are memories of brilliant dinners, scintillating with wit and repartee; of balls, gay and sparkling with beautiful belles and handsome beaux; and there is the reverse side of this picture also: the many sorrows and anxieties of the war and the poignant emotions of Hill's arrest in his own bedroom by the Federal soldiers.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill sold this house and moved to Athens, and eventually made their home in Atlanta. The estate was bought by Judge Jesse McLendon, and is now owned and occupied by his son, Millard F. McLendon.

FERRELL'S GARDEN. Chief among the interesting places of old LaGrange was the home of Blount C. Ferrell, now replaced by the handsome villa of Mrs. Fuller E. Callaway, and the beautiful gardens, which are known throughout the United States. One of the four gardens of "Hills and Dales," formerly known as "Ferrell's Garden," was begun a hundred years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Mickleberry Ferrell, who bought the whole of Land Lot number 111 of the Sixth District on December 11, 1831, and moved to LaGrange in 1832. In 1841, Mickleberry Ferrell gave to his daughter, Sarah Coleman Ferrell, eighty acres in the southeast corner of the lot. Sarah Ferrell married her cousin, Blount C. Ferrell, and together they built a quaint and interesting house and immediately began planning their own garden. How pure in design and artistic in structure were these plans of Sarah Coleman Ferrell in 1841, is manifest today as garden experts from the world over come to admire them! One terrace after another, bordered with box and planted with magnolias, and rare trees, shrubs and flowers from far distant countries were added with the passage of years. Among the trees are to be found the shittim wood from the Holy Land, a giant Australian cunninghamia, whose foliage is renewed every twelve years, a ginkgo tree from Japan with foliage like maiden hair fern, a linden from Germany, weeping cherry trees from Japan, tea bushes from China, European larches, cryptomarias, aged cedars and magnolias, hawthorn, tea olives, banana shrubs, and a host of others. The ancient cedar from Lebanon was blown down in 1932, but Mrs. Callaway preserved the wood and had a number of interesting pieces of furniture made from the tree.

Mrs. Ferrell originated many quaint conceits in boxwood, among which are noted her own motto "GOD IS LOVE" and that of Judge Ferrell "Fiat Justitia." Mrs. Callaway has added the Callaway coat-of-arms motto "Ora pro mi." Mrs. Ferrell called the lower garden on the west side, "The Church." She shaped from tree-box the figure of an organ, pulpit and chairs, and formed a lyre of box and blooming flowers. Mrs. Callaway has continued this idea by planting old maids and sweet williams for the congregation, jack-in-the-pulpit acts as preacher, while the birds sing, and the marigolds take the collection.

Judge and Mrs. Ferrell spent seventy years of happiness together in the quaint house and the beautiful gardens, and the joy they gave others through their hospitality and generosity can never be estimated. Mrs. Ferrell died in 1903 at the age of 86, and Judge Ferrell at 92 years of age in 1908.

Four years later, Fuller E. Callaway purchased the estate and erected a beautiful Italian villa on the site of the old Ferrell house. Mrs. Callaway has striven to carry out Mrs. Ferrell's ideas and to keep the old world charm of this peaceful and lovely place. Besides this, she has added thousands of shrubs and gayly blooming flowers, a rock garden, a charming wild flower garden, a beautiful lake with graceful bridges and summer houses. Like Sarah Coleman Ferrell, Mrs. Callaway loves and tends this garden, and prays, "That her employment in Heaven will be to tend and water from the ambrosial fount, flowers that never would in other climates grow."

NURSES' HOME ON HARALSON STREET. The nurses' home of the Dunson Hospital is one of the oldest residences in LaGrange. It was built in 1829 by Joseph D. McFarlin, the father of R. S. McFarlin, and was sold to James M. Hill in May, 1835, and in turn to Thomas C. Brown in July, 1836, and acquired by James M. Turner about 1839. It was from this house that William W. and Sterling G. Turner went to Brownwood school, and Achsah and Annie Turner to LaGrange College under the Montgomery brothers. It was afterward the home of the Cunningham family, and from them bought by Dr. H. R. Slack, and eventually sold to the city of LaGrange as a home for Dunson Hospital nurses. After one hundred and four years occupancy, the house is still in splendid condition. Colonial builders built for time.

WILKINSON HOUSE, 301 VERNON STREET. This site was originally purchased by Whitfield H. Sledge, and sold by him to Pleasant P. Coleman, who built the present house. The purchase was made in 1835 by Coleman. The Wilkinsons, the present owners, formerly owned a dignified home of colonial design, which was located on the site of the McClellan store.

CULBERSON HOUSES. James and David Culberson owned the only saw-mills in Troup County in its early days, and constructed many of the early homes. James Culberson built the house now occupied by Mrs. T. A. Atkinson at 207 Broad Street, sometime prior to the war for his son, J. P. Culberson. It is said that the house was originally built in the country, and taken down and rebuilt on the present site. He also built the house now occupied by J. J. Milam at 203 Broad Street, for Judge J. B. Edwards. The house and grounds embraced about three-fourths of the entire block. It was surrounded by an iron fence, and the massive gates were on the eastern side, facing Lewis Street. The old Banks house, which formerly occupied the space on Broad, Lewis and Vernon streets, now used as a park, was built by Judge William C. Thomas, great grandfather of Mrs. Henry Reeves, and afterwards was acquired and enlarged by James Culberson, who gave it to his daughter, Mrs. Martha Culberson Thornton, grandmother of Mrs. L. D. Mitchell. James Culberson, who lived at the junction of the Harrisonville and Hammett roads northeast of LaGrange, also built another house for his daughter, Mrs. Sarah Culberson Snead, on the site of the Newton home at 117 Church Street.

WARE HOUSE, 311 VERNON STREET. This site was originally bought by Daniel S. Robertson, sheriff of Troup County, on April 14, 1832, and he is said to have lived there several years. The deed to him names the property as the west half of No. 2 Commons, and adds five rods front on Vernon Street from No. 3 Commons, which accounts for the offset in Harwell Avenue. The site was purchased in 1834 by Bennett M. Ware, the grandfather of Mrs. Eugene Nix, whose mother, Mrs. Caroline Ware Gay, was born there in 1835. Mrs. Gay will always be remembered for her loyal support of the Confederacy and the civic interests of LaGrange during the war, reconstruction and long afterward. This place was acquired later by Col. James H. Fannin, whose family occupied it for many years. Mrs. Fannin was Julia Ferrell, and inheriting a love of flowers from her ancestors, planted many trees, shrubs and flowers on the place. Mrs. H. E. Cary, sister of Mrs. R. T. Segrest, bought the place in 1909.

BODDIE HOUSE. This house, located seven miles east of LaGrange on the Mountville road, was built in 1836 by Nathan Van Boddie, and was designed by the architect, Cullen Rogers, and is typically southern colonial in style. Its outstanding distinctions are the beautiful Ionic columns, the fan-light transom over the front door, and the immense dining room, which is forty feet in length and twenty in width.

Before the advent of railroads in Troup County, David Beman, who owned and operated the Montgomery and Griffin stage coach line, had a relay station on the Boddie farm, and Miss Belle Boddie relates that her grandmother consented to serve the passengers meals, and accommodate them for the night if necessary. There were two long tables in the capacious dining room, and four cherry tables which were added when there was an overflow of guests. The fare was abundant and delicious, and Mrs. Boddie realized $8,000.00 from her venture.

The Boddie house was the scene of many brilliant gatherings, both political and social. The handsome dining room was also used as a ball room. Much of the beautiful furniture is still in this house, now occupied by Misses Belle and Van Boddie.

FLOWERS HOUSE. The home of James M. Flowers is located on the Big Springs road in Land Lot No. 157 of Sixth District. The first house was a log cabin, which was used until the present house was built in 1851, and was then used as a kitchen for many years. The Flowers home was noted for its beautiful flower yards, which were designed by Berkman, the Augusta landscape gardener. The boxwood and many of the old fashioned shrubs still survive after the passage of many years. Some of the most beautiful furniture to be found in the South is still in this house, now occupied by Joseph Newsom, a nephew of Mrs. Flowers.

E. Y. HILL HOME. The home of Edward Young Hill, for whom Hill Street was named, was a handsome home replaced in recent years by the Junior High School on Hill Street. The home was purchased by Dr. H. S. Wimbish, who resided there until February of 1885, when the place was sold to Maj. A. D. Abraham. It was in turn sold to Robert D. Render in 1898, and sometime after his death, the property was purchased by the city of LaGrange for a Junior High School site.

THE OAKS, 1103 VERNON STREET. The town home of Philip H. Greene took its name from the grove of splendid oaks in which it was situated. It was built in 1845 by Philip Hunter Greene, who was his own architect and builder. The house was constructed of timber from the native forest, the trees being felled and the lumber prepared by slaves. The construction is of traditional ante bellum style: all timbers mortised together and secured by wooden pegs; the facade is composed of six massive Doric columns; and the floor plan is that of four large rooms separated by a wide hall. At the rear of the hall is one of the most beautiful curved stairways to be found in LaGrange, among whose interesting features are noted the mahogany stair rail and the quaint niches in the walls for statuary. The walls and ceilings of the lower floor with their frescoes were made of plaster of Paris, and the mantels of black marble imported from Carrara.

At the rear of the house was the glassed conservatory, in which were stored rare plants and shrubs, among which there was a lemon tree that provided fruit for many years.

This property was inherited by the daughter, Mrs. Sarah Caroline Greene Todd. It is now the property of Mrs. Francis J. Dodd and still stands in the dignity and beauty of its early days among the venerable trees from which it took its name.

BROUGHTON HOME. The home of Edward Broughton of ante bellum days was a large two-story house with green blinds, broad halls and spacious verandahs. It was a homelike place with many windows open to the sunshine and to the fragrance of the garden filled with old fashioned flowers.

Seven daughters went from this home to LaGrange College under the Montgomery brothers, one of which daughters, Mary, married Troup Montgomery. This house occupied the site of the house in the triangle between Greenville and Hill streets in LaGrange, now occupied by Mrs. F. J. Pike. Miss Tallie Hill relates that the old Broughton house or at least one on the same site was used in stage coach days as a hotel, probably after Howard's Tavern was sold as a site for the present Baptist Church, which was in 1839.

TALLIE HILL HOUSE, 109 HILL STREET. This is one of the very old homes of LaGrange as it was built before Hill Street was opened, and its position is that of facing on Greenville Street, which explains the angular position in reference to Hill Street. Wiley P. Burks, guardian for Mrs. Hill, bought this home for her in 1853. Mrs. Hill was the mother of five daughters, Frances, Victoria, Mary, Tallie and Mat, and two sons, Abram C. and Albert G. There are a number of beautiful oaks on the grounds surrounding this interesting house that are over one hundred years old. Misses Tallie and Mat Hill have lived in this house continuously for eighty years. They taught a private school there for many years, and many men and women of this community received not only their early education here, but they also acquired the moral precepts from these remarkable women, which have guided them through life. To their keen mentality and wonderful memories, the author is indebted for many interesting facts about the early history of LaGrange.

GEORGE HEARD HOME, 206 BROAD STREET. The home of George Heard is a stately house in a setting of trees and shrubs, which was inherited by his daughter, Martha Heard, who married Judge James M. Beall, and the house was known for many years as the Beall house. There were two sons in the Heard family, the one, Rev. Peter A. Heard, who married Mary Cade Alford, made a great name for himself in Georgia Methodism; the other, Dr. Henry Thomas Heard was equally distinguished as a physician. This house is now the residence of Mrs. George E. Dallis.

DOUGHERTY HOME. The home of Robert Dougherty formerly occupied the whole block on Church Street, part of which is now the site of the Render Apartments. Some of the giant oaks that adorned these beautiful grounds are still standing. The house was a large colonial structure. As Robert Dougherty was regarded as a giant in the legal profession, his home was the frequent meeting place of pioneer celebrities. This site, after the destruction of the Southern Female College on Hill Street in 1861, was the location of the college, the apartments being a portion of the college buildings.

SAMUEL REID HOUSE. The house on the Mountville road, located in Land Lot No. 90 of Sixth District, is one of the first frame houses in Troup County. It was built by Samuel Reid, the county surveyor, and replaced the log house of the early pioneer days. The stately columns were added at a much later date. Judge Reid was the grandfather of Mrs. J. B. Strong. The house today is known as the Glanton house, and stands far back on the north side of the road.

RILEY MARCHMAN HOME. When the early pioneers began to settle in Troup County, Riley Marchman built a home on Land Lot No. 99 of the Sixth District, which is on the south side of the Mountville road. He cleared the ground for his plantation, which was surrounded by Indian cabins and homes. George Marchman, a youth of sixteen in training in Company C of First Georgia Reserves, was killed at the battle of Fort Tyler in West Point, and is buried in the family cemetery on this place.

WALTER COLQUITT HOME. On the outskirts of the southeastern part of LaGrange, Walter Colquitt bought a tract of land and built a house. While he was never a resident of Troup County, yet he spent all his summers in this country home, which in later days became the property of A. J. Heard.

JOEL D. NEWSOM HOME. This home is located on the north side of the Big Springs road in Land Lot No. 136 of the Sixth District, and was the home of Joel D. Newsom. This house of colonial type of architecture is a replica of the Boddie house on the Mountville road, and was designed by Cullen Rogers, an able architect of the ante bellum period.

LINDSAY HOME, 401 VERNON STREET. This house occupies the site formerly known as No. 3 Commons of LaGrange, and was the home of B. F. H. Lindsay, whose daughter, Mrs. Bessie Lindsay Walker, resides on Hill Street. After the death of B. F. H. Lindsay, his widow married Dr. William E. Murphey and lived in the same house. John L. Robertson was the next owner, and in the late nineties it was purchased by Mrs. Frank Ward and her daughters, one of whom, Miss Lulu Ward, still has her home and flower garden there. Mrs. Ward was a quiet gentlewoman, who looked on the journey of life as a road to Jericho, and deemed the law of human helpfulness one of the greatest laws of the code.

JOHN HILL HOME. One of the very interesting old homes in Troup County is that of John Hill at Long Cane, located in Land Lot No. 189 of the Fifth District. It is similar to most of the houses of former days, colonial in style with broad farm lands surrounding it. From this home came three men of marked ability: Dr. John Hill, William Pinckney Hill, and Senator Benjamin Harvey Hill.

ALFORD HOME. The first home built in the western part of LaGrange in Land Lot No. 110, was the home of Julius C. Alford, which formerly was located on the site of LaGrange College. Julius C. Alford, our Congressman who was dubbed the "War Horse of Troup," was prominent in the early military and political circles, and proposed the name for the city of LaGrange.

Julius Alford was a great uncle of Judge W. T. Tuggle, our popular city court judge. This site was purchased by the Montgomery brothers in 1843 for the erection of dormitories for students of the LaGrange Female Institute, which used the Female Academy on Broad Street for class rooms.

FOREST HOME. The home of Charles Cabiniss Bailey, located in Land Lot No. 252 of the Sixth District, was purchased by him October 28, 1827. Charles Bailey came from Henry County, Virginia, to Forsyth, Georgia, and leaving his family in Forsyth, he brought carpenters with him to Troup, as well as blacksmiths and masons. With this corps of laborers he constructed five two-story houses in the county. In 1850, he built the handsome residence known as "Forest Home" on the above mentioned site on the north side of the Hamilton road, near Rosemont School at present. He presented this home to his daughter, Mrs. John Humphrey Traylor, whose descendents still retain possession of the estate. The first ladder steps of the house built in 1827 are still in use to connect the second story of the house with the attic. The old wisteria still climbs across the verandah, and the old garden still boasts of the ancient boxwood, crepe myrtle and tall cedars. What stories of elaborate hospitality, brilliant entertainments of celebrated men, romance, joy and sorrow, this house and garden could tell! Jefferson Davis and a host of others were entertained within its hospitable portals. From this home have gone forth numerous men and women distinguished in the social and political life of Georgia.

BOYKIN HOME. This beautiful old colonial home is located in Land Lot No. 139 of the Fourteenth District, which was originally a part of old Carroll County. The present house was built in 1849 by John T. Boykin, and was occupied by his son, John T. Boykin, and his children continuously until 1924, and was ever known for the generous hospitality of its inmates.

POYTHRESS HOME. The site of the home of Joseph Poythress was bought by him in 1830 from James and William Daniel, and occupied the site of the present post office in LaGrange. The property was inherited by Frank Poythress, who married Caroline Ware, and she in turn became the owner of the property after the death of her husband, and sometime afterward she married John T. Gay, and lived in the house until her death in 1922. The house was moved to front on Broome Street when the post office was built, and was finally razed in 1925.

GRIGGS HOME. The battle-scarred Griggs home is on the Alabama line in West Point and located in Alabama, but it is so closely identified with the history of Troup County, that it has been included in our list of homes. It remains practically unchanged since the battle of Fort Tyler, when it was scarred with bullets in the fierce struggle for possession of the fort.

WHITFIELD HOUSE. This is one of the old houses of Troup County, and was the home of Horatio Whitfield, an old pioneer of the county, and is located on the south side of the road at Whitfield Crossing near Louise. The property was afterward in the possession of the Banks family. In 1931, it was purchased by S. H. Dunson, and he and Mrs. Dunson have used excellent judgment in the remodeling of the house, adhering strictly, though in a charming manner, to the traditions of architecture of the ante bellum period during which the old house was built. It is now known as "Gricewood."

TARVER HOUSE, CHURCH STREET. This house was built by the mother of Judge Walter Colquitt. After the death of Henry Colquitt, her husband, she married Andrew W. Tarver, and was in her second widowhood when the house was built. She occupied the house with her son, John Colquitt and his children, he being a widower at that time. The property is in possession of the Lehmann family and has been for many years.

HENDERSON HOME, 303 HILL STREET. This stately house was built by William Henderson, the great uncle of Mrs. R. O. Pharr, some time before the war, and was purchased by Benjamin H. Bigham in 1865 upon his return from the War Between the States. It is conspicuous for the beautiful staircase and the handsome brass cornices over the windows. Mrs. Adelaide Bigham Park, her daughter, Mrs. Mary Park Polhill, and her granddaughter, Mrs. Adelaide Park Webster, were all married in the same room of the house.

McFARLAND HOME, HINES STREET. This house was built by a German contractor named Wagner for Joseph D. McFarland about the year 1833. It was occupied by the Bacon and the Fannin families; James Stanley and his wife lived here in 1843, and it was afterwards occupied by Benjamin B. Amos, the father of Mrs. Ida McFarlane. It was bought by L. J. Render in 1880 and is still in possession of his daughter, Mrs. W. E. Morgan. The Render family though pioneers of Meriwether County have added much to the wealth, culture and prestige of LaGrange and Troup County for more than fifty years.

RUTLEDGE HOME. This house is located on the east side of the road from Hardin Crossroad to West Point. It was built by a contractor named Urpe in 1852 for Joseph Rutledge, father of Mrs. M. L. Fleming. Two years were required to construct the house; no nails were used in the framing, all joints being mortised and tenoned and fastened by wooden pegs. It remained the property of Joseph Rutledge until his death in 1892, and became the property of Mrs. M. L. Fleming in 1895, and was sold by her to William Hogg in 1908.

FROST HOME, 323 GREENVILLE STREET. This house was the former home of the Frost family, who were financial and military characters in the early days of LaGrange. At some later time it was purchased by W. V. Gray, and occupied by his family for many years, and is still in possession of the family.

WILKES HOME, 218 MAIN STREET. This house was the former home of Benjamin Wilkes, the grandfather of Ben Wilkes of Springdale Drive. The house was situated in the center of a large lot fronting on Main, Bull and Broome streets. It was afterwards moved southward from the original position, when the Truitt home was built near Broome Street. The Wilkes family were among the wealthiest and most influential of the early days.

SWANSON HOMES. On the north side of the old Vernon road just beyond the second crossing of the A. B. & C. Railroad is the old home of Graves Swanson. On the south side of Vernon road within the city limits on the site of the home of Ely R. Callaway was the home of Sherwood Swanson. Both of these homes were noted for their lavish hospitality. The home of Sherwood Swanson housed the first session of the Superior Court held in the county. Sherwood Swanson married Sarah Cameron, one of the three graduates of LaGrange College under the Montgomerys in the first class of 1846.

CAMERON HOME. This home is located on the north side of Vernon road just within the city limits, and was the home of Benjamin Cameron, a pioneer builder and contractor. He built the old court house in 1831. His son built the dormitory and college building of LaGrange College in early 1861, the war preventing the completion of the college building.

SIMS HOME. The home of Wiley Sims was the site of the old LaGrange Country Club; the old house being remodeled as a club house. Wiley Sims was the first ordinary of Troup County, the office being created in 1852. He was prominent in the social and political life of early days.

FLORENCE HOME. Near the A. J. Heard place southeast of LaGrange, the summer home of Judge Walter Colquitt, was located the Florence home. The menage of this home was noted for the exquisite furniture, handsome carriage and horses, and other appointments in keeping with the early pioneer country home.

POER HOME. This house dates far back in the county records, and the age is attested by the bend in the street in West Point, whose other streets are straight lines except those along the river front. The city was laid off in rectangular squares at the beginning of its existence.

WHATLEY HOME. This home is located on a narrow road leading north just beyond the Estes Cemetery west of Abbottsford. A view of this quaint house bespeaks its age. The angular dormers and steeply pitched roof are ample evidence of the originality and good taste of the designer.

HARWELL HOME, 305 BROAD STREET. This is perhaps one of the oldest homes in LaGrange and was the home of Vines Harwell and his wife, Mary Lane, who were married on November 18, 1823, and afterwards moved to this home, where were born Henry and John Harwell on December 24, 1827, in this house. The house was afterwards occupied by J. Brown Morgan, whose wife was captain of the "Nancy Harts" in the Civil War period. It was afterward owned by John N. Cooper. It has been in possession of the Pinckard family for more than thirty years. The beautiful columns were added to the house in the later years of its existence.

MODERN HOMES. Among the handsome modern homes of LaGrange, West Point and Hogansville, may be mentioned the following: Truitt and Dunson homes built in southern colonial style; Nix home of English type with its beautiful gardens; the handsome Callaway Italian villa set in the famed Ferrell Gardens, now called "Hills and Dales"; Lanier home in West Point with the house and gardens artistically set on the famous Fort Tyler hill with a magnificent panoramic view of the surrounding country; Word home in Hogansville picturesquely located in a stately grove of oaks.

There are doubtless many other homes in the county, which should be enumerated, but the lack of definite information has prevented their inclusion in this edition of our county history.

CHAPTER XXIII. CUSTOMS AND PRACTICES

PLANTATION DAYS. On the old plantations the spring months were one unending toil of planting, sowing, weeding, tilling up to the "laying by" time about the first of July, when the golden seas of wheat, barley, rye and oats, and sometimes millet were waiting for harvest time. The strong armed cradler mows a swath in the ripened grain, and he is closely followed by one who gathers the cuts and binds them into convenient bundles or sheaves. When the reaping and binding are complete, the bundles are shocked in upright piles with one spread over the top to protect the shocks from possible rains before the threshing time.

The itinerant thresher is notified that the community is ready for "thrashing day"; and when notice is received that the caravan is on the way, then commenced the hurry, bustle and hard toil of the burning summer days, which left completely exhausted every one from the cooks feeding the extra itinerant crew and the laborers moving the grain to the thresher and the chaff and straw out of the workers' way, to the master awaiting the scorer's count of the harvest total. The modern reaper has taken away the glamor of old "thrashing days" with the hearty appetites and deep sleep consequent upon laborious toil.

The summer months were largely idle time with the exception of the pulling of fodder and cutting of hay. Visits to distant friends and kinsmen, various gatherings in churches and camp meetings, served to pass away the long summer days. The call of the road commissioners always marred the idyllic summer days, when the able bodied citizens gathered together for highway work in making possible the old roads and in cutting new ones.

The notable days of autumn were cotton picking, cane grinding, cider making, corn shucking, each of which were celebrated in accordance with the alcoholic inclinations of the participants. One other day should be mentioned, and that is settling day or October 1, when the accounts of the harvest year are closed. Prior to this date all transactions were of the barter type: the threshing paid in toll of grain; the miller in toll of grain; all else on credit payable on the settling day.

Plantation days are gone with its toils and labors, with its pleasures and recreations, but they have a warm place in our hearts.

THE COUNTRY DOCTOR. In the early days most of the roads were only faintly marked trails, and in consequence travel was largely on horseback. This was the method employed by the country doctors in reaching their patients, and all physicians were country doctors.

The doctor was the surgeon, the dentist, the pharmacist, the nurse, and the botanist, and anything else that was needed by the patient. He carried in his saddlebags instruments for operations, materials for compounding remedies, miscellaneous sedatives and purgatives, bandages and liniments, in fact a circulating pharmacy.

On the way to some distant visitation his watchful eye was ever on the alert for catnip, boneset, lobelia, bayberry, gentian and all those plants from which he prepared his tinctures.

It is a matter of pleasure and also of duty to pay tribute to the tireless energy, enduring patience and studious skill of these faithful pioneer ministers of health to our forefathers.

CORN SHUCKING. The monotony of farm life was sometimes broken by introducing a concerted social feature, or by making play of work. One of these in those other days was a "Corn Shucking," which our northwestern countrymen would call a "Husking Bee," but in our Georgia always bore the above appellation.

By light of lanterns and to the accompaniment of banjos and fiddles (not violins) husky neighbors vied with one another in races of time or quantity of corn husked, and a feature of the contest was to find who would shuck the first ear of red corn, which entitled the lucky one to the first and a double portion of the eggnog, and sometimes he received also a spanking from the envious defeated contestants.

The dancing of jigs and singing of old songs interspersed the program of work and amusement. Now, alas, the days of corn shuckings are no more, and it is in memory alone that we may see some husky buck "cut the pigeon wing," or hear some old darky "zoon."

LOG ROLLING. The original forests of the county were so dense that in order to plant crops, it was necessary to fell the trees and to destroy all timber not needed for building cabins, barns and shelters. The disposition of the enormous mass of trunks, branches and brush entailed the communistic assistance of neighbors in rolling the logs into a heap for burning. After the arduous toil by day with cant hooks and levers, came the evening by the light of the bonfire, and entertainment of song and dance with refreshments both liquid and savory.

HOUSE WARMING. When the patches for fields and gardens were cleared, and the cabin of logs completed with its board roof and stick chimney; when puncheon benches, shelves and racks and bunks, were added, and the pioneer ready to occupy his new home, invitations were broadcast by word of mouth to the "House Warming." The house might be the future home of some newlyweds, or merely the abiding place of some newcomer to the community, but the ceremony was much the same in either case. The host gave warm welcome with a roaring fire in the spacious fireplace, a royal banquet of venison or bear steak with suitable accompaniments, which usually included hard liquor for men and wine for the ladies.

The presents brought by the guests would seem curious when compared with a modern shower: for the host, a powder horn scraped until thin and translucent, a leather shot pouch, a tinder box, a coon-skin cap, knitted woolen socks and the like; for the madame, a skillet, a spider, buckskin moccasins, mittens knitted from colored yarns, and the like.

COOKING METHODS. The pioneer oven usually placed some distance back of the cabin, was a cumbersome affair built of stone or brick, with a huge firebox underneath provided with a stick chimney for the draft. The firing of the oven was not a daily occurrence, for it required some time to heat the oven chamber to a cooking temperature. The bread supply for a week was usually baked at one heating, and a ham, or a whole pig, or a turkey, or all three could be baked at one time in the cavernous depths of the oven on ceremonial occasions, but roasting and barbecuing were more frequently resorted to for such use as the family alone required.

The spider was a three legged cooking implement for cooking bread at the open fireplace. It was provided with a cast iron cover on which hot coals and ashes were heaped in order to brown on top the biscuit or corn pone without having to turn over.

The skillet, or frying pan, was used for the cooking of rashers of bacon, sliced ham and steaks, much as at the present time.

The hot ashes of the giant fireplace were also utilized for the roasting of sweet potatoes, and sometimes for the cooking of the ashcake of corn bread. To keep the home fires burning was a solemn duty, since matches though invented in 1856 were not in common use in the South until some time after the Civil War. The method of preserving fire was to bank ashes over the live coals at night before going to bed. The hunter, camper and long distance teamster customarily carried a tinder box, flint and steel, or sometimes in a metal box a spongy mass taken from decayed trees, which they called "punk," which would when enclosed carry a smouldering spark for many hours.

HORSEBACK RIDING. In the early days when most of the roads were little more than faintly marked trails, the favorite method of transportation was that of a saddle horse. The general use of saddle horses made necessary some changes of costumes, which were later relegated to the realm of things past and forgotten. One of these changes among the men was the habitual wearing of high top boots. Among women in the days when modesty of person was considered a virtue was the use of the side saddle, and a riding habit with long flowing skirts was always in evidence. These perquisites required the use of other forgotten conveniences, such as boot-jacks in the bedroom and mounting blocks at the gate.

FOURTH OF JULY AND CHRISTMAS. A very curious reflex from the wanton destruction and pillage of Federal soldiers during the war and the succeeding days of Reconstruction was the feeling that the independence for which we fought in the eighteenth century was being denied our people in the nineteenth. As a consequence the former elaborate celebrations of the Fourth of July were abandoned and have not to this day ever been as wholeheartedly celebrated as in those other days. The use of noise producing fireworks and of fantastic masquerade parades was bodily transferred to the celebration of Christmas, which had been in the former days a quiet celebration of social cheer and church service.

CARPENTERING. The pioneers were endowed with a plentiful supply of timber, and had only to choose the enduring varieties for permanence. For the zigzag or worm rail fences, the easy splitting chestnut was chosen; for the log cabins, the long slender boles of short leaf yellow pine; for the picket fences of gardens and yards and for covering boards, some easily rived species of oak; for the later development of frame dwellings, pines and oaks or such as yielded to the magic touch of the broadax and adz. The sills of a house were hewn with broadax, and carefully mortised for each corner post, brace and stud in the wall, and each upright timber was firmly pegged into its place at top and bottom.

Within the recollection of the writer was the first structure in which the above members were toenailed in place, when the old citizens warmly debated whether the house would withstand its first winter of wind and rain.

The old time carpenter treasured in his complement of tools, a crosscut saw, a broadax for hewing, an adz for smoothing, a froe for riving boards and pickets, a large and a small auger for pinning, a large hatchet, and such other tools as his purse permitted, such as a handsaw, a hammer, a plane, and some chisels for mortising.

The strength and beauty of some of the old houses built during the pioneer days are a lasting monument to the skill of these craftsmen of those other days, when all work from the forging of nails to the ripping of planks, from the fashioning of mouldings to the smoothing of flooring, was hand work. They builded wisely and well.

WORKING THE ROADS. The old time road work was usually performed in August after the fodder was pulled and the hay cut. Every able bodied citizen in a militia district was subject to the call of the road boss of the district, and under his supervision the holes and washes of the roads were filled, and the ditches were cleared. When a place was remembered as being miry and wet in the preceding winter, it was piled with stones, or covered with transverse poles and logs and smoothed over with earth, which the heavy rains soon removed, and gave the passing traveler that bane of a highway, which was dubbed a "corduroy road."

If the old road was very much eroded, the old plan was to shift to right or left as convenience dictated. Putting top-soil on a road was unknown, and paving was practically limited to the streets of large cities. Many of the old roads were narrow and often flanked by cavernous ditches. The small streams were crossed by fords and the larger ones by ferries, though bridges were added as rapidly as possible, but the efforts were largely in the direction of the addition of new roads to connect new communities with those previously established.

The summoning for road work was later developed into a road tax, which was compulsory on all male citizens, and which could be paid by personal labor, or in money, or by the furnishing certain teams and appliances for road work.

SETTLING DAY. In the early days there were very few cash transactions, and most accounts for clothing, groceries, fertilizers, harness, and in fact every class of commodity, were tacitly made as payable on October 1st, which date was interpreted very freely as some time before Christmas, or rather the date on which the cotton was sold. The day of settlement with the merchant, or settling day, was the date due of crop mortgages, and various obligations. The payment of the hired help was usually deferred to some time nearer the eve of Christmas.

PIPE SMOKING. In the days when smoking was a pastime and not a business, a familiar sight was that of the corn-cob pipe with its reed stem, or the more durable and also more odorous clay pipe, either of which was charged with home-grown tobacco, and lighted by means of a live coal from the glowing fireplace.

SHIN PLASTERS. Before that silver was used for fractional currency, the Federal government put into circulation some paper money of small denominations. The bills were not only small in value, but also small in size. The denominations were five cent, ten cent, twenty-five cent, and fifty cent bills, and because of their small size were humorously called "shin plasters." Most of these bills of fractional currency have been retired from circulation, and those remaining are kept in the collections of numismatists together with the two-cent copper coin, and the three-cent and half dime silver pieces.

PEDDLER WAGONS. An exciting event in the lonely country communities was the coming of the peddler wagon, a conestoga affair, with the greatest imaginable variety of wares: tinware in the form of cups, pans, plates, buckets, strainers and sifters; cutlery of all descriptions from knives to broad-axes; ribbons, laces, calicoes, flannels, lindsey, and sometimes silks and velvets; Arnica and liniments, quinine and tonics, turpentine and machine oil. All wares were offered for cash or barter in fruits, rags, bacon, meal, potatoes, and horse feed. Sometimes with the peddler came the tinker, who sharpened scissors and knives, soldered leaky pans and buckets, and repaired umbrellas and clocks.

GOING TO MILL. Among the holidays for farmer boys in those other days, none were more pleasing than that of taking grist to the mills, corn and wheat. Then while waiting your turn, the time was spent in fishing and in wandering along the stream, or in watching the mysterious processes of bolting and sacking of bran, shorts and flour. The sight of the ponderous water wheels, and the spray and foam of tumbling waters was ever a source of pleasure and interest.

QUILTING BEES. In the halcyon days when the opportunities of the mission circles, the parent-teacher associations, and the bridge clubs, were unknown, the feminine interchange of news and gossip was limited to churchgoers and to those gathered together for some ostensible work for charity or for personal benefit such as sewing and quilting bees and the like. The technical term, bee, had no reference to the humming machines, which were then not in existence, nor did it always imply the idea of steady continuous work, but it did always have a buzzing in the form of chat and whispers, which gave the name.

After the industrious housewife had laboriously fashioned square after square of variously colored scraps of cloth in accordance with some design or fashion of the day, and had assembled and sewed together the squares for the quilt cover, and had stretched the lining on the frames, and had neatly placed the carded cotton and the patterned cover over all, then the invitations were sent to all neighbors to come to the quilting bee. Soon after the assembling of the clans, the swiftly plying needles formed row after row of quilting seams. When fingers began to tire, they were relayed by waiting helpers, and the crisscross seams of the quilters were soon completed. When the work was finished, then came the refreshments, which were usually cake and wine.

Among the old time patterns for the squares are noted the following names: Hexagon, Double Irish Chain, Rocky Mountain, Lone Star of Texas, Tulip, Wheel of Fortune, Rainbow, Ohio Rose, Log Cabin, Pineapple, Love Apple, The Whig Rose, and later that rebellious attitude toward anything symmetrical was that "Crazy Quilt."

The decades have passed and many of the old time quilts handed down from the former days attest the excellence of the old workmanship and materials.

ILLUMINATION. In the pioneer days there was little need of lights in the home, for books were few in number and newspapers long delayed in transmission, and fat pine knots furnished such light as was necessary as they flared in the huge fireplaces. Torches were used in such movements by night as were unavoidable.

The tallow from slaughtered cattle was next used for lighting. It was shaped into long cylinders with a central wick made from twisted cotton yarns. In very close rooms there was a somewhat disagreeable odor from the sputtering tallow, and the use of wax and of the sperm from whales constituted the first improvement in the making of candles. Snuffers, an implement for trimming wicks, were always found hanging near the mantel.

The discovery of petroleum in 1858 soon changed the source of the illumination to that of oil lamps, but in the beginning there were frequent explosions due to the mixture of gasoline, naphtha and other highly inflammable oils with the kerosene. These dangerous elements were soon removed by distillation and gasoline was then only a waste product for which there was little market. The glass chimney and the argand burner soon became the best means of illumination. The streets of cities were lighted by oil lamps set on the tops of posts, and a lamplighter was one of the city employes.

The next development of illumination was the utilization of natural or of manufactured gas, distributed in pipes to the various consumers, but this was used only in the larger cities, and Troup County had none large enough to warrant such use for city and commercial lighting. This in turn was improved by the device of an incandescent mantle to give greater brilliance of lighting.

The invention of incandescent electric lights by Edison in 1879 marked the beginning of the period which enables night to be transformed into day. Direct current was used for the incandescent and the carbon arc lights for street lighting in the early days. The development of lamps in higher candle powers finally displaced the arc lights for street purposes, and the use of alternating currents removed the magnetic effects. The invention of storage batteries and small units of lighting have opened the rural districts to the benefits of such forms of lighting.

What the next step shall be, can be only a matter of speculation and imagination, but one element will control in the next step, and that will be cold light.

CHAPTER XXVII. OFFICIALS AND OLD CITIZENS OF TROUP COUNTY

THE following alphabetical list of names was secured from many different sources, one of which was that of the county records, another from the inscriptions found in the cemeteries of the county, and another from individual family records. Those secured from the cemeteries include only the names of mature persons, who were born prior to 1850. Many tombs were unmarked and a few were indecipherable.

The list of the cemeteries visited may be found in the pages preceding this chapter of the history. There are, perhaps, some of them omitted, but if that is true, the citizens of the community are unaware of their existence, and when discovered may be added to this list of county officials and old citizens by some future compiler of records.

The name of every Troup County citizen, who has held office in the national, or in the state legislative bodies, is included up to the year 1933. The mayors and city clerks are the only municipal officers in the list. The county officers are all included with the exception of the County Treasurer. The names of some of the county surveyors, coroners, tax receivers, and tax collectors, do not appear in the public records prior to 1884, after which year the oaths of office for county officers were recorded in the minutes of the Court of Ordinary.

It is suggested that some county officer be constituted the recipient of such missing data for the use of a future compilation, and that an annual summary of events be so recorded.

CHAPTER XXIX. ACTS OF LEGISLATURE

THE following Acts of the Legislature are reproduced here, as they contain subject matter of interest in the study of the municipalities and the county. Many others are available, but merely change some point of minor interest.

COUNTY ORGANIZATION. December 11, 1826. An Act to organize the territory lately acquired from the Creek Indians, lying between the Flint and the Chattahoochee rivers.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Georgia in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That all that part of the territory lately acquired from the Creek Indians, lying between the Flint and the Chattahoochee rivers, immediately above the old line of Early County and known as the First Section, shall form one county to be called Lee.

That all that part of said territory lying between the rivers aforesaid, and known as the Second Section, shall form one county to be called Muscogee.

That all that part of said territory lying between said rivers, and known as the Third Section, shall form one county to be called Troup.

That all that part of said territory east of the Chattahoochee river, and known as the Fourth Section, or upper section, shall form one county to be called Cowetaw.

That all that part of said territory lying west of said river Chattahoochee shall form one county to be called Carroll.

That on the first Monday in May next (1827) the persons who may be in said counties, may meet together and under the superintendence of three freeholders, elect five Justices of the Inferior Court for their respective counties, a Clerk of the Superior and Inferior Courts, a Sheriff, a Tax Collector, a Tax Receiver, a Coroner, and a County Surveyor.

That the place of election in the county of Lee, shall be Pondstown, or William's store: That the place of election in the county of Muscogee, shall be at the house of William C. Osburn; That the place of election in the county of Troup, shall be at the house of Joseph Weaver; That the place of election in the county of Carroll, shall be at the McIntosh Reserve, at the house of William O. Wagon.

FIRST BOUNDARY CHANGE. December 14, 1827. An Act for the division of the late acquired counties of Carroll, Troup, Muscogee, and Lee into counties of a proper shape and size.

Be it enacted by the Senate and the House of Representatives of the State of Georgia in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, that the lately acquired counties of Carroll, Troup, Muscogee, and Lee be divided into counties of a proper size and shape.

That so much of the original county of Carroll as is contained in the following boundaries: Commencing at the intersection of the north line of the Fifteenth Land District of Carroll County and the Alabama line, thence eastward along said line to the Chattahoochee river, thence along the northern bounds of Twelfth and Eleventh Land Districts of Troup County to the northeast corner of Land Lot No. 5 in the Eleventh District, thence southward to the southeast corner of Land Lot No. 96 in the Third Land District, thence westward to the bounds of Alabama, thence in a northerly direction to the point of commencement, shall form the county of Troup.

REORGANIZATION. December 24, 1827. An Act to organize the counties of Meriwether, Troup, Harris, Talbot, Marion, and Muscogee.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Georgia in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by authority of the same, That on the first Monday of February next (1828) the persons who reside in the counties of Meriwether and Troup, may meet together, and under the superintendence of three freeholders elect so many Justices of the Inferior Court for their respective counties as are required by law; also, a Clerk of the Superior and Inferior Courts, a Sheriff, Tax Collector, Tax Receiver, Coroner, and County Surveyor.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the place of election in the county of Meriwether shall be at the house of Hugh W. Ector; in the county of Troup, at the house of Nicholas Johnson.

Sec. 3. That the said freeholders shall certify under their hands to the Governor the persons so elected, who shall thereupon be commissioned to hold their offices till the next general elections for the like officers throughout the state, unless these offices be sooner vacated by law.

Sec. 4. County Town. And be it further enacted, That the Justices of the Inferior Court, in their respective counties, or a majority of them, shall fix the site of their necessary public buildings as they may think most conducive to the public good; and they shall have the power of erecting all the necessary public buildings in their respective counties, and for that purpose purchase a lot of land for a county town, except they should fix upon a fraction as the public site, then it shall be the duty of the Court to assess the value of the fraction and to enter into the usual obligation for the payment of fractions, and to lay out a county town and dispose of the lots as they may think most conducive to the public interest; and it shall be the duty of the said Inferior Court to reserve two lots, one acre each, for academies, and four lots, one acre each, for religious purposes; and it shall be the duty of the Inferior Court to execute titles to each of the religious denominations, to one of the lots thus reserved.

Sec. 5. Militia Districts. And be it further enacted, That the said Justices as soon as practicable shall lay off their respective counties into captains districts, and whenever the said districts are defined, they shall advertise, and one or more of them attend the election of two Justices of the Peace in each captain's district, giving fifteen days notice thereof, who shall be commissioned to continue in office till the next general election of Justices of the Peace throughout the State unless their offices be sooner vacated by law.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That the Justices of the Peace after they have been commissioned as aforesaid, it shall be their duty to advertise in their respective districts the election of subaltern officers as required by the militia laws now in force, and the said captain shall as early as practicable make out a complete roll of all such persons as are liable to do militia duty, and return the same to the Inferior Court.

Sec. 7. And be it further enacted, That the Judges of the Court shall in due time order an election for field officers, giving fifteen days notice of the same, and it shall be the duty of two or more magistrates to superintend said election and certify the same as required by the militia laws.

Sec. 8. And be it further enacted, That the Justices of the Inferior Court for said counties, shall proceed to select grand and petit jurors agreeable to the law now in force.

Sec. 9. And be it further enacted, That where there are magistrates and military officers in any of the counties above named, that the Justices of the Inferior Court be required to lay off their districts, and have elections only where there are not a sufficient number of those officers in their district.

Sec. 10. And be it further enacted, That no part of this Act be so construed as to turn out any officer before the time expires for which elected.

LAST MAJOR BOUNDARY CHANGE. December 22, 1830. An Act to form a new county from the counties of Troup, Coweta, and Carroll counties: Heard County, giving the northern boundary of Troup.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Georgia in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That from and after the passing of this Act, all that territory lying within the following bounds, viz.: Commencing on the Chattahoochee river at the corner of fraction number one hundred sixty-one and one hundred sixty-three in the Fourth District of Carroll County, thence west a straight line to the Alabama line; thence along said state line to the northwest corner of lot number one hundred sixty in the Fifteenth District of former Carroll, now Troup County; thence in a straight line to the corner of fraction number forty-eight on the river in the Fourteenth District of former Carroll, now Troup County; thence up said river to the mouth of Potato Creek in the Twelfth District of Troup County; thence in a straight line to the southeast corner of lot number one hundred twenty in the Third District of Coweta County; thence in a straight line to the northwest corner of fraction number one hundred seventy-six in the Fourth District of Coweta County on the Chattahoochee river; thence a straight line to the beginning corner, shall form a new county to be called and known by the name of Heard, in memory of Stephen Heard, late of the county of Elbert, deceased.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That said county shall be included in the Chattahoochee circuit, and form a part of the First Brigade, of the Ninth Division of the Georgia Militia.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That all officers, civil and military, that are included in the county of Heard, shall hold their respective commissions in the same manner as if commissioned for said county.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That the Superior and Inferior Courts and county elections shall be held at the house of Joshua Davis, until the Inferior Court shall fix a permanent site for the same; that George H. Cooper, William Barclay, Matthew Coleman, and Thomas C. Pinkard be and they are hereby appointed commissioners with authority to superintend the election of Justices of the Inferior Court, and other county officers and to do and perform all other acts preparatory to the organization of said county.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That all lines as mentioned in the first section of this Act are and shall be the permanent bounds of said county of Heard; and that the line running through the counties of Troup and Coweta shall be run and plainly marked by some suitable person, selected by the above named commissioners, who shall be compensated for running said line out of the funds of said county of Heard, so soon as there shall be county funds to do so.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That all laws and parts of laws militating against this Act be, and the same are hereby repealed.

INCORPORATION OF FRANKLIN (WEST POINT). December 26, 1831. An Act: To incorporate the town of Franklin in the county of Troup and to authorize the trustees of the Franklin Academy to erect their building on the lot number two hundred eighty-three in the Fifth District of said county.

Sec. 1. Commissioners. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Georgia in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That Charles R. Pearson, William Atkins, Robert M. Richards, Thomas Erwin, and John C. Webb be, and are hereby appointed commissioners for the town of Franklin, in the county of Troup, and shall continue in office until their successors are appointed, agreeable to the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 2. Elections. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That on the first Monday in April, 1832, and on the first Monday in each and every April thereafter, it shall be lawful for all persons, inhabitants in the corporate limits of said town, entitled to vote for members of the legislature, to assemble at some public place previously designated by advertisements in said town, and under the superintendence of two or more Justices of the Peace of the county, to elect by ballot five commissioners for said town who shall continue in office for one year, and until their successors are elected; and if it shall so happen that the election is not held on the day before appointed, it shall be lawful for the same to be held on any other day, in the manner and form before described by this Act, upon ten days notice being given thereof, in two or more public places in said town; and in case of the death, resignation, or removal of any of said commissioners, those remaining shall have the power to fill such vacancy or vacancies until the next annual election.

Sec. 3. Ordinances. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the aforementioned commissioners and their successors in office shall have full power and authority to pass all laws, rules and regulations for the police of said town as shall seem to be conducive to the health, peace and well-being of the inhabitants thereof; provided, the same shall not be repugnant to the Constitution of this State, and the United States, and they shall have full power and authority to appoint such officers as shall be necessary to carry into effect and execute such rules and regulations.

Sec. 4. Boundary. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said commissioners and their successors in office shall have jurisdiction over the lot number two hundred and eighty-three, and the fractional lot number three hundred eighteen in the Fifth District of Troup County.

Sec. 5. Taxation. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners and their successors in office shall have the power to levy a poll tax on the inhabitants, and to tax all property in said town; provided, the said poll tax shall not exceed one dollar, and the tax on property shall not exceed that required by the State.

Sec. 6. Executions. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners shall be authorized to issue executions for the taxes, fines and penalties, and the same shall be collected as magistrate's executions.

Sec. 7. Franklin Academy. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the trustees of the Franklin Academy be and they are hereby authorized to erect their academy on said lot number two hundred eighty-three, any provision of this Act to the contrary notwithstanding.

CHANGE OF NAME OF FRANKLIN. December 24, 1832. An Act: To change the name of Franklin, in Troup County, to the town of West Point, and also to change the name of Franklin Academy to that of West Point Academy, and also to alter and amend the Act, passed the 26th of December, 1831, incorporating the town of Franklin.

CITY OF WEST POINT. February 13, 1854. An Act: To amend the several Acts of force in relation to the incorporation of the town of West Point, and to incorporate the same under the name of the City of West Point, and to provide for the election of a mayor and aldermen, and such other officers as may be required, and to confer on them specified powers, and for other purposes.

LIMITS OF WEST POINT. December 26, 1835. An Act to extend and define the corporate limits of the town of West Point, in Troup County.

Sec. 1. Limits. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Georgia in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That from and immediately after the passage of this Act, the corporate limits of said town shall be, and they are extended over fractions fifty-seven, fifty-eight, and fifty-nine, lying on the western side of Chattahoochee river, in the Sixteenth District of originally Carroll, but now Troup County; also over fractions three hundred sixteen, three hundred seventeen, and three hundred eighteen, the whole of lots two hundred eighty-three, and two hundred eighty-four, and the southern half and the northwest quarter of lot number two hundred eighty-five, lying on the east side of said river, in the Fifth District; so that the lots and fractions herein specified may be included and embraced within the limits of the corporation of said town of West Point, in Troup County.

Sec. 2. Commissioners. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That Charles R. Pearson, Beaman H. Martin, Lawrence Gahagan, Greene W. Hill, and Hutchinson Burnham be and the same are hereby appointed commissioners for the town of West Point; that said commissioners shall have the privilege of electing an Intendant from their own body for said town; which Intendant and commissioners shall continue in office till successors are chosen according to the provisions of this Act.

Sec. 3. Elections. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That on the second Monday in January, 1837, and on the same day of every subsequent year, it shall be lawful for all persons residing within the corporate limits of said town, entitled to vote for members of the legislature, to assemble under the superintendence of two or more justices of the peace, or of the Inferior Court, and elect by ballot an Intendant and four commissioners, who shall continue in office one year, and until their successors are elected. And if it shall happen that such election should not be held at the specified time, it may be lawful for the same to be held on any other day, upon ten days notice being given thereof, at two or more public places within the limits of said town; and if vacancies should occur, the remaining commissioners are authorized to fill such vacancies till the next annual election.

Sec. 4. Powers. And be it further enacted, That the above mentioned commissioners shall be known as the Intendant and Commissioners of the town of West Point, and by such, their corporate name, shall sue and be sued, and shall have a common seal, and shall have full power to pass all by-laws and ordinances that may conduce to the health and peace of said town, and appoint such officers as may be necessary to execute the same; Provided, such regulations be not repugnant to the constitution and laws of this State, or the United States.

Sec. 5. Bridge. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That Abner McGehee, George Whitman, Edward Hancock, John Scott, Sr., Francis M. Gilmer, John C. Webb, and Charles R. Pearson be, and the same are hereby authorized to build a bridge across the Chattahoochee river, at any point within the limits of said incorporation they may deem expedient, and that they be entitled to such tolls as are received by the existing ferry at that place.

LAGRANGE FEMALE ACADEMY. December 26, 1831. An Act to incorporate certain Academies, and to appoint trustees for said Academies.

The first three sections refer to establishment of county academies in various parts of Georgia.

Sec. 4. Trustees. That Wilson Williams, Julius C. Alford, Rufus Broome, James Herring, John E. Gage, William A. Redd, and Joseph Poythress, and their successors in office, be and they are appointed and declared to be a body corporate, under the name and style of the Trustees of the LaGrange Female Academy, in the county of Troup. . . .

Sec. 17. Common Seal. Each of the said corporations shall have the privilege of using a common seal. . . .

Sec. 20. And be it further enacted, That all laws and parts of laws militating against this Act, the same are hereby repealed.

LaGrange Female Institute. December 26, 1851.

Sec. 1. That from and after the passage of this Act, the name of the LaGrange Female Institute, incorporated by Act of the General Assembly, approved 17th of December, 1847, be and the same is hereby changed to the name of the LaGrange Female College, and that the powers, privileges and immunities, granted to the LaGrange Female Institute, shall continue and inure to the LaGrange Female College.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the trustees in whom is vested the title to the houses and lots on which LaGrange Female Institute has been heretofore situated, are authorized to sell the same at public outcry, so soon as the same can be done on such terms as they shall deem best, subject, however, to the lien or liens of Joseph T. and Hugh B. T. Montgomery, or either of them, on the same.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, That all laws and parts of laws militating against this Act, be and the same are hereby repealed.

December 17, 1847, LaGrange Female Institute was incorporated with a charter for twenty years, and given power to confer degrees. The following were named in the charter as trustees: Sampson Duggar, Hampton W. Hill, Daniel McMillan, Orville A. Bull and Thomas B. Greenwood.

LaGrange Female College. December 19, 1859. Whereas the LaGrange Female Academy was originally incorporated by the Legislature of Georgia in 1831, and the same was duly organized according to the true intent and meaning of the Act; and whereas the name of said Academy was afterwards changed to the name of the LaGrange Female Institute; and whereas, the name was subsequently by Act of the General Assembly changed to the name of the LaGrange Female College, and certain privileges and rights were conferred by each of the said several Acts; and whereas Joseph T. and Hugh B. T. removed said Institution to a more eligible location, and incurred great expense in erecting buildings and procuring apparatus, and in making great improvements; and whereas, on the 29th day of January, 1857, said Joseph T. Montgomery and Hugh B. T. Montgomery, by indenture, did duly convey said LaGrange Female College to William J. Parks, Caleb W. Key, Albert E. Cox and others, as trustees appointed by and acting for the Georgia Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; and whereas, said Conference has since said day held and managed said College, by its trustees, and have at various times added to and filled vacancies in said Board of Trustees. Therefore the General Assembly do enact, that the transfer and sale of said LaGrange Female College to the trustees named in said deed, and for the purposes therein named, be and the same is, hereby ratified and made legal, and that said new trustees and their successors do hold and enjoy and exercise all the powers, rights, franchises and privileges heretofore granted by the several Acts aforesaid, as fully as if they had been the original trustees for said institution of learning.

That the present Board of Trustees, to-wit: Robert A. T. Ridley, president; James B. Payne, Caleb W. Key, John C. Simmons, Gadwell J. Pearce, Charles R. Jewett, William J. Scott, John W. Talley, Robert B. Lester, George C. Clark, William H. Evans, James W. Hinton, Eustace W. Speer, William D. Martin, James M. Chambers, James M. Beall, Simon W. Yancey, Albert E. Cox, and Benjamin H. Hill, and their successors in office, be and they are hereby incorporated and made a body corporate, under the name and style of the LaGrange Female College, and as such may sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded in any court of law or equity in this State, may have a common seal, and adopt all by-laws and regulations for the government of said College they may deem fit and proper, not repugnant to the Constitution and laws of this State and of the United States.

That the said LaGrange Female College may confer degrees, grant diplomas, regulate instruction, and do all other things necessary to be done, and have all the powers, privileges and franchises heretofore conferred upon any literary female college in this State, and may do all things properly attaching to a college of the highest grade.

That said Board of Trustees shall have power to fill vacancies and enlarge their number, as desired, and shall have the power to sell and transfer any property originally belonging to said LaGrange Female Academy, or LaGrange Female Institute, and to invest the proceeds of said sale in accordance with the true intent and meaning of the original incorporation, and shall have power to hold and possess property, real and personal, by gift, grant, bequest, or otherwise, and to alien and dispose of the same under the direction and by the consent of the said Georgia Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Note. The Georgia Conference was not yet divided into the present North and South Georgia Conferences.
